HOUSTON CREW MEMBERS TELL OF JAP HORROR

Bare 'Death March' in Thailand

TORTURERS FACE TRIAL

American army authorities in Japan gather atrocity information from released prisoners for use in war crime trials. New details of Japanese brutality are disclosed by state department. Three rescued Doolittle flyers tell how they were beaten by Japs. Stories on page 4.

CALCUTTA, India, Sept. 4 [Delayed]—Survivors of the sunken cruiser Houston and members of the 131st [Texas national guard] field artillery regiment liberated from Japanese prison camps in Burma told horrifying stories today of the death of 20,000 out of 56,000 allied prisoners from starvation, disease, and fantastic cruelties.

The prisoners said it had been fully authenticated that 7,000 convalescent allied prisoners in Thailand [Siam] were taken by the Japanese on a purported trip to a rest camp, but in the "death march" of almost 140 miles more than 3,500 died. The survivors said 133 of the 7,000 were Americans.

150,000 Natives Die

Comdr. William A. Epstein, Denver, Col., senior medical officer on the Houston, said he and British and Dutch medical men who were imprisoned had "carefully calculated the loss of allied prisoners at those figures and we believe 150,000 native coolie slave laborers died in Japanese hands."

Lt. [j. g.] Harold S. Hamlin Jr., Orlando, Fla., Houston officer, said that the heavy cruiser and the Australian light cruiser Perth went down fighting in March, 1943.

"We know of 368 survivors who reached the Java shore and became Jap prisoners," he said, adding that a number died in the prison camps.

[Additional survivors from the United States cruiser Houston have been found in Singapore, a dispatch from the city stated today. The total number of Americans liberated from Singapore prison camps thus far is 112, including 23 civilians. These prisoners include not only survivors from the Houston but also men from the Tidewater Oil company tanker William F. Humphrey, sunk in the Atlantic; from the 131st field artillery regiment, and various air force personnel, including Super Fortress crews.]

Tell Only What They Saw

The men were restricted in the telling of their stories to what they themselves experienced and saw.

All said they were given "stinking, rotten food most of the time." Some ate cats, dogs, and snakes.

Others told how the diet of sick prisoners was reduced because "food was for the fit," but the prisoners secretly fed the sick.

The men said they were forced to perform heavy labor and were beaten with gun butts, sticks, and fists if their failing strength slowed their pace or they failed to speed up when their guards wanted to get thru early.

Ensign C. D. Smith of Memphis, Tenn., said at one camp he was in the Korean interpreter "went berserk and called men out of the hos-

'Tokyo Rose' Held; Family Is in Chicago

YOKOHAMA, Sept. 5 (AP)—United States 8th army headquarters announced today that Iva Toguri, Los Angeles-born radio announcer who won fame among American troops in the Pacific as "Tokyo Rose," is under detention.

An officer of the counter-intelligence corps apprehended the woman, who is 29, and turned her over to general headquarters for questioning and investigation. She was picked up as an American citizen and no charge has been lodged against her.

Gives Yanks Interview

Miss Toguri was at a hotel, which was allied correspondents' headquarters, and had just given an interview in which she denied she had called American troops in the South Pacific "forgotten men."

She also said she did not broadcast to the Americans statements that their wives were being unfaithful to them while the Yanks were in combat.

FAMILY IN CHICAGO

The family of Iva Toguri, who has been identified as "Tokyo Rose," last night expressed "surprise" that she was the famed radio announcer and maintained that she "must not have done it of her own accord."

Interviewed in a combination fish market and grocery at 1012 N. Clark st., her brother, Fred, 35, and sister, Inez, 20, said that they had last heard from their sister in a Red Cross message sent early in 1944. The family has operated the store more than a year and has lived in Chicago for two years. Another sister, June, 25, is visiting in Los Angeles, Cal. The father, Jun, is expected home from there today.

The family residence is at 1349 N. La Salle st.

Iva was graduated from the University of California at Los Angeles in 1939 after majoring in zoology.

HOME EVICTION WAITING PERIOD DOUBLED BY OPA

Washington, D. C., Sept. 5 (AP)—The OPA today increased from three to six months the "waiting period" before a house purchaser may evict a tenant in order to occupy the house himself. The change is effective Sept. 15.

The six month rule will be effective in all areas under federal rent control unless the area director decides that three months is adequate.

The National Association of Real Estate Boards voiced immediate disagreement.

"We feel this makes all the more necessary the immediate resumption of home building," the association spokesman said in a statement. "The OPA is blocking this on the ground that unrestricted home building would mean high prices for houses, thereby encouraging inflation. This is no. so. Resumption of home building would deflate prices of existing homes."

GETTIN' OUT OF THE IRON SUIT

Strikes Slow Auto Output in 2 Plants

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 5 [Special]—The first major post-war labor dispute in the automobile industry tonight made nearly 40,000 workers idle and virtually halted production of new Ford and Hudson cars in a tie-up attributed mostly to a wrangle over the status of three minor CIO union officials.

A spokesman for the Ford Motor company said every Ford production worker in the country probably would be idle by the end of the week unless the present trouble is settled. Company plans to show 1946 auto and truck lines this month were indefinitely postponed.

Tho there has been no strike at Ford's, 26,500 employes have been laid off because of a shortage of parts from feeder plants now closed by strikes. Passenger car, truck, and tractor assembly lines were halted at the big Rouge and Highland Park plants and in three branch plants.

Parts Tie Up Fords

The principal interference with Ford production, it was said, is the 15 day old walkout at the Kelsey-Hayes Wheel company, which supplies Ford with wheels and brake drums. Some 4,500 employes are idle there in a strike called by local 174 of the CIO-United Automobile Workers to try to gain reinstatement for three discharged union stewards.

The three were discharged last April after they assertedly were ringleaders in an argument in which a foreman was ejected from the plant. Nine other men also discharged for participating in the tussle have since been reinstated at the direction of the war labor board, which did not clear the three stewards.

Developments in the situation are being reported to the government in Washington by the United States conciliation service. President Truman's recent assertion that war time penalties might be imposed on unions interfering with reconversion efforts was recalled, but there had been no official indication of plans to ask for such action.

11 Other Strikes Felt

In addition to the Kelsey-Hayes walkout, 11 other smaller strikes were hampering Ford's production efforts. A half dozen of these were in pattern shops, part of a statewide patternmakers' strike involving 2,350 workers. The others were in a variety of parts plants in disputes involving from 30 to 600 men.

At the Hudson Motor Car company 6,000 production workers joined a sympathy strike to support 500 striking foremen who walked out Friday in protest of a reduction of wage rates from war to peace time basis.

GIANT NEW PLANE CAN CIRCLE WORLD WITH ONLY TWO STOPS

Long Beach, Cal., Sept. 5 (AP)—A new American sky giant, designed for war and peace and capable of circling the globe with only two stops, took to the air today.

The Douglas C-74 Globemaster, army version of the DC-7, which is now on commercial order, was test flown before a group of military and Douglas technical experts.

Douglas spokesmen said it is the world's largest land plane, has a nonstop range of 7,800 miles, has four engines, a wing span of 173 feet, is 124 feet long, and 43 feet high. Its gross weight is 155,000 pounds.

The commercial version will carry 108 passengers and a crew of 13, with a modern galley serving full course meals aloft, dressing rooms, and cargo compartments.

Among its features are reversible propellers, enabling it to taxi backward as well as forward. The plane has a speed of more than 300 miles an hour.

REVEAL DETAILS OF 'FIGHTINGEST THING AFLOAT'

New York, Sept. 5 (AP)—The navy revealed today another of the war's well kept secrets — details of the new cruiser-destroyer which spokesmen described as "gun for gun and ton for ton the fightingest thing afloat."

One of the ships, the Stribling, was shown to reporters at Staten Island, where it is being outfitted for its shakedown cruise.

Comdr. John D. Bulkeley, the PT boat flotilla leader who evacuated Gen. MacArthur from Corregidor in March, 1942, when the Japs overran Bataan, will assume command of the ship when it is commissioned late this month.

Only about a dozen of the new ships, "close to 400 feet in length" and weighing 2,250 tons, have been commissioned, the navy said. The exact length of the ship still is restricted information because its outstanding performance hinges on its additional length, it was stated. The extra footage permits additional fuel storage—and extra runs.

The navy says the Stribling "bristles with 20 and 40 millimeter guns" plus an undisclosed number of torpedo tubes and six five inch dual purpose guns.

House Gets 2 Pearl Harbor Inquiry Bills

BY WILLARD EDWARDS
(Chicago Tribune Press Service)

Washington, D. C., Sept. 5—Legislative machinery to expose the full story of Pearl Harbor was put in motion today with the introduction of two investigation resolutions in the house and drafting of an identical measure for submission to the senate tomorrow.

Rep. Brown

Rep. Harness

The resolutions call for appointment of a 14 man committee composed of seven senators and seven representatives to make a "full and complete investigation of the facts surrounding the Dec. 7, 1941, Japanese attack and the events and circumstances leading to the attack."

House sponsors were Rep. Harness [R., Ind.], member of the military affairs committee, who was one of the first in congress last year to condemn suppression of the army and navy reports on the Pearl Harbor tragedy, and Rep. Brown [R., O.]. Sen. Ferguson [R., Mich.], prevented from offering his resolution today because of the senate's adjournment out of respect to the memory of the late Sen. Johnson [R., Cal.], will drop it into the hopper tomorrow.

Ferguson Speaks Today

Ferguson said he would deliver a vigorous floor speech at the same time which will mince no words in commenting upon the suppressed portion of the army and navy boards' reports made public last week. The responsibility of the late President Roosevelt for the confusion and unpreparedness of our Pacific outpost will be discussed fully, he indicated.

Meanwhile, some feeble opposition to a congressional investigation developed among Democratic stalwarts. Speaker Rayburn of Texas, after a White House interview, said President Truman had expressed certain views on the subject which he would not make public. But Rayburn gave his own personal opinion that he thought congress was taking a "bad attitude" in wishing to delve further into the greatest defeat in American history.

Wants It Forgotten

"I wish congress could forget about it," he remarked wistfully, and added with a sigh: "But I guess it can't."

Senate Republicans, 38 in number, immediately threw their solid weight behind the Ferguson resolution after a meeting of the steering committee. It was decided to support a joint investigation by both houses rather than an inquiry by the senate alone. Sen. Byrd [D., Va.] heads the senate Democrats urging a probe.

Sentiment in the house on both sides of the aisle was obviously

Zoo Director Bean Killed by Auto Crash

Edward H. Bean, 69, director of the Chicago Zoölogical park zoo at Brookfield, died yesterday in St. Joseph Mercy hospital, Aurora, of injuries suffered Tuesday in an automobile accident near Yorkville, Kendall county.

Edward H. Bean

Mr. Bean was returning alone from a vacation spent with his sister, Mrs. Will Walker, at Sullivan, Moultrie county, when his automobile skidded on loose gravel on a detour of U. S. route 34, two miles west of Yorkville. The car turned over three times before coming to a stop against a fence on the farm of Harry Krueger.

Consents to Go to Hospital

When Mr. Bean was helped from the car, he said he felt "a little dazed," but not hurt. He consented to be taken to the hospital, however, and it was discovered he had suffered a concussion.

He is survived by two sons, Robert, assistant director of the zoo, and Staff Sgt. Edward H. Jr., with the army in the Pacific, besides a daughter, Mrs. George Speidel of Brookfield. Mr. Bean, a widower, lived at 8501 W. 31st st., Brookfield.

Services will be held at 2 p. m. Saturday in the MacMullen chapel in Sullivan.

Authority on Wild Animals

One of the outstanding authorities on wild animals, Mr. Bean came to Chicago from Milwaukee, Wis., in 1927, to direct the building of the 4 million dollar zoo at Brookfield, which was opened in 1934 by the Chicago Zoölogical society. He had managed the Washington Park zoo in Milwaukee since 1906. He began his career assisting an animal trainer at the Chicago World's Columbian exposition in 1893. From 1900 to 1906 he was associated with Cy De Vry, trainer at the Lincoln park zoo.

A Tennessean Gives U. S. $50 to Help Pay Debt

Washington, D. C., Sept. 5 (AP)—The treasury received a $50 check from a man in Knoxville, Tenn., with this note: "I choose to celebrate victory in this way in lieu of throwing a big party and getting drunk." He explained it was a "free will donation" for use "in meeting the expense of operation of the government, or payment on the national debt."

CONGRESSMEN DEMAND A HALT ON INDUCTIONS

95th, 8th, and 2d Will Stay in America

Washington, D. C., Sept. 5 (AP)—The war department today canceled orders for the movement of three veteran army divisions to the Pacific, including the 95th infantry whose members protested against duty in Japan.

The other two divisions are the 2d and 8th infantry divisions, which like the 95th were brought back from Europe and earmarked for Pacific service.

Two Already at Sea

The action was based on a recommendation from Gen. MacArthur to send to the Pacific only three of the six divisions scheduled to go.

He specified that the three should be the 86th and 97th already at sea, and the 13th air borne division whose members are now on furlough prior to reassembling early in October at Fort Bragg, N. C.

Soldiers in both the 86th and 95th divisions had protested they were being "shanghaied" into Pacific service after combat duty in Europe. Some of the protests reached congress and the White House.

Only One Unit Saw Action

The 13th, which will join the 86th and 97th in the Pacific, left the United States for Europe last January. The war department said that only one of its regiments had been committed to combat. This was identified as the 517th parachute infantry regiment which joined the division after its arrival overseas.

The 13th is commanded by Maj. Gen. Elbridge G. Chapman, a native of Denver, Colo., and a graduate of the University of Colorado. He entered the army with the Colorado National Guard in 1916 and served in France in World War I.

Replacements to Go

The war department emphasized, however, that cancellation of orders for the movement of divisions as such will not affect the flow of low point replacements to relieve long time veterans in the Pacific.

Many of these replacements, the department added, will necessarily come from the ranks of divisions whose orders for overseas service have been canceled.

Premier Wants Own Flag and Anthem for Canada

OTTAWA, Ont., Sept. 5 (AP)—Canadians would be "citizens of Canada" instead of "British subjects," and would have their own flag and national anthem separate from Britain, under a proposal Prime Minister W. L. Mackenzie King is expected to project during the new parliament session opening tomorrow. A large group in Canada supports King's plans.

House Group OK's Bill to Spur Recruiting

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 5 Congress reverberated today with demands from members that the military draft be ended completely. In the house several bills were introduced on the first day of the new session to halt all inductions. A measure offered in the senate would restrict the application of the draft.

Rep. Hoffman, [R., Mich.] offered a bill to repeal the selective service in its entirety. This would not only halt the draft but would require the discharge of all draftees, except those choosing to remain voluntarily, within six months.

Other Measures

Measures to halt all further inductions also were introduced by Representatives Earthman [D., Tenn.] and Roe [D., N. Y.]. On the house floor Rep. Smith [R., O.] said he has prepared a bill calling for the immediate release from the army and navy of all married men and for a halt to the draft.

"Congress should immediately proclaim the official end of the war by a joint declaration," Smith told the house. "That would automatically require the return of all draftees within six months and pave the way for using only volunteers in the occupation forces."

In a letter to War Secretary Stimson, Rep. Brooks [D., La.] urged that army discharges be stepped up to at least 500,000 a month starting this month.

Spur to Enlistments

As demands for the end to the draft thus grew, the house military affairs committee approved legislation to spur voluntary enlistments in the regular army.

The bill, scheduled for floor action next week, would permit enlistments for two or three year periods, instead of just three years, and would give 90-day furloughs with travel pay home to present service men who choose to reenlist, the eligible for discharge. Mustering out payments [$100 to $300] could be collected at the time of reenlistment under the bill.

Could Retire in 20 Years

It also would permit army personnel to retire after 20 years service at half pay. The present rule allowing retirement after 30 years at three-fourths pay would be continued.

The bill applies to enlisted personnel and makes no provision for the transfer of commissioned officers from the reserves to the regular army. Committee members said separate legislation on this will be considered soon. The bill does, however, continue the pay bonus for overseas duty for both officers, who get 10 per cent extra, and enlisted men, who get 20 per cent.

Meanwhile a senate bill introduced by Chairman Thomas [D., Utah] of the senate military committee proposed similar volunteering inducements and would also restrict the future draft to men 18 thru 25 for two year periods.

Would Continue Bonus

Thomas predicted occupation forces for both Germany and Japan can soon be raised entirely from volunteers, thus permitting an early end to the draft. His bill, like the house measure, would continue the 20 per cent pay bonus for overseas service, but would add another 5 per cent a year up to a maximum of 15 per cent for each year of duty abroad.

The war department meanwhile announced it has started the most extensive recruitment program in its history. It will be conducted by a force of 1,800 officers and 5,000 enlisted men operating in 600 recruiting stations in this country under direction of Brig. Gen. Harold Gilbert, director of the army's new military personnel recruitment service.

Under the present system service men who reënlist will get furloughs of 30 days for each year served up to a maximum of 90 days. Overseas veterans who reënlist will be returned to this country for their furloughs.

Reds Hum Berlin Hit; Yanks Bar It

BERLIN, Sept. 5 (AP)—Germany's favorite post-war song writer, hungry and jobless, listened today to the soviet-controled radio play his hit tune "Berlin Kommt Wieder" [Berlin Will Rise Again] and waited for British and American authorities to untangle the red tape from his career.

"I would not mind my troubles if I could get one square meal," commented Heino Gaze, the 37 year old "Irving Berlin of Berlin."

Gaze's troubles started when the British military government closed down his variety show on the Kurfuerstendamm where he sang, played the piano and led a band.

Mustn't Be Sold

Then the American military government warned music publisher Peter Schaeffer not to dispose in any way of 20,000 copies of Gaze's "Berlin Kommt Wieder."

But soviet authorities in control of the powerful Berlin radio transmitter continued to broadcast the author's catchy music.

The British and American action involving Gaze was based on a decree dated Aug. 16 and published here yesterday under which all song writers, book publishers, etc., must be screened by counter-intelligence. Some weeks are required for that.

Gaze says his song about Berlin was written at the Russians' request. The Russians, he said, "tell me to make music."

"But No Politics"

"They say," he related, "open the theaters, dance, sing. But no politics. Make music of optimism, laughter, love. And so I write a song that Berlin will rise again.

"Like the sun smiles after the darkness of night, so will lindens bloom on Unter den Linden and Berlin will be Berlin. The Russians approved it. It is not pro-Nazi. It is anti-pessimistic."

Publisher Schaeffer told Gaze he had reached an informal understanding with Hollywood Director William Wyler during the latter's visit here in July for the use of the Berlin song in a future motion picture. According to Schaeffer, Wyler gave him $500 to seal the understanding.

U.S. 1ST CAVALRY DIVISION WAITS TO ENTER TOKYO

Units Will Occupy 35-40 Square Miles of Capital

YOKOHAMA, Sept. 6 [Thursday] (AP)—Thirty-five to 40 square miles of Tokyo's more than 200 square miles will be taken under military control of 1st cavalry division troops in the initial occupation Saturday, it was learned today.

[Japan's Domei news agency said last night over Tokyo radio that 8,000 officers and men will comprise the 1st Cavalry division troops entering Tokyo Saturday [Friday Chicago time].]

Units of the division waited on the outskirts of the Japanese capital for the command which will send them parading into the city.

With Tokyo occupation plans still in the formulation stage, there was no definite report whether Gen. MacArthur would make his formal entry at the same time.

Fleet Moves on Naval Base

Gen. MacArthur, allied supreme commander in Japan, designated the veteran dismounted cavalry division for the Tokyo honor yesterday, shortly after giving Japanese military leaders detailed orders for speedy disarmament of all Nipponese forces. His directives left no room for doubt that he was boss of the conquered empire.

Moving down from the Aleutians, the United States 9th fleet, commanded by Vice Adm. Frank Jack Fletcher, waited to take over the Ominato naval base on Mutsu bay, on the north coast of the main Japanese island of Honshu, on Sunday. Negotiations with emissaries of the Nipponese naval commander were set for Friday.

Kyushu Occupation Proceeds

Meanwhile the American 6th army's occupation of Kyushu, southernmost Japanese home island, proceeded smoothly with the help of elements of Adm. Spruance's 5th fleet.

Units of the 32d division, of Gen. Krueger's 6th army, took over kamikaze suicide plane air fields at Kanoya and an airdrome on Kagoshima bay at the southern end of Kyushu. Adm. Halsey's 3d fleet took over the Kisarozu air field on the east shore of Tokyo bay.

Lt. Gen. Eichelberger, United States 8th army commander, estimated that the occupation of Japan's four home islands—Honshu, Hokkaido, Shikoku, and Kyushu—will require between 300,000 and 400,000 troops. His own army will occupy Honshu north of Yokohama and Hokkaido to the north. He said that all Nipponese troops would be disarmed by Oct. 10.

Famed Old Division

In designating the 1st cavalry division to be the first allied armed force to enter Tokyo, MacArthur selected a historic old American outfit with a brilliant Pacific battle record.

Now commanded by Maj. Gen. William C. Chase, the dismounted troopers first attacked the Japanese in recapturing the Admiralty Islands in March, 1944. Their commander then was Maj. Gen. Ennis P. Swift.

The division helped win Leyte Island in the first invasion to liberate the Philippines, last October. In the Luzon Island campaign early this year it was the first to enter Manila and to liberate allied internees held at the Santo Tomas concentration camp.

One of the first tasks of the occupying forces at Ominato will be the liberation of prisoners of war. Thousands are known to be in camps around Hakodate on Hokkaido Island just north of Ominato.

Ryukyu Japs Delay Surrender

OKINAWA, Sept. 5. (AP)—Surrender of Japanese remnants in the Ryukyus islands was being delayed by the Nipponese today.

Emissaries from the Japanese officers who command the Ryukyus were pondering surrender terms after flying to Okinawa for conferences with officers of the staff of Gen. Stilwell.

Five Japanese envoys, flying in a "Betty" bomber clumsily painted green with white crosses, came from Amami, in the Sakashima group, 100 miles north of Okinawa. The emissaries represent Lt. Gen. Toshiro Nomi of the Japanese army, and Rear Adm. Adao Kato. Stilwell ordered the commanders to come to Okinawa, Sept. 9 for the formal surrender.

Melbourne radio said Gen. Thomas Blamey, Australian commander in chief, had established contact with the Japanese general on Dutch Celebes and that the Nipponese commander agreed to "begin direct negotiations before long." Blamey is at his headquarters on Morotai.

INDIANS BEGIN REOCCUPATION OF SINGAPORE

SINGAPORE, Sept. 5 (AP) — Wary troops of the 5th Indian division, cheered lustily by thousands of allied war prisoners, began today the reoccupation of this key bastion of Great Britain's eastern empire.

Sullen Japanese sentries — remnants of the enemy horde that wrested the red cliffed island from the British on Feb. 15, 1942—offered no resistance as the 1st Punjabi regiment's 2d battalion made the initial landing.

But taking no chances, the British East Indies fleet trained its guns on the city from Singapore harbor, dotted by red flags that marked the masts of Japanese ships sent to the bottom by Super Fortresses or other allied bombers.

Allied Prisoners Watch

Thousands of war prisoners, including some 70 Americans, pressed against barbed wire inclosures and climbed trees to acclaim their liberators. The road to Singapore was lined with flags displayed by Singapore's huge Chinese population.

[A bulletin from southeast Asia headquarters said an agreement for the British occupation of Singapore was signed at 6:05 p. m. Tuesday aboard the British cruiser Sussex off Singapore. Lt. Gen. Philip Christison signed for the allies. The Japanese representatives were Gen. Seishiro Itagaki, commander of Singapore, and Vice Adm. Fukedome.]

The main Japanese force remaining on the 225 square mile island—an estimated 60,000 men—had withdrawn from the first occupied area, which included docks and an air field.

Free War Prisoners

Freeing and caring for the war prisoners was a prime objective of Singapore's occupying troops. Parachutists who were dropped several days ago to look after their initial needs were contacted immediately.

Changi jail, the island's main war prisoner camp, originally was built for 600 inmates, but was found to have housed 50,000 prisoners at one time, and 12,041 British, Australians, Dutch, Americans, and Indians—living just above the starvation level—in recent days.

MIKADO QUOTES POETRY TO SWAY JAP WAR LORDS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

TOKYO, Sept. 5—Emperor Hirohito today was pictured as a man of peace who quoted poetry in an effort to persuade the imperial council not to embark on war.

Premier Prince Higashi-Kuni told the diet that "immediately preceding the outbreak of war when an imperial council was held to decide the momentous question of peace or war, his majesty was deeply distressed with the thought that should a world's major power like Japan cross swords with America and Britain it would bring on incalculable destruction and confusion. His majesty, the emperor recited aloud the poem by Emperor Meiji:

"'In the age when on the four seas
"'All peoples, I think, are brethren,
"'Who should raise
"'This tumult of wind and rain?'"

The emperor then exhorted the council to do everything possible to reach an amicable settlement—according to the premier's speech—and "all those in the imperial presence were struck with awe at this manifestation of great and boundless benevolence."

FRENCH TO TRAIN A YEAR IN ARMY INSTEAD OF TWO

PARIS, Sept. 5 [Reuters]—The French cabinet today decided that four classes of young Frenchmen who have not yet been called into military service will serve one year instead of the customary two. The decision applies to men who normally would have been called to the colors in the third contingent for 1939, 1940, 1941, and 1942. Deportees, political prisoners, and men who lost two relations in the war will not be called up. Leaves of absence of from three to six months will be granted to other deserving groups.

REPORT M'NUTT MAY BE CHIEF OF PACIFIC ISLES

Washington, D. C., Sept. 5 (AP)—A report circulated today that Paul V. McNutt, chairman of the war man power commission, might be appointed high commissioner of the western Pacific, including the Philippine islands.

One version was that McNutt, formerly high commissioner of the Philippines, would add to his pre-war duties the administration of islands newly seized from Japan as well as former United States possessions in the western Pacific.

These presumably would include the Marshall and Caroline islands, formerly mandated to the Japanese and expected to come under this country's trusteeship; Saipan and other Japanese holdings, and old United States possessions including Guam.

DISCLOSE JAPAN SEIZED WAKE IN 8-HOUR BATTLE

70 of Enemy Force Give Up Isle

WAKE, Sept. 5 (AP)—Eight hours of vicious fighting preceded the fall of Wake Island on Dec. 23, 1941.

Col. W. J. Baylor

That struggle of a few United States marines against an overwhelming Japanese force still is strong in the memory of some 70 Japanese of the attacking force who were among the troops that handed this small island back to the marines yesterday.

Can Use Landing Field

During their occupation the Japanese made no attempt to clean up the wreckage of the battle for Wake. Shattered war material still lies about the island, and nothing has been done about the damaged piers for small boats.

Wake's landing field, however, is usable and in fair condition.

The American dead of Wake are buried in two mass graves. One bears the epitaph: "Will Miles dies July 15, 1942," and reportedly contains about 20 bodies, buried by American prisoners.

Marked by Cross

A few feet away under a mound of coral rock and marked by a white cross lie an estimated 20 American dead, buried by Japanese.

Col. Walter J. Baylor of Lebanon, Pa., last man off Wake before it fell, was the first American to return to the island after its return to the United States.

Yanks Find Various Types of Gas at Jap Arsenal

YOKOHAMA, Japan, Sept. 5 (AP)—United States marines occupying the Sagami naval arsenal in the Yokohama area reported they found 51 tons of gas which had been manufactured there up to last spring. Included were one ton of tear gas, 20 tons of sleeping gas and 30 tons of blistering gas.

CHINESE TROOPS FLY TO NANKING FOR SURRENDER

NANKING, China, Sept. 5 (AP) — American-trained Chinese 6th army troops were flying today into this former capital—scene of some of the worst Japanese atrocities when it fell nearly eight years ago—to speed its full liberation and prepare for Japan's formal surrender in China expected Sunday.

The mass air movement started from Chihkiang airport, on a bend of the Yangtze, where for days huge C-46 planes had gathered.

Japanese troops—numbering 78,000 in Nanking, plus 14,000 sick and wounded—are expected to move out of the city as the main body of Chinese arrives. Gen. Leng Hsin, commanding Chinese forces in the city, ordered the Japanese to move out of the Chinese Military academy, where the 6th army will be quartered.

The advance detail of Americans who came here to arrange for the 6th army's arrival included nine airways communication soldiers and five 10th air force engineers. They were followed by American and Chinese Commandos from bases in western and southern China. Among the communications personnel was Sgt. Robert Murton of Chicago.

The Japanese captured Nanking, China's pre-war capital, in December, 1937, and in an orgy of brutality massacred hundreds of citizens, raped women, and looted storer.

After eight years of domination, Nanking's citizens appear yet unable to realize that they are free, or even to smile. Some sources expect the people to give full vent to their emotions only when the official surrender is signed.

Use of opium spread considerably during the occupation, even among youths, and about 30 per cent of Nanking's people now are using drugs, Kiang Tsung-ching, member of the Chamber of Commerce, said.

BRITAIN DIGS UP A SECRET PACT AS 'FACE SAVER'

Poland an Excuse to Whip Germany, Lanza Says

BY COL. CONRAD H. LANZA

The British and French declarations of war against Germany in the first days of September, 1939, have long been believed to have been inspired by a desire to stop aggression. The instant case was Germany's effort to seize Danzig. Since World War I. Danzig had been an independent city, but under Polish guidance.

Danzig was 80 per cent German, and previously had been part of Germany. Hitler wanted it returned. In addition he had asked for a corridor across the Polish corridor which connected Gydnia to Poland. Germany had a 10 year nonaggression treaty with Poland signed in 1934. Hitler in making his demands stated in 1939 that he did not desire war, but neither did he wish to wait five more years before the return of Danzig to its parent country.

Poles Refuse Consent

Poland refused its consent. In that action she received the backing of Britain and France, who promised to stand by her should trouble develop. It has been charged that the United States urged and approved the British and French action. Until the diplomatic correspondence in this case is made public in its entirety, this can not be corroborated.

The first open action to support Poland directly was made in London on March 31, 1939. It had been brought about by the German annexation of Czechoslovakia, which had occurred just two weeks previously.

Neville Chamberlain, then prime minister of Britain, made his famous declaration in the house of commons, saying:

"In the event of any action which clearly threatened Polish independence, and which the Polish government accordingly considered it vital to resist with their national forces, his majesty's government would feel themselves bound at once to lend the Polish government all the support in their power. They have given the Polish government an assurance to this effect. I may add that the French government has authorized me to make it plain that they stand in the same position in this matter as do his majesty's government."

France Gives Approval

Just what caused the foregoing statement to be issued is not yet known. It appears to have been decided on suddenly. Georges Bonnet, then French foreign minister, in a letter written to the French ambassador at Berlin, on March 31, states that the first he had heard of the British declaration was that very day, when the British ambassador at Paris had called on him and told him. He states his reply, which seems to have been verbal, was:

"The French government will give its entire approval to the declaration which the British government proposes to make."

The British declaration guaranteeing British and French aid to Poland, as read, was applicable against all aggression. It was so understood thrtout the world. In that sense it was generally approved.

Offer Had Strings to It

In spite of the fact that Poland obviously needed aid were it to fight Germany, there was a long delay in arriving at a concrete understanding with Britain and France as to just what the guarantee really meant. For it was not intended to be a promise to fight any aggression. The offer had strings to it.

Not much came of the British guarantee until matters became acute towards the end of August, 1939. Then under pressure of events, a treaty was concluded and signed on Aug. 25 of that month between Britain and Poland. The critical part is article I. This provides:

"Should one of the contracting parties become engaged in hostilities with a European power in consequence of aggression by the latter against that contracting party, the other contracting party will at once give the contracting power engaged in hostilities all the support and assistance in its power."

The language is somewhat involved, but the meaning is clear that defense against aggression was the prime idea and what the British would fight for. In that sense the publication of this treaty received world approval.

Nothing was said for years to challenge the idea that the war started in 1939 by the British and French was primarily for the purpose of protecting Poland against dismemberment and thereby establishing an international principle that right must prevail. The German attack on Poland was considered a high international wrong.

Reds Seize Land

Early in 1945 Russia unilaterally annexed about one-third of Poland. In return for this she promised to support Poland in the annexation of a still larger area to be taken from Germany. The Russian annexations, already carried out, considerably exceeded anything that Germany had demanded in 1939.

This action by Russia led to protests in the British and American press that Russian seizure of Polish soil was as much of a crime as the aggression of Germany had been. Consistency, and the British-Polish treaty quoted above, called for British intervention to aid Poland against the new aggression. The pressure on the British government to do something to back its own promises became strong. It was hard to answer. In fact, it couldn't be satisfactorily answered until the British government on April 5 of this year gave the explanation.

This was a protocol signed on Aug. 25, 1939, simultaneously with the British-Polish treaty and by the same parties. The treaty was made public—given out at once. The protocol was kept secret until this year. It provided that in the British-Polish treaty, "the expression, a European power, employed in the agreement is to be understood as Germany." The guarantee to aid Poland was good only against Germany.

[The Polish-British treaty was made public in a government white paper last April 5 in view of public pressure regarding Russian aggression against Poland. A British blue book published in 1939 on the origins of the war gave the main treaty in full but concealed the secret protocol.]

The British government now made the point that it had never guaranteed Poland against all aggression, but only against German aggression. Never had they said that they would fight to save Poland against Russian aggression. The promise to fight against Germany had been kept, and the contract to do so had been fully executed. No obligation remained to fight any one else for Poland.

Finds Poland an Excuse

Legally the British are right. Morally the British-Polish treaty used the expression "a European power" to mislead the public into a belief that the coming war was one for right as against might. It is now evident that the war was really against Germany. Poland was an excuse. It was a good excuse, and went over with the people. It was not the primary reason.

The result of the war in Europe has been that Germany has indeed been crushed. In its place Russia has become the dominant nation of central Europe. Communism is replacing nazism rather rapidly. Neither of these events was intended in 1939, but that doesn't change the result. The British desire to destroy Germany was won.

United States Naval Bases Planned in Two Oceans

NAVY PROPOSES CHAIN OF BASES IN TWO OCEANS

Asks for Bermuda

Washington, D. C., Sept. 5 (AP)—Rep. Bradley [D., Pa.] today proposed in the house that Great Britain cede Bermuda to the United States in return for lend-lease aid. He stressed the United States now has a large base there, argued that island is of little value to Britain, and said Britain probably would "look with favor" on a transfer.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 5—The navy department today disclosed plans to maintain a chain of nine major fleet bases in the Pacific reaching from Alaska and the mainland to the Philippines, and a string of six fleet bases in the Atlantic.

The nine bases proposed for the Pacific are Kodiak, Alaska, and Adak in the Aleutians; Hawaii; Balboa, the western entrance to the Panama canal; Guam; the Mariana Isles of Saipan and Tinian, considered as one base; Manus in the Admiralty Islands, a British possession; the Bonins and the Volcano Island group as one unit; the Ryukus, and the Philippines.

The six bases proposed for the Atlantic are at Argentia, Newfoundland; Bermuda; Coco Solo, off the Caribbean entrance of the Panama canal; Guantanamo, Cuba; Roosevelt Roads, Puerto Rico, and San Juan, Puerto Rico.

Other Auxiliary Bases

In addition the navy would keep a number of auxiliary bases in both oceans. These would be used as fleet anchorages and air fields. In this group were listed Wake, Midway, Eniwetok, Kwajalein, and Truk.

The announcement of the navy's post-war base plans was made by H. Struve Hensel, assistant secretary of the navy, who just completed a tour of the Pacific in which he studied the base system established by the navy as it advanced toward Japan. His study was begun before the war.

Inclusion of Truk, the strong Jap naval base, among the secondary bases was considered significant as the British have made no secret of hopes that this base would be allotted to the empire.

Navy Limits Number

Hensel said the navy was recommending a comparatively small number of bases in the belief that it would rather keep up a few strategic bases than undertake to spread a more comprehensive chain thruout both oceans.

Hensel outlined the navy's work in building some 400 bases in the Atlantic and Pacific. These ranged, he said, from radio stations sites to vast fleet and aviation establishments, such as Guam with an area three times that of the District of Columbia and a population as large as that of Schenectady, N. Y. Construction materials alone for these 400 bases cost 2 billion dollars, he said.

In the selection of sites, sentimental desire for such islands as Guadalcanal and other islands, which were taken at great cost of American lives, was not considered. He indicated that these islands may be demanded because of their cost in blood.

Urges Strong Defense

Navy Secretary Forrestal said the navy felt it would be far better to maintain a small number of well built fleet bases, which could be defended adequately, than to spread the defenses thin over many bases.

These bases, he said, will cost a lot of money, but the expenditure is absolutely necessary if the United States is to maintain its superiority in the Pacific. He said much of the building done during the war was temporary and permanent construction will be needed.

The navy's recommendations include only the facilities required for naval operations. The navy did not attempt to speak for the army and the army air forces, which will also recommend bases. It is felt that the army bases will cover many, if not all, of the islands, taken by American troops from the enemy.

The navy plan has been referred to the joint chiefs of staff. It is understood an army plan will also be presented to the high command.

RESENTS CHARGE BRITAIN IS NOW A 2D CLASS POWER

LEEDS, Yorkshire, England, Sept. 5 [Reuters]—Ellen Wilkinson, Britain's education minister, today rejected the claim that Britain was a second class power. That charge was made by Prof. Harold J. Laski, chairman of the Labor party executive, in Stockholm last week.

"The most mischievous thing that can be said abroad today is that Britain is a second class power just because our overseas assets are gone," Miss Wilkinson told the conference of Labor party women. "What makes a first class power? Is it the possession of gold and tribute, or of first class organizing brains and high national morale?

"History is full of instances of nations with great material wealth sinking rapidly into obscurity because they did not know how to use their assets and squandered them in the luxury of the few and neglect of the people. No great nation that has used its brains and planned properly has sunk or can sink below its highest level."

2 Girls in Jeep; Rome Riot Flares

Jealousy Blamed

ROME, Sept. 5 (AP)—Jealous Italian youths seized two Italian girls from an American jeep last night and disrobed them. A mob scene followed. It was broken up by allied military police who swung clubs and unleashed police dogs.

Rome newspapers treated the incident humorously and reported there were no casualties among the 2,000 who crowded the Piazza Colonna. The allied soldiers who had been escorting the girls were not identified. Allied authorities withheld comment.

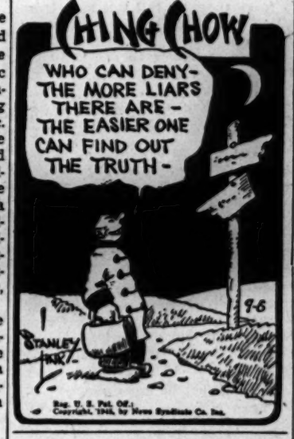
Such outbreaks have become fewer than several months ago, when the newspapers reported the hair of a number of girls was clipped and others were disrobed because they associated with allied soldiers.

'Hate Each Other'

New York, Sept. 5 [Special]—Premier Mussolini was acclaimed by the Italians for a bloodthirsty anti-allied speech in Milan only a short time before he was dragged dead thru the Milan streets and he would be acclaimed again if he miraculously appeared in the role of victor, Capt. Sidney Waugh, a military government officer in the Italian campaign, said today.

Capt. Waugh, who returned recently from Italy, said there was no use attempting to hide the fact that American GIs and Italians hated each other.

If the soldiers of the 5th army received a vote they would "choose to dismember Italy and treat her as the lowliest of the vanquished countries; and that is what she is," Waugh asserted.



CHIANG AND WIFE TOGETHER AGAIN AFTER 14 MONTHS

CHUNGKING, China, Sept. 5 (AP)—Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek and his wife were reunited today after 14 months, setting at rest rumors that they had separated permanently.

Chiang, wearing a long Chinese gown and sun helmet, greeted Mrs. Chiang at an airdrome after she and her party landed in a United States army C-54 transport on the last leg of a journey from New York.

Mrs. Chiang, who wore a western style black and white dress with a floral pattern, smiled and waved to a waiting group of notables, including Mrs. Sun Yat-sen, her sister, former Finance Minister H. H. Kung, her brother-in-law, and War Minister Gen. Chen-cheng. She and her husband were alone for about a minute in a reception room, and then they drove together to the presidential villa. Later Mrs. Chiang attended a dinner given by her husband for soviet Ambassador Appolion Petrov. She had been undergoing treatment for an illness in New York.

FIND KANOYA'S STORES EMPTY AND SHUTTERED

KANOYA, Kyushu Island, Japan, Sept. 5 (AP)—"The goose is gone from the store," remarked the old Japanese civilian with the arm band that identified him as an interpreter.

That is as good a description as any of the effects of the American blockade on this city of some 20,000 persons.

There is nothing in the stores, but the town itself, considering its close proximity to the important kamikaze air base of Kanoya, is remarkable for its lack of damage. It is a silent testimonial to the accuracy of the American bombers, which concentrated on the military installations and laid them waste.

The gray roof tiles on some of the town's buildings are cracked and the bus terminal is partly unroofed, but in the main the tinderbox houses stand as they have for many years past—dejected, impoverished, and ill smelling.

Open drains line the main streets of Kanoya, and shops and stores are shuttered.

Those on the streets were mainly Japanese army and navy men and civilian police. Some of the Japanese bow and speak, some are coldly courteous, and some arrogantly aloof.

JAP BUTCHERY OF PRISONERS BARED IN REPORT

150 Set Afire in Tunnel, then Machine Gunned

BY ROBERT YOUNG
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 5—Punishment of Japanese guilty of war crimes was pledged by State Secretary Byrnes today as the state department disclosed additional incidents of the torture and killing of Americans by the Japanese in a detailed atrocity report.

The report was not made public during the war for fear it would incite the Japanese to further butchery and hinder shipments of relief supplies to allied prisoners. The document told of 240 protests against mistreatment of prisoners in violation of the Geneva convention sent to the Japanese government thru Swiss intermediaries by state department officials.

The protests dealt with the beating, torture and execution of American flyers, the killing of American civilians, the murder of persons captured or surrendering the Philippines on direct orders of Japanese military authorities, and the mistreatment and starvation of prisoners of war.

Matters "To Be Dealt With"

The report said that with the surrender of Japan, the atrocities committed by the Japanese and their violations of the Geneva prisoner of war convention and international law "are matters which will be dealt with by the properly constituted authorities." The state department, the report continued, will continue to make available all information necessary for the prosecution and punishment of Japanese war criminals.

One of the most revolting atrocities disclosed was the massacre, with blazing gasoline, bullets, and bayonets, of 150 American prisoners of war in the Philippines last Dec. 14. Grew sent a strong protest to the Japanese government on May 19, declaring the United States was "profoundly shocked."

Story of Massacre

The details of the massacre, as reported by the state department, were these:

Japanese guards forced the 150 prisoners into air raid shelters, which were tunnels with openings at each end. Guards then dumped buckets of gasoline into the tunnels and set the gasoline on fire. Violent explosions followed. The American victims, enveloped in flames and screaming in agony, attempted to run from the tunnels, only to be mowed down by machine gun fire or attacked with bayonets. To make certain no prisoners remained alive in the tunnels, the Japanese set off charges of dynamite.

About 40 prisoners were able to escape by leaping over a 50 foot cliff onto the beach below, but these were fired upon by Japanese soldiers patrolling the bay and beach.

Many Buried Alive

Many wounded prisoners were buried alive. One American who was recaptured was first tortured on his hands and feet with burning gasoline, then bayonetted until he collapsed. Finally, gasoline was poured over his body and ignited, the Japanese guards watching while his body was consumed.

Another incident involved an American flyer who parachuted from his disabled plane near Aitapi, New Guinea, on March 23, 1944, and was captured by Japanese troops. The flyer was beaten with sticks almost continuously for more than 24 hours. He was then beheaded by a Japanese civilian coolie overseer with six blows of a saber in the presence of a Japanese officer and 15 soldiers.

The state department protest declared: "The loud shouts of joy which emanated from the Japanese troops during the torture of the American flyer indicate the sadistic character of his tormenters and executioners."

At the Santo Tomas internment camp, the Japanese murdered four American civilians, Carroll C. Grinnell, Alfred F. Duggleby, Ernest E. Johnson and Clifford L. Larson, who were interned last Dec. 23. The men were removed from the camp a few days later. Their bodies subsequently were found, together with 10 unidentified corpses, buried in a field near the headquarters of the Japanese military police. The 14 bodies were wired together in groups of a few each.

The report contained many instances of less violent Japanese brutality toward Americans.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 5—Rescue after 40 months in solitary confinement in Japanese prison camps was like a return from another world—from a world of starvation and misery and lonesomeness to a paradise of good food, regular shaves, warm baths and freedom.

That was the story told newsmen today by three American airmen who flew in the historic Doolittle raid on Japan in 1942. They were flown here yesterday for examination at Walter Reed hospital and conferences at the war department on the details of their long imprisonment.

But tired and weakened as they were during the latter part of their years in Jap prisons, their stories revealed, they were still able to trade words with their guards and never ceased to prophesy an American victory to their captors.

Warned of MacArthur

"When President Roosevelt died," said Capt. Charles J. Nielson, "they told us about it right away. Apparently they thought it would break down our morale. But we told them it meant Gen. MacArthur would be President. They were afraid of him. They didn't have much more to say about that."

Capt. Nielson is from Hyrum, Utah. Two of those rescued with him, who were interviewed today, are Capt. Robert L. Hite of Earth, Tex., and Sgt. Jacob D. Deshazer of Salem, Ore. A fourth hero, rescued with them, was Lt. George Barr, formerly of Queens, N. Y. He was left behind in China, being too sick from beri-beri to be moved.

These four are possibly the sole survivors of the eight who were captured after taking part in the famed mission under Lt. Gen. Doolittle on April 18, 1942, from the aircraft carrier Hornet. Only three of the 80 flyers are unaccounted for.

Two Killed in Crash

These are Lieutenants William G. Farrow, Washington, D. C.; Dean E. Hallmark, Dallas, Tex., and Sgt. Harold A Spatz, Lebo, Kas. Two others previously reported as missing in action are now known to be dead. They are Sgt. William J. Dieter, Tule Lake, Cal., and Corp. Donald F. Fitzmaurice, Lincoln, Neb. Both were in Nielson's crew and were killed in the crash landing in the sea.

In the war department conference room the three rescued flyers spoke slowly in voices that could scarcely be heard.

Without show of emotion they told of being beaten by bamboo rods and slapped by Jap officers seeking to force them to tell the base from which the first Tokyo attack was launched.

"Were you ever threatened with death?" they were asked.

"O, sure," Capt. Hite replied, coolly. "They were always saying they were going to chop our heads off."

The three are reported to be setting some sort of a record for consuming filet mignon steaks and other dishes at the hospital. They also have drawn their back pay, amounting to $8,832 for Nielson, $7,547 for Hite, and $5,571 for Deshazer. Nielson and Hite were lieutenants until this morning, when they received their captain's bars from Lt. Gen. Eaker, deputy United States air commander. Deshazer received another stripe, raising him from corporal to sergeant.

Tried by Japanese

Taken prisoner the day after the attack, they were flown with the other captured raiders to Tokyo where, after brutal questioning, all eight were removed to Shanghai for trial before a Japanese court. The hearing, held Aug. 28, 1942, was conducted entirely in Japanese with their interpreter forbidden to translate for them.

This was the last time Farrow, Hallmark, and Spatz were seen by their comrades. On Oct. 15, the remaining five were brought out of their cells to a heavily guarded courtroom and told they had been sentenced to death for killing innocent Japanese. However, the judge continued, "by gracious consent of the Japanese emperor," their sentences had been reduced to life imprisonment.

They remained in Shanghai until April 17, 1943, then were removed to Nanking and later to Peiping, where they were rescued by a parachute team.

pital and slapped them and kicked their ulcered legs.

"That was a trick of the Koreans, to kick or hit any wound on a prisoner," Smith said.

Often Outwitted Japs

Ensign John M. Hamill, Tulsa, Okla., said a Korean guard became enraged at an American soldier when the latter miscounted the number of men in a truck and hurled a bamboo stick "like a spear into his face and inflicted a nasty cut above and below his eye."

The prisoners said they continuously outwitted the Japanese and secretly kept radio sets to get news of the outside world.

A group of them were being transferred to Bangkok when they learned of the end of the war. They said they had a radio hidden in the baggage of the Japanese commander. After learning of the surrender they asked the Japanese commander for new batteries for the set.

They made the trip from Burma to Bangkok in open coal cars. At the Bangkok station an Australian who acted as an interpreter spoke to a Japanese officer and then came back and told his companions:

"Gentlemen, I have just been informed by the Japanese that the war is over."

The prisoners said they let out a cheer and the British men sang "God Save the King."

Japs Bewildered at Celebration

The Japanese, they said, appeared bewildered and stunned as the allied prisoners celebrated.

Lt. Roy E. Stensland, Salinas, Cal., said the 131st regiment was captured March 8, 1942, on Java after the Dutch commander capitulated. He estimated 400 men were captured and said 64 died in the prison camp he was in.

"Our morale never got low," Stensland said. "We griped a lot, but we kept our sense of humor. The Japs gave us no medical supplies, but there was a Dutch doctor who saved a lot of our boys with only the tools of his trade. He had a scalpel, a stethoscope, and a little mallet to test reflexes.

Many Develop Ulcers

"Many of the men developed tropical ulcers, especially on the legs, from malnutrition. It was necessary to hold down the patient while the doctor cut away the infected flesh, sometimes to the bone. It was tough, but it saved lives. In the rainy season the men died like flies of malnutrition, dysentery, and other diseases, but there were not many Americans among them.

"Our guards were Koreans, ignorant, cruel men, who, if you failed to salute them, required us to stand at attention while they slapped us. I was kicked by them.

"For minor infractons we were required to stand for hours in the sun without a hat. The most inhuman punishment I saw was when a Dutch soldier was forced to kneel with a stick in the bend of his knees, then squat far back on his heels. If he eased his position he was beaten until he resumed the posture. When he fainted he was kicked and water poured on him and he was compelled to resume the position. This treatment continued for seven hours."

Jap Torturers Face Trial by U. S. Army Courts Martial

BY ARTHUR VEYSEY
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

YOKOHAMA, Japan, Sept. 5—Thick dossiers are being compiled by war crimes officers, the first step in bringing to justice the Japanese responsible for starting the war and for barbarous treatment of allied prisoners.

All recovered prisoners, military and civilian, who are going from Japan directly to the United States are being questioned and are submitting affidavits which may lead to the arrest and conviction of war criminals.

Lt. Gen. R. L. Eichelberger, commander of the 8th army which is charged with the occupation of northern Japan, said today that trials for war criminals will be conducted as regular courts martial. The evidence, he said, will be delivered to Gen. MacArthur's headquarters.

Prisoners at Trials

Lt. Col. Wilmot T. Baugim, Harlingen, Tex., acting judge advocate for the supreme commander here, said that many of the former prisoners have volunteered to remain in Japan until the guards who beat, tortured and starved them are brought to trial.

Whether Gen. Hideki Tojo, Japanese prime minister responsible for Pearl Harbor, will be tried as a war criminal depends upon pending investigations.

Former prisoners who are being sent home via Manila or the Marianas or Okinawa will be questioned there for information concerning war crimes.

1,707 More Are Freed

The fast pace of liberating long held allied prisoners of war continued, with 1,707 more freed today and 600 more due from the Hamamatsu-Niigata areas. The total liberated thru today was 3,996. The 8th army has released 27 per cent of all prisoner personnel in its area in northern Honshu.

[A New Delhi, India, broadcast quoted a Japanese news agency report as saying that 28,000 allied prisoners from 21 camps in Japan would assemble at Yokohama and five other ports during the next six days to sail for home.]

New Prison Camp Found

CHUNGKING, China, Sept. 5 (AP)—A new internment camp approximately 90 miles north of Mukden, where 31 Americans and several Canadians have been confined, has been located and a field processing team in Mukden is arranging contact with the internees, headquarters of Lt. Gen. Wedemeyer, United States commander in China, announced today.

One of the American officers at Camp Hoten in Mukden is Lt. Ray Harrelson of Crossville, Ala., an observation pilot who was captured in the Philippines April 9, 1942. When Capt. [late Lt. Col.] Edwin Dyess made good an escape from Davao April 4, 1943, Harrelson had been sleeping in the bunk next to him, and his cot concealed the tools Dyess had used. Dyess, who returned to the United States in 1943 and was first to tell first hand the horrors of the Bataan death march, died later in a plane crash on the west coast.

TRIBUNE FILES FOR REHEARING OF AP DECISION

Petition Cites Basic Rights Under Constitution

Washington, D. C., Sept. 5 [Special]—Shall any citizen of the United States be forced to speak when he wishes to remain silent? Shall business men be forced to deal with persons they wish to avoid? Shall manufacturers be permitted to sell their goods to only one outlet in each community?

These questions were raised in a petition filed today in the United States Supreme court in Washington by the Tribune company and Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE TRIBUNE. The petition was prepared by the Chicago law firm of Kirkland, Fleming, Green, Martin and Ellis.

The petition sought a rehearing of the Supreme court's 5 to 3 decision which held that the Associated Press, a coöperative news gathering organization with more than 1,200 members, is violating the Sherman anti-trust act.

Case Instigated by Biddle

This is the case which was instigated by former Atty. Gen. Francis Biddle and other New Dealers after the AP members rejected, by a vote of 684 to 287, an application of Marshall Field III. for an AP franchise for his newspaper in Chicago. In its judgment, handed down June 18, the Supreme court in effect ordered the AP to remove membership restrictions against newspapers competing with AP member papers.

Instead of following the historic procedure of giving the AP a trial, in which witnesses could be heard and cross-examined and all the facts explored, the government proceeded by filing a civil suit for an injunction and moved for "summary judgment," or a verdict without trial.

The motion was granted by a special three-judge district court in New York, with one judge dissenting, which heard evidence submitted in the form of affidavits. This court held that the AP by-laws unlawfully restricted admission to AP membership, but rejected the government's charge that AP was a monopoly.

AP and Tribune Appeal

The AP then appealed to the Supreme court. A separate appeal was filed by the Tribune company, one of the defendants.

While popular interest in the case has been limited, in large measure, to whether Field gets an AP franchise in Chicago, the AP and THE TRIBUNE fought the case on a broader issue—the first amendment to the Constitution, which guarantees freedom of speech, of the press, and of religion.

They cited numerous court decisions that every American citizen has a right to speak or to remain silent, to communicate his ideas or not to communicate them, without government interference, unless there is a clear and present danger of bringing about a substantial evil, a threat to our free institutions.

Monopoly Theory Blasted

From the beginning of the AP case, the defendants were handicapped by the fact that the government attorneys trotted out a series of theories of the law. One of these theories was that the AP was a monopoly. When the defense blasted this the government advanced the notion that the AP was, in effect, a public utility, because it dealt in news reports, which are vital to the public interest.

This theory of the law was adopted by the District court. When the case reached the Supreme court, however, the majority of the court repudiated the public utility theory and undertook to decide the issue under the ordinary rules, as if the AP was a distributor of steel, or peanuts, or roses. Justice Frankfurter filed a separate opinion in which he clung to the public utility theory.

The Supreme court used its majority opinion as a vehicle to say that the newspaper publishers were asking for special privileges not available to ordinary citizens.

No Exemption Advocated

This charge was denied emphatically today in The Tribune company's petition for a rehearing, which said:

"No exemption or special privilege of the publishers or of the press was or is advocated by us. The argument applies to all citizens—all are endowed with the right to communicate or not to communicate their ideas, information, or thoughts.

"The majority [of the Supreme court] says that our position would 'degrade the clear and present danger doctrine,' whereas, in fact, our position has suffered debasement thru misapprehension."

In simpler language, this means that the Tribune company contends the Supreme court misunderstood its argument, and as a result of the misunderstanding, made the wrong decision in the case. For the benefit of the court, the Tribune's petition restated its argument on constitutional grounds. Stripped of legal terms, this runs as follows:

AP "Forced to Speak"

The Supreme court, by its judgment, has ordered the AP to furnish its information, thoughts, and ideas to all those who might apply for them. This means the AP is being forced to speak when it would remain silent, even tho the government has not shown there is a clear and present danger of bringing about a substantial evil.

In the ordinary Sherman act case, the court might cancel restraints on commerce which it found to be unreasonable, or might force a union of defendants to dissolve their organization. But the court, in the AP case, went much further. It forces the AP to communicate its information [news reports] to any newspaper approved by the district court of New York.

Point Emphasized by Roberts

This is the point emphasized by Justice Roberts in his dissenting opinion, where he said the court's decree will have the effect of requiring the 1,200 newspaper members of the AP to operate "under the tutelage" of the court. Justice Roberts also described the decree as "a first step in the shackling of the press."

The Tribune petition for a rehearing asserts that the fact that the AP is a commercial enterprise makes no difference in its rights under the constitution.

"The publisher as well as the preacher or the ordinary citizen enjoys the right of speaking or remaining silent for any reason or for no reason in the absence of some 'clear and present danger' as defined in the prior decisions of this court," the petition said.

Second Main Point

The second main point of THE TRIBUNE's petition involves the Supreme court's repudiation of the public utility theory and its handling of the case as if it were an ordinary anti-trust action. When the court did this, the petition charges, it made two errors: [1] It mistakenly held that the district court had found the AP's restrictive contracts to be unreasonable, and [2] It undertook to assert, on its own hook, that the AP's by-laws would have an unreasonable effect in the future.

In layman's language, the public utility theory of the case is as follows:

If the AP is a public utility, and must sell its news to all comers, as a gas and light company sells its products, then any and all restrictions on the sale of the AP's products might be held to be illegal.

Some Limits Permitted

However, when the Supreme court rejected the public utility theory, and dealt with the AP as if it were an ordinary merchandiser, the court was obligated to determine whether the AP's restrictive contracts were unreasonable and unduly hampered competition, the petition asserts. Not all restrictive contracts are illegal; a vacuum cleaner company, for example, may limit its outlets to one in each community.

In the AP case, the petition charged, the court proceeded on the erroneous assumption that the lower court had found the AP's contracts to have an "unreasonable" effect on trade and commerce. For example, the Supreme court quoted the district court as saying that the AP by-laws contained provisions designed to "stifle" competition.

In fact, said the Tribune petition, the lower court never used the word "stifle" or any word of similar import; it never determined that the AP rules were unreasonable as applied to ordinary merchandise. Under the lower court's "public utility" theory it was unnecessary to do so.

"Misunderstanding" Cited

But under the Supreme court's theory that the AP is an ordinary merchandiser, it was necessary to determine the "unreasonableness," if any, and this was done, the petition contended, by misunderstanding and misapplying the findings of the lower court.

"It is unprecedented for this court to depart from the formal findings of fact," said the petition.

In addition, the petition charged that the court took the extraordinary action of holding that AP's by-laws "necessarily" will have an unlawful effect in the future, altho the court was unwilling and apparently unable to find that the by-laws had an unlawful effect in the past.

Conclusions are Questioned

On this point the petition commented:

"It is difficult to understand how any court, trying facts, could conclude that restrictions not found to have had unlawful effects for 44 years in the past would 'necessarily' have unlawful effects in the future. Without overwhelming expert evidence, no trier of facts would do so.

"There is no such overwhelming expert testimony in this case—the testimony is all to the contrary; this court is not sitting as a trier of facts; and finally, if there were such expert testimony, it could not in any event be taken as admitted or disputed on motion for summary judgment.

"We respectfully submit therefore that the majority [of the court] has, without supporting evidence, determined the future effects of the restrictions in opposition to the experience of the past and in contradiction of sworn testimony."

Rear Admirals of the Air in Conference

Plan Training

Five flying rear admirals, all decorated veterans of World War II., yesterday opened a conference at the Glenview naval air station to determine how many pilots the navy will need in peace time, and how they shall be trained.

The conference was called by Rear Adm. Charles A. Pownall, chief of naval air training, who flew here from his Pensacola, Fla., headquarters. Others in attendance are Rear Adm. Ralph E. Davison, chief of naval air operational training; Rear Adm. Joseph J. Clark, chief of naval air intermediate training; Rear Adm. Felix B. Stump, chief of naval air technical training, and Rear Adm. O. B. Hardison, chief of the naval air primary training command, with headquarters at Glenview.

Recommendations of the conference will be transmitted to Washington for study in final formulation of the peace time program.

100 PINUP GIRLS AT $4,680 A YEAR STIR WAC WRATH

BY ANNE BRUYERE
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

PARIS, Sept. 5—WACs, army nurses and Red Cross girls angrily protested today when they learned 100 "fresh, young unspoiled" girls were here from New York with $4,680 a year contracts to take part in show units for soldiers waiting redeployment or scheduled for occupation duty.

Blue eyed, blonde Sgt. Harriet Landon, 27, formerly a professor in the Jack and Jill Players and a graduate of Northwestern university, complained: "This is the biggest slap we've had yet. We WACs along with Red Cross girls worked 12 and 15 hours daily since D-day putting on sketches and plays to entertain GIs but nobody handed us fat contracts or put planes at our disposal or gave us luxurious two room apartments with private baths in first class hotels and chateaux.

Called "Jobless Hoofers"

"The girls who come here as 'civilian technicians' are nothing but jobless Broadway hoofers nobody has heard of. Hundreds of WACs who stood by the Yanks all thru the danger know more about acting than they do. Why not give them a break or does the fact they did become WACs automatically put them out of the highly paid 'freshness, youth and unspoiled sweetness' class?"

GI Backs Turned

Among the allegedly "fresher, younger, and less spoiled American girls" is Jean H. Arnold of San Francisco.

"We got to Camp Shanks," she conceded, "and people started acting funny. We can't understand it. The GIs seemed to like us at first, then turned their backs."

Roberta Beatty, housemother and chaperone to a group of unspoiled youth and beauty, said: "We were all in New York when the selections were being made for these jobs. We were picked out by stage actress Peggy Wood and Maj. Paul Baker of the ETO special services. The girls felt it would be better to come over here to gain valuable theater experience than sit around back home."

QUARRELS LED TO DEFEAT, SAYS TOKYO PAPER

TOKYO, Sept. 6 [Thursday]—(AP)—The Tokyo newspaper Asahi said today a struggle between the army and navy and disputes between cabinet militarists over control of the country were instrumental in causing Japan's defeat.

The sharp article said remnants of a feudal society based on a policy of "let the people obey, but don't let them know" had existed "until today." It prevented full utilization of the strength of the nation's populace, Asahi added. Asahi said the army and navy fought over materials and labor equipment and heavily patronized the black markets in a race to equip their own services. "As a result, our munitions production power was cut in two."

It was the first time a Japanese newspaper had dared criticize either of the military services since the Manchurian incident in September, 1931. Asahi said even the diet often did not know whether to take orders from the cabinet or from the militarists who stood behind it.

BRITISH REGAIN OLD DESTROYER AT YOKOSUKA

YOKOSUKA, Japan, Sept. 5 [Reuters]—The 25 year old British destroyer Thracian which was lost to the Japanese at Hong Kong in December, 1941, was recommissioned today. The Thracian was found among surrendered ships in Yokosuka naval base when the allies landed here. She was reported scuttled when Hongkong fell, but the Japanese salvaged her. She has been used extensively in the war in Japanese and Pacific island waters, as indicated by her charts.

The Japanese had given the Thracian a powerful set of torpedo tubes amidships and a large quantity of equipment which suggests either a special mission against the allied fleet or experimental work. Except for superficial damage she was in perfect mechanical order.

JAPS 'FINISHED' IN JUNE, PREMIER ADMITS TO DIET

Loss of Okinawa Called a 'Grave Turn'

5 Million Casualties

San Francisco, Cal., Sept. 5 (AP)—Tokyo radio said tonight that Japan's army and navy casualties in the war totaled 5,085,000, but that Japan ended the war with an army of 5,000,000, as compared with 1,900,000 at the beginning. Tokyo, quoting a report to the Japanese diet, said 65 per cent of the 350,000 army dead "preferred death to dishonor," indicating they killed themselves. The navy's 160,278 dead included 2,065 members of the "special attack [suicide] corps."

BY ROBERT CROMIE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

TOKYO, Sept. 5—Japan's military situation by May and June this year was "disastrously undermined" and took a grave turn when Okinawa fell, Premier Prince Higashi-Kuni told the 88th session of the imperial diet today in giving a report on the war.

Losses of naval and aerial strength were so "enormous" as to "obstruct seriously further prosecution of a modern war," he said.

On the allied side, the premier said the allies' supplies were available in great quantities and those were ever on the increase especially since the European war ended. Allied air raids burned down 2,200,000 houses and 10,000,000 people became "war sufferers."

Then in August came the twin disasters—the use of the atomic bomb and the entry of Russia into the war.

Threatened Entire Population

"The ruins of Hiroshima and Nagasaki are indeed too ghastly to look upon," the premier said. "The terrific weapon was likely to result in obliteration of the Japanese people and lead to the total extinction of human civilization. Furthermore, the soviet union suddenly declared war on Japan, forcing us into the worse international situation."

With the Potsdam declaration already issued, the premier said Japan found herself at the crossroads, "whether to hope against hope in the desperate struggle involving the annihilation of 100,000,000 people or to stop fighting." The emperor decided to accept the terms.

Higashi-Kuni blamed the nation for its present plight, saying: "All we can do is to appeal to his imperial magnanimity to pardon our unpardonable stupidity and incompetence."

The premier in outlining the causes for Japan's defeat said that after the withdrawal of Japanese forces from Guadalcanal, the "war situation began to develop not always in our favor."

Marianas a Serious Loss

Then came the loss of the Marianas and intensified air raids on Japan. These circumstances, the premier said, combined to seriously curtail marine transportation and production of military supplies, as well as to bring the country to the verge of impoverishment.

By last May the carrying capacity of the merchant fleet had dwindled to about one-fourth of what it was at the beginning of the war. Scarcity of liquid fuels also cut shipping efficiency while the loss of Okinawa increased the striking power of the allied air forces and made communications with the Chinese continent "extremely hazardous."

Similarly, the carrying capacity of the railroads thru the loss of rolling stock and other equipment was cut to less than one-half compared with last year.

Huge Damage to Plants

Loss of coal supplies and other basic raw materials plus huge damage to plants from aerial bombing cut steel production to less than one-fourth the pre-war figure.

Aircraft figures given the diet included:

Army planes produced during the war, 32,500, plus 3,000 available at the beginning of the war; army plane losses, 25,500; army planes left, 10,000.

Navy planes produced during the war, 30,295, plus 1,200 on hand; navy plane losses, 25,609; navy planes left, 5,886.

The premier paid tribute to Japanese killed in the war, including the "special attack corps [kamikazi] who died heroic deaths as defenders of the empire."

After mentioning that allied forces were already stationed in Japan and urging that all terms of the Potsdam declaration be fulfilled "manfully and faithfully," the premier said:

The premier pledged restoration of freedom of speech and freedom of the press, pledged governmental support toward finding jobs for discharged soldiers and workers, as well as to aiding war sufferers whether civilian or military.

$35,000 Fire in Hammond

Had 50 Employes

Fire destroyed the two story plant of the Goodwill Industries at 610 Indiana st., Hammond, Ind., last night, causing a loss of $35,000. The factory employed 50 handicapped persons, who will be transferred to the Goodwill plant in Gary, said Chauncey Beeman, executive director of the organization in the Calumet area. The fire resulted in a 4-11 alarm and tied up street traffic in the neighborhood.

OPINION DIVIDED OVER CHRISTIAN ADVISER OF JAPS

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS

An Associated Press dispatch from Tokyo disclosing that Dr. Toyohiko Kagawa, Princeton seminary educated Japanese evangelist, had been named one of five civilian advisers to Premier Prince Higashi-Kuni, adds another complication to the already great confusion in American Christian leaders' minds concerning Dr. Kagawa, whom some Americans had come to regard as possessing extraordinary sanctity.

After an extensive buildup by the church press, Dr. Kagawa received an almost unparalleled reception in 1935 from this country's Protestant leaders. Six thousand heard him in one day in various meetings in Chicago. The Conference of Women's Clubs Presidents and Program Chairmen gave him its first distinguished service award of $500.

Cleared by F. D. R.

Dr. Kagawa's entry into the United States was obtained thru intervention by President Roosevelt. Blocked at San Francisco by immigration authorities because the Christian evangelist suffered from trachoma, a highly infectious eye disease, he was saved by the White House. His seven months' preaching tour was directed principally to advocating consumers' coöperatives as the answer to communism. Dr. Norman Richardson of the McCormick Theological seminary called the theme of his preaching "the democracy of the stomach."

Members of the Conference of Methodist Laymen were suspicious of the true meaning of the visitor's presence and of the "long build-up of the church press" looking toward Dr. Kagawa's visit. Tho this group did not issue any formal statement, members reiterated their individual feelings against the "widespread Japanese collectivist movement" he had founded.

During the last year, Dr. Kagawa's voice reportedly was heard making anti-American propaganda broadcasts by short wave listening posts.

Denounced U. S. "Cruelty"

Last July, in broadcasts beamed to this country, Dr. Kagawa, in English accused the United States of "horrible cruelty" and argued that "if America has not lost the spirit of Washington and Lincoln, her leaders will cease the cruel perfidy of this war against Japan."

American religious leaders remain puzzled. None doubted his Japanese following, relatively comparable in Japan with that of Mohandas K. Gandhi in India, but few top flight Christian leaders could be found today who would venture an opinion as to what his stature will ultimately be found to be as an international Christian figure.

PROMISE SWIFT RELEASE OF MEN IN PACIFIC FLEET

Navy Will Use Carriers to Bring Tars Home

BY HAROLD SMITH
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

PACIFIC FLEET HDQ., Guam, Sept. 5 — Demobilization of naval personnel as swiftly as shipping will permit and early conversion of Pacific areas to the paths of peace were promised by a fleet headquarters spokesman here today.

Plans for returning navy men to civilian life were well under way when the war ended, the spokesman said. Even before the navy point system was announced the "most deserving" 10 per cent of the 7th fleet's veterans were put ashore in the Philippines before the fleet departed for the Korean occupation.

But there was a gloomy note for homeward bound sailors. It was made clear that the occupation of Japan is requiring most of the available shipping, a condition that is unlikely to change in the near future.

Some Already on Way Home

It was revealed also that as soon as Japan's surrender appeared a certainty the navy ordered cessation of all but necessary post-war construction in the Pacific. Another measure to lighten the burden on shipping was the decision to halt westbound food shipments until existing stock piles out here are depleted.

Unneeded war vessels will help return high point veterans to the United States, it was announced. In fact, some warships already are on their way back with men scheduled for early release. Escort carriers will serve as demobilization transports, it was announced.

The navy's policy is that the return of its men to civilian life is an economic as well as a moral obligation, it was explained. Their early return will facilitate our national return to peace time pursuits and also will reduce the burden on the taxpayer, the spokesman pointed out. Under naval roll back plans some equipment may be returned to the United States. But there are large quantities of heavy machinery either too worn or too necessary for reshipment, it was indicated.

Air Service Requirements Lessen

The eventual fate of the immense naval air transport service is not yet forseeable, according to the spokesman. Both the army and the navy will continue to require extensive air facilities, but their requirements will lessen in proportion to the shrinkage of our forces overseas.

The spokesman said that high naval officials, including Fleet Adm. Nimitz, favor the maximum possible development of American world air routes. Because the armed forces took over many civilian air fields in war time they are likely to share their peace time air harbors with commercial operators of trans-Pacific lines, he said.

Even before the war Pan-American Air Lines used naval landing facilities at Wake, Midway, and Guam, and that privilege presumably will be granted any private operator flying an American world route, it was predicted. Wake soon is to be reactivated as an air base, it was disclosed.

F. D. R. Picture in Rubbish Heap

Found in Debris

Yesterday, less than five months after the death of Franklin L. Roosevelt, Chicago Communists crumpled an eight foot square picture of the late President, the man they hailed as benefactor and idol, and threw it on a rubbish heap in a loop alley.

The picture, depicting Mr. Roosevelt with a three foot long cigaret holder dangling from his smiling mouth, was lying broken and torn in a pile of empty bottles, sweepings, broken glass, and other debris, alongside the Northwestern building, 208 N. Wells st., in room 201 of which the Communist Political association has its office.

In the hallway outside the office was an equally large picture of former Prime Minister Churchill, complete with cigar, tipped on its side. Within the office a picture of Premier Stalin was prominently displayed against a wall.

A woman with bright blonde hair, who identified herself as financial secretary of the association's Illinois-Indiana district but who refused to give her name, shrugged her shoulders and observed that times have changed.

"Sure we threw it on the dump," she said. "We had to throw it some place. We had the three big pictures made for a big rally at the Stadium."

Reveals Japs Made Peace Bids to China Late in '44

CHUNGKING, China, Sept. 5 (AP)—Information Minister K. C. Wu said today that Japan had made many peace overtures to China thru various channels in the latter part of 1944, but each was quickly rejected. He said this fact demonstrated that past criticism that China had no will to fight and might go out of the war had been unfair and unjust.

PALESTINE TALK BY ARABIAN KING AND F. D. R. TOLD

CAIRO, Egypt, Sept. 5 (AP)—King Ibn Saud of Saudi Arabia swore to President Roosevelt that he and all his sons would fight until death if Palestine were given to the Jews and that he would declare war on the Zionists and those who help them, the Egyptian newspaper Al Mokatam said today.

Disclosing that the Palestine question would be discussed at current middle east talks in London, the newspaper said "We can now reveal exactly the conversation between King Ibn Saud and the late President Roosevelt when they met shortly before the President died."

Mr. Roosevelt and Ibn Saud met on a United States war ship on the Suez canal following the Yalta conference last February. Al Mokatam said:

"Ibn Saud swore to the President that he would fight until he and all his sons were killed if Palestine were given to the Jews. He also said that does not mean he doesn't like Jews, but owing to his belief that Zionist aims are unjust. He also told the President that he would declare war on the Zionists and those who help them if Palestine is given to the Jews. He then put his hand on the President's hands and asked him to pledge that he would not support the Jews in Palestine and the President did."

Restrictions on Civilian Flying Ended in West

SHOVEL BRIGADES BEGIN REPAIR OF DAMAGED JAPAN

BY DONALD STARR
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

YOKOHAMA, Japan, Sept. 5—The war time regimentation of every Japanese civilian began to pay dividends in the restoration of bomb leveled sections of Tokyo today. Men, women, and children picked up crude tools, walked into the streets, and started filling in bomb shelters. Work projects developed rapidly thru "neighborhood associations."

On a 10 mile stretch of the Yokohama-Tokyo highway neighborhood groups were tearing timber out of air raid shelters, filling the holes with dirt, and replacing stone blocks in the sidewalks.

Women, some with babies strapped to their backs, toiled alongside the men, none of whom leaned on their shovels. They continued to shovel while a convoy of Americans passed thru, tho they did glance over their shoulders.

Material Sorted for Salvage

Neighborhood residents are shoveling rubble and dirt into holes in the streets which have been allowed to deteriorate during the war.

Thru all the devastated areas neat piles of salvageable materials stand as a reminder that the Japanese waste nothing. Material is sorted according to its usefulness and placed in different piles according to size. Use is made of all this material by these frugal people who have built shanty towns in the ruins of the industrial districts. Some of their new homes are complete even to large, glass windows expertly set into galvanized iron.

No Bulldozers Available

Never was a nation's dependence on manual labor more evident than in the attempts to repair the damage wrought by B-29s. The damage is said to compare in extent to that suffered in the 1923 earthquake. Not one machine of any kind was in evidence.

Maj. Gen. Hugh J. Casey, army chief engineer, said that when he requested two small bulldozers and two portable cranes to be at Atsugi air field the first day of our landing last week the Japanese were unable to deliver them. The equipment was not available in the Tokyo district.

This situation gave rise to a curious spectacle when American army bulldozers entered the areas in which the Japanese were working to clear the ground for bivouacs. Japanese strolling along the street quickly formed "sidewalk superintendent" groups.

Bunker Hill, Ind., Naval Station to Close by Dec. 1

Washington, D. C., Sept. 5 (AP)—The Bunker Hill [Ind.] naval training station will be closed by Dec. 1. In announcing this today, Rep. Harness [R., Ind.] said the auxiliary fields will be returned to their owners by then.

HOUSE RECEIVES 2 BILLS FOR QUIZ OF PEARL HARBOR

overwhelming in favor of the investigation and passage of the Ferguson-Harness resolution was conceded as soon as it can be brought to the floor.

Rep. Rich [R., Pa.] was applauded when he criticized President Truman for attempting to thrust responsibility upon the people of the nation for unpreparedness at Pearl Harbor. Mr. Truman last week said he thought "the policy pursued by the whole country" was as much to blame as any official for the vulnerability to attack of the army and navy in Hawaii.

"The people back home didn't know what was going on," said Rich, "and you can't put the blame on them. We had a great army and navy and responsible men in the government supposed to be looking after the interests of the nation. Neither congress nor the people will accept responsibility for the affair and the responsibility must be fixed without suppression of a single detail."

Sen. Taft [R., O.] predicted early approval of the investigation resolution despite any opposition the administration may decide to offer.

PRATT RIPS REPORT

New York, Sept. 5 (AP)—Adm. William V. Pratt, U. S. N., retired, a former chief of naval operations and a former commander in chief of the Pacific fleet, says in an article in Newsweek magazine that the naval court of inquiry report into the Pearl Harbor disaster was a "whitewash."

"It is full of holes," Adm. Pratt said. "There was too much whitewash in the report, too much detail spent in explanation of why the attack was inevitable and the results unavoidable, and too little said about the steps which should have been taken at least to mitigate the results of the attack, even if it was inevitable."

"By the end of November, 1941," Adm. Pratt said, "Adm. Stark [then chief of naval operations] must have known war was inevitable and that the Japs always started war with a surprise attack.

"Common sense should have told him that our sea power must be a first objective, if the Jap Pacific campaigns were to succeed. He knew what the Japs had done at Port Arthur in 1904.

"In the critical period Stark should have accepted the obligations of his office and ordered Rear Adm. Kimmel [then commander in chief of the Pacific fleet] and the fleet to leave Pearl Harbor and take a position in readiness, regardless of whose toes he trod on.

"If Kimmel failed to obey, Stark should have removed him. A hard boiled and forthright leader would have done so."

"Bad as the case against . . . Kimmel may be," Pratt said, "that against . . . Stark is worse."

IDEA OF SINGLE DEPARTMENT OF DEFENSE HAILED

Compared to Setup Under MacArthur

YOKOHAMA, Sept. 5 (AP)—American army, navy and air force men want a single department of national defense.

This was the impression obtained by a majority of a special investigating committee which toured every war theater and interviewed all top commanders of all services.

A committee proposal for a new defense organization—in which some enthusiasts see Generals MacArthur and Eisenhower in top roles—has been shelved since February.

The recommendation of generals and admirals is designed to insure that if there is another war there will be no more Pearl Harbors, Wake Islands or Bataans.

Favored by Airmen

Airmen who initially sought an independent air force largely abandoned that proposal in favor of a single defense department. The headquarters staff of the army air forces for two years has been making reorganization studies.

Eighteen months ago the joint chiefs of staff, prodded by airmen and other army progressives, appointed a special investigating committee to interview army, navy and air forces commanders in every theater on whether America should have a single department of national defense.

Visited Both Theaters

The committee was drawn from each service—Maj. Gen. William F. Tompkins, chief of the special plans division, war department general staff; Lt. Gen. Harold L. George, who built the air transport command, and Adm. Lawrence B. Richardson, president of the navy general board and former commander in chief of the Pacific fleet.

The committee went first to the European theater in October and November of 1944, then to the Pacific in late November. It interviewed all commanders, returned to Washington and presented its report to the joint chiefs of staff.

Every senior commander in the European, Mediterranean and Pacific war areas, the committee reported, agreed there should be a single department of national defense.

Drawing upon recommendations by theater commanders, the committee evolved an organization plan and asked the joint chiefs of staff to put it in the form of legislation for presentation to congress. The committee also asked the staff chiefs for authority to draw up a defense regulation immediately.

Adm. Richardson prepared a minority report in which he recommended the setup be left unchanged, with war and navy departments under separate command.

The majority plan called for the President to name a civilian secretary of national defense over a department that would include a civilian undersecretary for production and procurement. Heads of the three services would function as the joint chiefs of staff do now.

The commander of the armed services—a post for which Eisenhower often has been suggested—under the defense secretary would have a general staff which would control the three separate organizations—the army, navy, and air forces.

Responsible for Supply

Services of supply would handle problems common to all three arms. Each service would be responsible for its peculiar supply problems.

Each theater commander also would have separate army, navy, and air arms.

When the report was presented to the joint chiefs of staff, one, Adm. Ernest King, voted not to consider it, committeemen said. The chiefs act only unanimously, so the report was shelved.

MacArthur's Southwest Pacific command was pointed to by the committee as an example of how the proposed setup would work in peace and war. MacArthur has in effect operated a single department of national defense with air, ground, and naval commanders of equal authority under him.

On 88 amphibious operations, said the committee, MacArthur lost fewer than 100 men on beaches which had been cleared by the air force under his command.

Fourth Such Award

Washington, D. C., Sept. 5 (AP)—Harry L. Hopkins, long time White House aid, received the distinguished service medal from President Truman today for a "selfless, courageous, and objective contribution to the war effort."

In the same ceremony, which took place in the rose garden of the White House, a similar medal was awarded to Howard Bruce of Elk Ridge, Md., for his services to the war department, particularly as director of material of the army service forces.

The ceremony, which brought to a total of four civilians to receive the distinguished service medal, was witnessed by War Secretary Stimson, Navy Secretary Forrestal, Adm. Leahy, the President's chief of staff; Gen. Marshall, chief of staff for the war department, and Adm. King, chief of naval operations.

The medal previously was awarded to Stephen Early, former Presidential press secretary, and James F. Byrnes, now secretary of state, for their contribution to the victory as advisers of President Roosevelt.

Congress Gets Plan at Opening Session

BY PHILIP DODD
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 5—Congress came back to work today after a six weeks vacation to be met with recommendations from President Truman for cutbacks of 3½ billion dollars in war appropriations and the prospects of receiving a lengthy message tomorrow from the President on post-war legislation.

Members of congress did not wait for word from the White House to tell them what to do, however, and the first peace time session since 1941 opened with discussion of the future of the atomic bomb, status of the President's war powers, the duration of war time and surplus property disposal.

Sessions Are Brief

Today's formal sessions were brief, the senate adjourning after meeting 17 minutes in respect to Sen. Johnson [R., Cal.], who died last month. The house met for 1 hour and 22 minutes, during which short speeches were made by members on a variety of subjects.

The President's recommendations, contained in a letter to congress, called for cutting the appropriations of 28 war agencies by 2 billion 755 million dollars and war contract authorizations by 794 million dollars. Activities of the army and navy were not included. These will be dealt with in later messages, the White House said.

Tomorrow's message from the President will be a "lengthy and comprehensive" document. Senate Majority Leader Barkley [D., Ky.] told reporters, after returning with Speaker Rayburn [D., Tex.] of the house from a conference with Mr. Truman. Barkley said the President did not ask for priority for any measure. Rayburn said the President would have "a lot of suggestions."

Highlights of Opening

Highlights of the opening day's session included:

1. Introduction of a bill by Rep. Bender [R., O.] fixing the death penalty for revealing the secret of the atomic bomb, and another by Rep. Ludlow [D., Ind.] directing the President, state secretary and American representative on the world security council to urge that the atomic bomb be outlawed as an instrument of war. Sen. McMahon [D., Conn.] said he would introduce a bill providing a national board to control atomic research.

2. Rep. Hoffman [R., Mich.] introduced a bill ending all emergency war powers of the administration, including price control, and Rep. Smith [D., Va.] proposed a measure repealing the Smith-Connally anti-strike bill and abolishing the war labor board. Meanwhile, however, the senate Republican steering committee urged retaining war powers until Jan. 1 to permit orderly ending of rationing and other war controls.

Hits at War Time

3. Rep. Paul Brown [D., Ga.] introduced a bill abolishing war time and returning the country to standard time.

4. Rayburn told reporters the house would be ready next week to take up legislation placing surplus property disposal under a single administrator, instead of the present three man board.

In his message recommending war appropriations cutbacks, President Truman warned against reducing appropriations without full consideration of the effect of reductions on the future well being of the nation. He asked that reductions be made "only to the extent such reductions can be entirely supported by conditions existing or clearly foreseeable at the time."

The President said he would speed reduction in government war time spending as fast as possible thru his administrative powers, pending a complete review of appropriations and a report to congress next January.

One of the largest recommendations for cutbacks was 1 billion 700 million dollars in appropriations and 600 million dollars in contract authorizations for lend-lease. Other major cuts involved the office of price administration, office of strategic services, war production board, foreign economic administration, office of defense transportation, and the office of scientific research and development.

Held in Forgeries

Minnie Bailey in the state's attorney's office in the Criminal Courts building yesterday during investigation of forgery case.

A PERFECT MAID TRIES A PERFECT FRAUD; CAUGHT

Miss Minnie Bailey, a petite, blonde, described as a perfect housemaid employed in the home of W. T. Hawkins, 726 Franklin av., River Forest, a candy manufacturer, was arrested yesterday by Lt. Raymond Rheingruber of the River Forest police, who said she admitted forging and cashing checks totaling $2,085 against the account of Hawkins' wife, Marjorie.

The maid, who said she is 34 years old, altho a birth certificate showed her to be 27, also was questioned by Rheingruber and Assistant State's Atty. Vernon Thompson about a mysterious assault Aug. 29 on Mrs. Hawkins as she was taking a nap. The maid denied it.

Forgeries "Nearly Perfect"

Mrs. Hawkins said she was stunned by a sharp blow on her head. When she went downstairs after her head cleared, she said, she met Miss Bailey, altho the maid was supposed to have been shopping.

Two days later Mrs. Hawkins received some of the canceled forged checks drawn on her household expense account at the Avenue State bank of Oak Park. She discovered the account had been replenished by two $1,000 checks forged against the account of Hawkins, who is president of Confections, Inc., 160 N. Loomis st.

Rheingruber said Miss Bailey would be asked to take a lie detector test in the assault on Mrs. Hawkins. He said that the forgeries of Mrs. Hawkins' signature were so nearly perfect that they never would have been discovered if Mrs. Hawkins had not become suspicious when the bank returned so many checks drawn to Minnie Bailey and to cash.

Maid Tells of Forgeries

The maid began forging checks, she told the policeman, in June and July, when Mr. and Mrs. Hawkins left her in their home with an automobile at her disposal while they vacationed on a farm near Batavia.

Miss Bailey, who is 4 feet 11 inches tall, wore a gray suit that cost $117, a $29 pair of shoes, and a purse that cost $43. She spent about $375 on clothing, Rheingruber said, and lost the rest of the money on horses at a handbook in a liquor store.

IWO B-29 FLIES 5,490 MILES TO U. S. IN ONE HOP

Washington, D. C., Sept. 5 (AP)—A B-29 Super Fortress set a new record in a 5,490 mile flight from Iwo Island to Spokane, Wash., in 23 hours and 33 minutes, the war department announced today.

The B-29, which carried photographs of the first occupation landings in Japan and letters from liberated prisoners of war, broke the nonstop record for distance and also for over water flight on the trip, the department said.

The B-29, operated by two crews alternating at the controls, flew on from Spokane to Washington, D. C., a distance of 2,086 miles, in seven hours and arrived at 3 a. m. Sunday. The total flying time for the 7,576 mile trip from Iwo to Washington was 30 hours, 33 minutes. The former record was 4,875 miles, set in a flight from Honolulu to Washington Saturday in 17 hours, 21 minutes.

PLAN TO REMOVE RESTRICTIONS ON KILLING CATTLE

Lift All Except One Major Rail Travel Ban

Washington, D. C., Sept. 5 [Special]—Plans to remove restrictions on the slaughter of cattle later this month are being made by the government, it was disclosed today as other orders lifted nearly all the curbs on railroad passenger travel and all the limitations on the production of passenger car, motorcycle, and bicycle tires.

Removal of the slaughter restrictions in anticipation of a heavy run of animals to market would mean more meat on the nation's dinner tables. Plans for such action were outlined by Gayle G. Armstrong, special assistant to Agriculture Secretary Anderson, before the Patman small business committee of the house.

Might Become Bottlenecks

The restrictions were imposed earlier this year to obtain a more even distribution of meat supplies and to provide for war needs. They set slaughter quotas for meat producers.

Agriculture officials said the quotas might become bottlenecks when cattle marketings increase. They added that quotas would not be needed if meat supplies increased considerably as a result of heavier marketings.

Armstrong said that if the fall run of cattle creates a surplus of meat, the red ration points probably would be removed.

In easing the travel rules, the office of defense transportation said all major restrictions on railroad passenger travel, except the ban on short haul sleeper service, will be eliminated by Sept. 16.

End Schedule "Freeze"

On that day the "freeze" of passenger train schedules will end and curbs on the operation of special passenger trains, special cars, and extra sections will be canceled.

Reservations for space on passenger trains, including sleeping car accommodations, may be made 14 days in advance, beginning Sept. 9, instead of the present five days. The ordinary time limit is 30 days.

The only important limitation remaining is the one prohibiting sleeping car service between destinations 450 miles or less apart. The ODT said it had adopted a "wait and see" policy regarding this rule, which is expected to remain in effect for some time because of continued heavy military demands for sleepers.

About two-thirds of all sleeping cars now are assigned to the military services, which also have first call on all coaches.

Lack Equipment

The war production board's order lifting restrictions on the manufacture of tires will have little immediate effect on the automobile owner, it was said by tire manufacturers. They asserted that the rubber industry already is going at top speed on its reconversion plans, but a shortage of molds and other equipment will delay complete reconversion for several months.

The WPB said the prohibition against equipping new cars with a spare tire probably would be continued until the demand for replacement tires is satisfied.

Tiremakers anticipated that tire rationing would continue and that any excess tires which could be manufactured above OPA ration levels would be distributed about the country to build up stocks.

Jobless Pay Checks Now Go Out Every Two Weeks

Applications for unemployment compensation benefits have become so numerous that benefit checks are being mailed every two weeks instead of weekly as formerly, Robert L. Gordon, state director of labor, announced yesterday. The change, which expedites the handling of claims, doubles the amounts of checks.

DAY by DAY on the FARM

by BEN MARKLAND

Sept. 5, 1945

DEVELOPMENTS in the discussion about DDT concern the effect of this powerful insecticide on beneficial insects, birds, small mammals, fish, waterfowl, and other wild life. Now that DDT is being put on general sale, conservationists and wild life authorities are asking these questions:

"Will indiscriminate use of DDT against farm pests, mosquitoes, and other insects rob bird life of insect food and thus upset the balance of nature?"

Many Questions Raised

"Will spraying with DDT in orchards and hayfields destroy bees and other important pollinating insects?"

"Will spraying of marshes and ponds against insects destroy fish life, crustaceans, and waterfowl?"

"What effect will DDT, in agricultural areas, have on necessary soil bacteria?"

First conclusions of scientists investigating possible damaging effects of the insecticide are that DDT is too powerful for indiscriminate use; that farmers and others using DDT will have to be educated as to its limitations, if many valuable insects, birds, and mammals are not to be destroyed.

Results of DDT Tests

For example, in a New Jersey test, 5 to 8 pounds of DDT per acre were sprayed over water areas in a mosquito control project. The DDT killed the mosquitoes, but it also killed blue crabs, which are commercially valuable. In a recent mosquito application near Savanna, Carroll county, crayfish and small fish were killed in shallow water, but were not affected in deep water. J. Lyall Clarke, sanitary engineer of the Des Plaines valley mosquito abatement district, reports that in the Savanna test two sentry hornets were killed at the entrance of a hornet nest, but the insects inside the nest were not harmed. It is known that heavy applications of DDT will kill snakes, which are valuable as insect destroyers.

Dr. Clarence Cottam, a research scientist of the United States fish and wild life service, states that 5 pounds of DDT sprayed in a 1 acre woodlot will either kill birds or destroy enough insect life to force the birds out of the sprayed area. More than half a pound per acre harms fish, turtles, and frogs.

A part of the answer to utilizing the killing powers of DDT without harming beneficial wild life is found in making the application at seasonable times. In spraying orchards and hayfields, for example, the schedule probably will provide for applying the insecticide when beneficial insects are not present. Codling moths in orchards, for example, can be killed with DDT after the fruits have started to form. By that time, pollinating insects will have left the orchard.

★ The GARDEN ★

CELERIAC [root celery] has been so favorably received by the few gardeners who have cultivated this crop that it should be on more planting schedules in future years. In appearance, celeriac is similar to true celery. The edible portion of the plant is the root, however, rather than the stalks. The root tastes like celery, and may be eaten raw in salads or cooked like a root crop.

Celeriac is easy to grow and rarely is subject to insect attack. The farm gardener has not had to spray his celeriac this season. It has a long maturity period [120 days] and therefore the seeds must be planted in a hotbed or greenhouse in February.

Many greenhouses raised celeriac seedlings for sale this spring. Gardeners who do not have their own hotbeds can buy seed for culture by greenhouses this winter, then transplant the seedlings to their own plots in the spring.

STRIKING STOVE WORKERS VOTE TO REMAIN OUT

Members of the United Stove Workers union who have been on strike at the Cribben & Sexton company, gas appliance manufacturers, 700 N. Sacramento blvd., since Aug. 27, have voted to continue the walkout, Frank Powers, president of the union, announced yesterday.

He said the vote was taken Tuesday and that 450 of the more than 500 members supported the walkout. Powers and five other union officials were discharged by the company on the ground that the strike violated the union's contract.

The strike started when the company refused to discharge foremen who had been demoted to hourly paid workers and who had been refused membership in the union, which has a closed shop contract. The war labor board had upheld the firm's position.

BURGLARS LOOT TOTALS $1,796

BERLIN WARNED EVERY TREE MAY BE CUT FOR FUEL

BY HENRY WALES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

BERLIN, Sept. 5—Every tree in Berlin, including those in the Tiergarten, the Gruenewald, and on private property will be cut down this winter to provide fuel if lack of transport prevents hauling of wood from outlying districts.

The British chairman of the fuel committee stated today that the German burgomeister has been warned that not an ounce of coal will be provided Berliners for heating or cooking and that he must immediately begin a drastic wood cutting program to provide heat for families in shell and bomb shattered houses.

The British, French, and Americans have agreed upon 2,400 tons of coal as the minimum to permit operation of the Berlin water supply, sewage, electricity, and gas, and the "western allies" as they now call themselves hope to persuade the "Russian allies" as they now call themselves, to contribute their quota.

The seriously reduced extraction from the Ruhr and the crippled railways prevent delivery of more than the above figure. The Russians control the vital direct railroad between Madgeburg and Berlin and thus far have declined to permit the western allies to use the line, altho the Yanks built the Magdeburg railway bridge and handed it to the Red army as a gift. Coal, therefore, must be routed over a detour north or south of Magdeburg, requiring more locomotives and rolling stock than is available.

The Ruhr mines are producing one-sixth of their normal supply owing to war devastation and a lack of miners and their output has been decreased by 30 million tons a year, which the United States was expected to provide following Secretary Ickes' offer.

No German homes, offices, or factories will be heated by coal this winter but efforts will be made to provide fuel for hospitals and bakeries.

The estimated 3,000,000 population of the capital represents 600,000 families, each requiring half a ton of wood for fuel this winter but the civilians lack saws, axes, and stoves. The street cars will be used to carry wood from suburban forested areas and the western allies expect to provide some military transport.

It was estimated that the allied armies of occupation, totaling a quarter of a million, will consume more coal in heating barracks and the headquarters building teeming with generals, than is allocated for the entire civilian population of the city.

CAPITAL PLANS GREAT WELCOME FOR WAINWRIGHT

General Expected to Fly In Monday Morning

Washington, D. C., Sept. 5 (AP)—The nation's capital will give a hero's welcome next week to Lt. Gen. Wainwright, iron man of Corregidor, who was nominated today to the temporary rank of full general by President Truman.

Washington prepared a parade and receptions with highest military and government leaders greeting the tall, slender soldier. He will be taken to New York Thursday for further honors.

Wainwright, with several officers and men liberated with him from a prison camp near Mukden, Manchuria, will arrive here by plane Monday morning. He will be met by Mrs. Wainwright.

Chicago Area Prisoners Home

San Francisco, Cal., Sept. 5 [Special]—Ten officers and two enlisted men—including Major A. C. Tisdelle of Wilmette, Ill., and T/Sgt. Gordon B. Gonzalves of Evanston—liberated with Gen. Wainwright recently after three years in Japanese prison camps, arrived at Hamilton field by plane today.

The Illinois men and most of the others were met by wives, daughters, mothers, and other relatives and for half an hour after the big C-54 transport landed there were embraces, laughter, joyful shouts, and tears such as the field never has seen since Pacific heroes began coming home.

Most of the returned men were thin and tanned; all looked tired. But every face radiated joy.

Tisdelle was greeted by a cousin, Mrs. Madeline Dwyer, 527 S. Taylor av., Oak Park, and her daughter Mary. The major's mother died while he was a prisoner.

Sgt. Gonzalves was met by his wife. They embraced, then burst into tears.

Boyington Returns Tomorrow

Maj. Gregory Boyington, marine air ace and congressional medal of honor winner, freed last week from a Japanese camp, will arrive at the Oakland airport Friday, the marine corps announced here today.

Among today's arrivals at Hamilton field was Gen. Spaatz, commander of the strategic air forces which unleashed the atomic bomb on Japan. He was greeted by Gen. Arnold, commanding general of the army air forces. Spaatz, a veteran of both the European and Pacific wars, was present at the Japanese surrender in Tokyo bay.

AIR LINE UNION OF 20,000 JOINS UAW IN MERGER

Twenty thousand members of the independent Air Line Mechanics association have joined the United Automobile, Aircraft, and Agricultural Workers' union [CIO], Joseph Mattson, UAW regional director, announced yesterday.

The merger was arranged, Mattson said, after a nation-wide referendum vote conducted by the association, in which the air line mechanics voted three to one for affiliation with the UAW.

Mattson said the UAW had set up a new division that will conduct a drive for 100,000 members in the air line industry.

REVEAL INDIANA YANK IS HELD FOR DOUBLE SLAYING

WIESBADEN, Germany, Sept. 5 (AP)—The judge-advocate's office announced today that Pvt. Robert A. Colby, 22, of Geetingsville, Ind., a soldier in the 49th engineers combat battalion, had been convicted by a court martial last June 23 of murdering two American officers and was sentenced to be shot.

The victims were Colby's captain and a first lieutenant. [They were not named for publication.]

Colby "remains in custody while his case undergoes review and appellate proceedings required by the articles of war," the army report said. "A final decision is estimated at two weeks or more in the future."

Mother Can't Believe It

Geetingsville, Ind., Sept. 5 (AP)—"I don't believe it!" exclaimed Mrs. L. O. Colby when informed today by the Associated Press that the judge advocate's office reported her soldier son, who has been overseas nearly two years, had killed two United States army officers.

"It's untrue—I know it's untrue," Mrs. Colby said. "He wouldn't do anything like that."

26 Provident Hospital Nurses Stay on Strike

Twenty-six of a staff of 30 nurses at Provident hospital, 426 E. 51st st., remained on strike for the second day yesterday. They are asking a wage increase from their present $90 a month to $130; a 30 day vacation period instead of 14 days. The strikers are members of the Building Service Municipal Employes' union, Local 46 [AFL].

TURFMAN SEIZED IN SEN. HOOPER MURDER PROBE

Los Angeles, Cal., Sept 5 [Special]—William W. Davidson, 32, ex-convict, turfman and diamond broker, today was arrested here in his hotel room as a fugitive from Michigan where state police want to question him about the slaying last January of State Sen. Warren G. Hooper.

W. W. Davidson

Davidson is accused of taking part in the robbery of a Pontiac, Mich., gambling club last December. His name has never officially entered into investigation of Hooper's murder but he has been widely sought since that slaying as the result of a police belief that he can throw light on the identity of the actual slayer.

Hooper was shot to death in his automobile a short time before he was to have been an important state witness in prosecutions arising from a grand jury investigation of legislative graft.

"I don't play around with that sort of stuff," Davidson said when arrested. "It is strictly a case of mistaken identity. I was with the leading policeman of Detroit at the time of the murder." He did not elaborate.

COURT ORDERS MENTAL TEST OF MOTHER OF FOUR

A charge that Mrs. Marie Federlick, 29, of 2642 S. Sacramento av., contributed to the dependency of her four children, Arlene, 11, Shirley, 7, Robert, 4, and Wayne, 3, was continued by Judge Joseph B. Hermes in Domestic Relations court yesterday to Sept. 17 to permit a psychiatric examination of the mother. Detectives Robert Zadek and Jerome Vavra found the children trying to cook pancakes Tuesday. They said they had not seen their mother in four days. Mrs. Federlick said her husband, Melvin, deserted her.

GUARANTEES A MILLION CIRCULATION By Dec. 1, 1946

Steps of advancement are guaranteed; 600,000 circulation by January 1, 1946; 700,000 on March 1; 800,000 on May 1; 900,000 on September 1; 1,000,000 by December 1.

Quality of circulation is no less certain than the figures. Test after test has demonstrated the character of readers which PATHFINDER has and will obtain in swiftly increasing numbers.

Editorially and mechanically, PATHFINDER is also moving fast. Enlarged in number of pages, brilliantly written, profusely illustrated with timely photographs, this weekly news magazine well deserves the enthusiastic acceptance it is receiving.

Advertisers are recognizing the increasing need for circulation in the PATHFINDER market—the smaller cities and towns where nearly 50 percent of the nation's goods are sold.

NORWEGIAN REDS PLOTTED REVOLT, QUISLING CHARGE

Sought to Aid Russian Drive Across Finland

BY HAL FOUST
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

OSLO, Norway, Sept. 5—Norwegian Communists were accused by Vidkun Quisling today of having plotted to overthrow the government in favor of soviet Russia. He named Trygve Lie, Laborite foreign minister in the present cabinet, as one of the conspirators.

Foreign Minister Trygve Lie

The accusation highlighted the session of the treason trial in which Quisling was described by his attorney as an esoteric political philosopher, self-dedicated to opposition of bolshevism. The defense lawyer, Henrik Bergh, also asserted that his client is being tried by his political opponents who have difficulty understanding his philosophy.

Rises to Rebut Witness

Quisling, his face pale, but with no trace of fear of an impending death penalty, rose in the prisoner's dock to rebut the implicators in a question Prosecutor Annaeus Schjoedt directed at a witness, Vilhelm Ullman, a schoolmate of the defendant. Ullman, telling of a conversation with Quisling in January, 1940, quoted the defendant as saying that the Norwegian Reds planned a revolt while the Russians swept across Finland into northern Norway.

"He had a fantastic idea that the Norwegians had received money from Moscow to finance this plot," said Ullman, who is a high school teacher.

"Does that not remind you of nazi tactics of accusing others of their own crimes?" asked the prosecutor.

"It is the truth," Quisling asserted. "Trygve Lie [then, as now, foreign minister] was in Moscow in 1935. It is a fact that the Norwegian Communists received 400,000 gold rubles [nominally $200,000] to form a fifth column. The soviets were promised northern Norway."

Quisling Calls It Treason

"Do you mean there was treason which should be punished?" asked the presiding judge, Erik Solem.

"Yes, I do," said Quisling.

Lie in 1935 was a member of the cabinet of Premier Johan Nygaardsvold.

Bergh, a prominent member of the Norwegian bar, began the summation for the defense with a statement of the difficult enigmas of the trial, mainly the personality and motives of the defendant.

"There is no one here who agrees with his political ideology, not even his own counsel," said the barrister.

"Altho the indictment set out crimes, the background is political. We of the opposite political convictions must try to understand the defendant's convictions."

Bergh told of Quisling's sympathetic attitude toward the soviets in his first years of relief work in Russia as evinced by his writings in 1923.

"But in 1930," the attorney continued, "after he had seen the mass of prisons, starvation, and plague, he turned against bolshevism. The fight against bolshevism became his life's goal."

Message to Chamberlain

Bergh asserted that in 1939, when Quisling is accused of having dealt with Hitler, the defendant was trying to effect peace between Germany, England, and France. He quoted a telegram from Quisling to Prime Minister Chamberlain of Great Britain proposing a peace conference. The wire was signed "Quisling CBE" the initials standing for commander of the British empire, an honor Quisling won for representing British interests in Moscow as a member of the Norwegian legation.

Bergh also told of Quisling's plan for a federation of European nations, with Britain, France, and Germany taking part.

Leading up to the invasion of Norway in April, 1940, Bergh said Quisling was not unsympathetic to this military move because he thought it forestalled a British invasion which would have made a battlefield of Norway.

Among the spectators were some of the British and American military personnel here to supervise the disarming and repatriation of the capitulated German army.

Bergh is to close his address tomorrow and will be followed by the prosecution's second plea for the death penalty. The final speech of the trial is to be delivered by Quisling, probably on Friday, with the outlook for a verdict on Monday or Tuesday.

"Slave Driver" Executed

BRUSSELS, Belgium, Sept. 5 (AP)—Dr. Albert Rocour, 37, known as the "slave driver" because he sent hundreds of Belgian youths to Germany for compulsory labor, was executed in Liege yesterday. At the same time it was disclosed that L. Vindevolgel, former deputy and Flemish nationalist, had been sentenced to death as a collaborationist.

First Sentence in Holland

AMSTERDAM, Sept. 4 [Delayed] (AP)—A special Netherlands war crimes tribunal issued its first death sentence today, condemning J. Breedvelt of Delft to die on a charge of betraying a number of Jews to the Germans.

KEEP STAGGERED WORKING HOURS, A. OF C. ADVISES

The Chicago Association of Commerce yesterday sent letters to 4,500 member companies recommending that employers continue the use of staggered working hours which was inaugurated in the war to ease the burden on local transportation systems. The association's action followed removal of all controls over local transportation facilities by the office of defense transportation. In the letter, Thomas B. Freeman, president of the association, asserted that the advantages of staggered working hours justified their continuation.

THIS DAY IN HISTORY

Sept. 6—Grant at Paducah, Ky.

ON Sept. 6, 1861, during the hours between midnight and dawn, a flotilla of steam boats carrying Brig. Gen. Ulysses S. Grant and two regiments of Union soldiers was stemming the current of the lower Ohio between Cairo, Ill., and Paducah, Ky. Grant had left the former town, his headquarters, after receiving a report that Gen. Leonidas Polk, who already had seized Columbus, Ky., for the Confederacy, was dispatching troops to Paducah. Polk's purpose was to win the border state of Kentucky to the south's cause.

Early in the morning Grant reached Paducah and disembarked his men. The townspeople, who were in the main sympathetic toward the Confederacy and who were expecting Polk's force that day, were amazed at the sight of the Union troops.

"I never saw such consternation depicted on the faces of the people." Grant wrote in his memoirs. "Men, women, and children came out of their doors looking pale and frightened at the presence of the invader."

Grant reassured them by issuing a proclamation declaring that he had come "not as an enemy, but as your friend and fellow citizen, not to injure or annoy you, but to respect the rights and to defend and enforce the rights of all loyal citizens."

Grant's bold action in occupying Paducah was carried thru on his own responsibility and represented his first major achievement in the Civil war. His decisiveness probably played a great part in keeping Kentucky in the Union.

REDS THREATEN DOMINATION OF GERMAN UNIONS

Comprise Half of the Steering Group

BY HENRY WALES
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

BERLIN, Sept. 5—Bolshevik influence threatens to dominate the German Federation of Labor, comprising 18 different trade unions being organized in Berlin and which eventually will embrace workers in the entire reich.

Four of eight leaders forming the federation's self-appointed steering and organizing committee are Communists who were active in Germany prior to Hitler's advent in 1933. All four have spent long periods in Moscow since then, and at least two returned to Berlin last May with the Red army when the Russians captured the city. The communist leaders are Roman Schwalek, Hans Hendretczy, Paul Walter, and Otto Brass.

Call Workers' Meeting

After the fall of Berlin, four politico-labor leaders — Hermann Schlimme and Bernhard Goring, Social Democrats, and Jacob Kaiser and Ernst Lemmer, Christian Democratic unionists—called a meeting of workers and drafted a proclamation welcoming the western allies and asking aid in setting up unions.

Schlimme took the initiative as he was a long time, close friend of the English Laborite, Sir Walter Citrine.

The four leaders expected United States forces to enter the city immediately, but when weeks passed and the Russians remained in Berlin alone, Schwalek and a couple of Russian officers from Gen. Bessarin's staff called on Schlimme to begin the reëstablishment of trade unions at once. A few days later Marshal Georgi K. Zhukov issued a proclamation demanding that labor organize.

As the British and American forces still had not arrived, the Germans believed that the Russians alone would occupy the capital, so the four non-Communists agreed to begin organizing unions with the four communist leaders.

200,000 Enrolled

Berlin trade unions, which counted 600,000 members in 1933, already have enrolled 200,000 to date.

The federated unions soon will apply to allied military authorities for recognition as a "democratic labor organization." It is expected that the British and Americans will insist that the present steering committee be replaced by a central committee freely elected by the workers. This may cause friction with the Russians if any of the present four Communists are not voted in.

American authorities recognize that trade unions always will be potentially political, but will nevertheless make every effort to divorce politics from labor problems, at least during the period when Germany is prohibited from establishing a central government. Inside the Russian zone political activities of union organizers are uncurbed.

OPA RED TAPE TIES UP SHOP REOPENING FOR DAD, WOUNDED VETS

Steve Thureanos, 65, of 571 Madison st., Gary, and his two sons, Perow, 26, and John, 22, both wounded war veterans, have endeavored unsuccessfully since last May to gain permission from the office of price administration to reopen their small slaughterhouse in Gary, their attorney, Mors N. Oppman, disclosed yesterday.

The slaghterhouse was closed early in 1943 when the sons were drafted. A third son, George, 23, still is in the army.

Application to reopen was made to E. F. Cihak of the Chicago OPA, who turned it over to R. M. Swickard, Chicago regional food rationing specialist. Swickard disapproved the application, but sent a later one on to Washington, D. C. The latest application, which Oppman said complies with all the OPA regulations, has been awaiting action in Washington since Aug. 5, the attorney said.

Hibbard Spencer Bartlett Offices Robbed of $2,000

Two armed men yesterday held up the warehouse office of the Hibbard Spencer Bartlett company, 405 W. Lake st., hardware manufacturers and distributors, and escaped with $2,000 which an armored express truck had just delivered. The men threatened Frank Metzner, manager, and eight girl employes with revolvers, and forced Metzner to point out the box containing the money. They rapped S. H. Corwin of 6842 Jeffery av., a representative of the Chicago Tunnel Transport company, on the head with a revolver because he refused to remain still.

GI HAROLD COACHES PUP AND SMUGGLES IT IN INSIDE HIS BAG

Ginger, a dog born six months ago in Weimer, Germany, stepped out of Corp. Harold Westberg's duffel bag yesterday and took up residence at Westberg's home, 4213 Grace st.

The dog was so small when Westberg found it in Germany that he had to feed it with an eye dropper. They became constant companions. For the trip home, Westberg trained the dog to lie quietly in his duffel bag. He carried the animal unnoticed onto the boat and hid it under his bed for two days.

At the dock in New York Ginger hopped back in the bag and was carried thru the inspectors like a sack of clothing. Westberg, who served overseas for 21 months, is home on furlough. The dog will stay with his wife when he is reassigned.

Beaverbrook's Son Gets 2 Mos. as Drunken Driver

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

LONDON, Sept. 5—Peter Richard Aitken, 34, son of William Maxwell Aitkin [Lord Beaverbrook], today was sentenced to two months in jail and ordered to pay $42 in court costs for driving a car while intoxicated. He was also forbidden to drive a car for two years. His lawyer said he planned to file an appeal.

TOP POST GIVEN BEN V. COHEN, BRAIN TRUSTER

McKeough Also Awarded High Place by Truman

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 5—Benjamin V. Cohen, a member of the original New Deal brain trust, and Raymond S. McKeough of Chicago, a lieutenant to Sidney Hillman, CIO political action committee leader, were awarded high ranking government positions in a list of nominations sent to the senate today by President Truman.

Cohen, famous in the early years of the Roosevelt regime as a member of the White House team of Corcoran [Tommy the Cork] and

Cohen, which drafted major legislation, was nominated to be counsellor of the state department, a top policy making position. The post had been vacant since 1941. Cohen will rank third in the state department to the secretary and undersecretary and becomes acting secretary in their absence.

Going Abroad with Byrnes

Cohen, who will help formulate the foreign policies of the government, is accompanying State Secretary Byrnes to London as an adviser for the foreign ministers council of the Big Five, which will convene Sept. 10 for preparation of European peace settlements. The council includes representatives of the United States, Russia, Britain, France, and China.

McKeough, named to the United States maritime commission, was a Democratic member of congress until defeated in 1942 when he aspired to the senatorship from Illinois. In 1944, he became regional director for the CIO-PAC at $10,000 a year. His appointment constitutes the first recognition of Hillman's political power accorded by Mr. Truman.

Before he enlisted with Hillman's political action committee, McKeough was an office of price administration regional director. Senate action on his nomination was expected to be preceded by a discussion of his qualifications for the maritime commission position, to which admirals and high ranking navy officers are usually appointed because of the technical knowledge essential for adequate performance of duties.

Benton Gets MacLeish Post

Other nominations forwarded by Mr. Truman included:

William Benton, 45, assistant to the chancellor of the University of Chicago, to succeed Archibald MacLeish as assistant secretary of state in charge of public and cultural relations.

Donald S. Russell, 39, of Spartanburg, S. C., former law partner of Secretary Byrnes there, to be assistant secretary of state.

Brig. Gen. Frank T. Hines, former head of the veterans administration, to be ambassador to Panama.

Adlai E. Stevenson of Chicago as deputy United States representative on the "preparatory commission" of the allied nations organization. This group is a forerunner to the permanent "united nations" group which now is awaiting ratification by member countries.

Benton will have charge of circulating information about the United States thruout the rest of the world. A state department spokesman said Benton's office will probably absorb the remnants of the office of war information's overseas propaganda units, which were transferred to the state department by President Truman last week when he ordered OWI abolished.

TWO GIs ADMIT SOUTH SIDE RAPE OF WOMAN, 25

Housewife, 39, Is Victim of Another Attack

Two south side women, a 39 year old housewife and a 25 year old unmarried woman, were the victims of rapists early yesterday. Stockyards police arrested two soldiers who they said admitted the attack upon the unmarried woman.

The unmarried woman said she met the two soldiers, Pvt. Walter Lajos, 28, of 4335 S. Hermitage av., and Pvt. Edward Hillman, 28, of 1426 W. 49th st., in a tavern, and accepted their offer to escort her home. When they approached 52d st. near Loomis st., she said Lajos shoved her into a clump of bushes and raped her, while Hillman, she said, stood by.

Housewife Forced into Car

Lajos and Hillman were picked up shortly afterward by Stockyards police at 51st and Justine sts. Detective Theodore Feltz said both admitted their parts in the attack. The woman was taken to the Evangelical hospital.

The housewife told Englewood police that she was walking toward her home on 62d st. when a car stopped beside her. A man leaped out, she said, grabbed her arm, and pulled her into the back seat.

Two other men were in the front seat, she told police. They drove around darkened streets while the man in the rear seat raped her. They ejected her from the car at 75th and Halsted sts., and took her purse, which contained $5. She said she was obliged to ask the men for 10 cents for carfare. She was taken to St. Bernard's hospital.

Two Held in Sex Cases

Joseph Luster, 26, Negro, 135 Hayes av., La Grange, was held to the grand jury under $10,500 bond by Municipal Judge Matthew D. Hartigan in Felony court on two charges of robbery and one of attempted rape. A 15 year old Negro girl complained that he attempted to attack her Sunday night near the Midway plaisance.

Also held to the grand jury, in $5,000 bonds, was Patrick Dwyer, 35, of 4866 Winthrop av. He was arraigned before Judge Hartigan on a charge of a crime against a child involving a 6 year old girl.

Arvey Takes Oath Today as Park Board Member

Jacob M. Arvey, former alderman of the 24th ward who returned recently from service as a lieutenant colonel in the Philippines, will be sworn in as a member of the park board at 9:30 a. m. today in County Judge Edmund K. Jarecki's chambers in the county building.

"But you don't get a chance to go fishing every day—and those girls will still be here when you get back."

BUREAUS CALLED A 'HODGE-PODGE' OF INEFFICIENCY

Controler Wants U. S. Agencies Revised

Washington, D. C., Sept. 5 (AP)—Controler General Lindsay C. Warren today described the present governmental setup as "a hodge-podge of duplications, overlappings, inefficiencies, and inconsistencies."

Warren, who often is referred to as "the watchdog of the treasury," told congress it cannot be expected to remedy the situation and asked instead that President Truman be given broad powers to clean house.

He testified before the house expenditures committee, which is considering proposals to streamline the government.

Frate Bills Cited

Warren gave this picture of the federal establishment:

1. The transportation field is divided among 75 bureaus, divisions, and agencies. The government's travel and frate bill last year was as much as it cost to run the whole federal establishment 30 years ago.
2. Public housing is financed by 15 agencies.
3. Labor relations are spread over eight departments and agencies.
4. A dozen bureaus and departments are involved in administration of government land.
5. There is "an obvious conflict" between the functions of various agencies concerning aid to states in care of dependent children.

A "Drop in Bucket"

6. Two government corporations "are doing a thriving customs business," in addition to the bureau of customs.

Warren said the instances cited "are merely a drop in the bucket of things which the President should be empowered to look into and remedy."

HOUSE TO HOUSE QUIZ ORDERED IN POLICE SLAYINGS

In an effort to accumulate every shred of evidence which might lead to the capture of the slayer of two detectives at Clark st. and Lunt av. Sunday night, police yesterday began a systematic questioning of every resident of the Rogers Park district.

This action was ordered by Supervising Capt. Joseph Goldberg of the 6th division. He said that 127 policemen of the Rogers Park district and 10 plainclothes men from elsewhere in the division will take part in a house to house canvass.

The Rogers Park district extends from Kedzie av. on the west to the lake, and from Devon av. to the north city limits.

New Witness Comes Forward

The inquiry was spurred by the voluntary appearance of a new witness, who gave a description of the killer at variance with that supplied by Charles Brady, one of the slain detectives, before he died.

The new witness is Mel Ogren, 38, of 2952 Belle Plaine av., a commercial artist. Ogren said he had been in the Clark-Lunt bowling alley at Lunt and Ravenswood avs.

As he approached the intersection of Clark st. and Lunt av., he said, he saw two men on the east side of Clark st., one facing toward him. One of the men appeared to give the other a push, he said, and he heard a shot. One of the two men fell, and the other fled east in Lunt av. The fallen man fired two shots from the sidewalk.

Positive on Lack of Glove

Ogren described the fleeing man as between 40 and 45, 5 feet 8 inches tall, 160 pounds, tanned face, hatless, with bushy, dark hair, a gray or blue shirt, and dark trousers. The man's shirt sleeves were rolled half way up to the elbow, he said, and he added that he is positive the man did not wear a glove on either hand.

Brady told police he was shot when he and his partner, George H. Hellstern, sought to question a suspect, and that the suspect wore a black glove on his left hand.

Ogren said that later he saw Hellstern lying on the sidewalk some distance south of where Brady was shot.

MAN WHO SHOT WIFE RANTS AS CASE GOES OVER

Judge Matthew D. Hartigan in Felony court yesterday continued to Sept. 19 a charge of assault to kill against Harry W. Miller, 34, of 1713 Burling st., a detective agency guard. Miller shot his estranged wife, Phyllis, 39, in the shoulder Aug. 31 on Randolph st. opposite the city hall.

"How is she?" were Miller's first words when he appeared in court. Judge Hartigan ignored the question and continued the case at the request of the state. Mrs. Miller, who lives at 361 Hill st., is in St. Luke's hospital.

"Why did I do it? Why did I do it?" Miller cried as bailiffs carried him out of the courtroom. "She nagged me so much something just snapped inside me." He then changed his tone and added: "If things don't get different I'll change my story."

THE STRONGEST NATION ON EARTH

In his address proclaiming VJ day President Truman spoke like an American, to the undoubted discomfiture of some of his hyphenated countrymen and of certain other nations which have not been at all backward in asserting their contributions to victory. The principal credit for the triumph Mr. Truman reserved for this country. His further remarks indicated that he knew the reason for our astonishing success. It lies in the strength that our republican institutions have given us as free men.

We must turn, Mr. Truman said, with "renewed consecration to the principles which have made us the strongest nation on earth." In Moscow, and London, and Paris, and Chungking they heard that description of America, as they also heard it in Tokyo and Berlin. No voice was raised to dispute the contention.

The President paid tribute to American workers, business men, farmers, and miners for having "shipped to our allies the means to resist and overcome the enemy." In Russia and Britain they know that the means were, in truth, produced in America. They cannot argue the fact if they would. American planes, guns, tanks, and munitions gave them their victories. American trucks and jeeps carried them forward. American food sustained their fighting men.

"From our war plants rolled the tanks and planes which blasted their way to the heart of our enemy," said Mr. Truman; "from our ship yards sprang the ships which bridged all the oceans of the world for our weapons and supplies; from our farms came the food and fiber for our armies and navies and for all our allies in all the corners of the earth; from our mines and factories came the raw materials and the finished products which gave us the equipment to overcome our enemies."

Who can deny it? As the war ended the United States was producing almost half of the world's munitions, and that comprehends the production of both friends and foes. The navy built up a two ocean armada of 1,500 fighting ships and 100,000 other vessels of all sizes, a fleet greater than the combined navies of all the rest of the world. American ship yards produced 60 million deadweight tons of merchant ships—a greater tonnage than all the nations of the world had afloat at the outbreak of war in 1939.

In less than three years America produced 223,444 aircraft, 184,433 of which were combat planes. It produced 119,400 tanks and armored cars, 2,400,000 trucks, including 660,000 jeeps; 180,000 tractors, bulldozers, and other pieces of heavy construction machinery; 1,700,000 radio sets, 2,660,000 telephones, 29 million tents, 117 million pairs of field and dress shoes, and 7,000 locomotives.

During the war it achieved the staggering production of 1,116,000 artillery pieces and 18,900,000 small arms. It produced shells by the tens of millions and small-arms ammunition by the billions. Our railroads alone handled 287 million tons of army frate. The power of this country, brought to bear on the battle line, was crushing. It could not be answered, even without the final addition of the atomic bomb.

The beleaguered nations of the world, which turned to us in desperation when Germany, Italy, and Japan had them on the verge of a knockout, might not have been so eager for our aid if they had known in advance that, in giving it, we should create a nation of such power as had never been seen in history. Hyphenated Americans, who were crying for us to rescue other countries, are entitled to the dubious satisfaction of knowing that we did; but they must reconcile themselves to the fact that the enormous increment to our own power has relegated those other countries to a secondary status in a world over which the American colossus towers. Russia alone, with its unlimited cannon fodder, its vast reaches, and its undeveloped resources, is the only other nation to be reckoned in any sense as a world power.

In contrast to Russia this nation possesses the unconquerable vitality that freedom imparts. Freedom is the secret weapon in our arsenal—secret to the greatest part of the globe. Mr. Truman recognized how potent freedom is in releasing the energies of a people in a fight for survival.

"But back of it all," he said, in reviewing the staggering accomplishment of this nation, "were the will and spirit and determination of a free people—who know what freedom is and who know that it is worth whatever price they have to pay to preserve it.

"It was the spirit of liberty which gave us our armed strength and which made our men invincible in battle. We now know that the spirit of liberty, the freedom of the individual, and the personal dignity of man are the strongest and toughest and most enduring forces in all the world."

We are glad to hear President Truman say that. We are glad that the production record and the battle record of free America bear out the statement so completely. We hope that the New Dealers who have been intent upon destroying the American system which has made so much possible will take the lesson to heart. With renewed strength and belief in our institutions and our tradition we can, in the peace that follows the victory, outstrip even our surpassing achievements in the testing time of war.

LICKED AGAIN

The elections Tuesday to fill aldermanic vacancies showed the Republican ward organizations in Chicago to be as ineffectual as ever. In the 31st ward the Republicans did not even put up a candidate. In the 36th their man got into a run-off by reason of running a good second in a field of six candidates. In the 50th ward, long regarded a Republican stronghold, the party's candidate was soundly beaten.

It should dawn on the Republican organization in Illinois that it cannot allow its Chicago organization to continue in its deteriorated and helpless state much longer if it wants to hold onto the state. The returns of the last election showed that several hundred thousand voters had left the Republican strongholds downstate and almost the same number had come to Chicago, where the Democrat machine can work on them without substantial competition from the Republicans. This, it is true, was war time migration, but experience after the last war showed that a good deal of that type of migration stays put.

Republican control of the state is retained by a thread as it is. Half of the party's state ticket was beaten, and those that won got in by the slimmest of majorities.

The party has a good deal of legitimate patronage at the disposal of the state administration. It should be used to strengthen its organization in Chicago. The election returns over the last few years raise a strong suspicion that that patronage isn't going into the right hands.

THE KURILE DEAL

The claims of the supporters of President Truman that he obtained Stalin's consent at Potsdam to American occupation of the Kurile Islands are now shown to be erroneous. Mr. Truman couldn't make such a bargain, because Mr. Roosevelt had closed the door on it. At Yalta he gave the Kuriles, most of which had never been occupied by the Russians, to Stalin.

In Europe, Stalin made a sucker out of Prime Minister Churchill. In this, also, he had the assistance of Mr. Roosevelt, who first vetoed Churchill's proposal to go into the Balkans and counter Russian influence there, and then sabotaged Churchill's own action when the British sent troops into Yugoslavia. Today Russia holds all of eastern Europe and is still even in possession of the Danish island of Bornholm, which, if retained, will make the Baltic a Russian lake.

In Asia, Stalin made an even greater sucker of Mr. Roosevelt. Russia there regained all that it lost in 1904, when the Japanese fought as an ally of Britain and with the backing of preponderant sentiment in this country. In addition, Stalin gets the Kuriles. All this without fighting when the blows would have meant anything. The Kuriles are, it is true, adjacent to Russian territory, but the territory is frigid and nonproductive. American bases there would not threaten vital Russian interests because there are none to threaten, but Russian bases there will lie on the flank of our bases in the Pacific.

President Wilson made Japan a threat to us by giving her the Marshalls and the Carolines in order that nothing might impede his mania for a league of nations. President Roosevelt has made Russia, a far bigger and more powerful nation, a threat by his deal on the Kuriles. That is the price we have had to pay, twice, for having presidents who put their personal interest and their egotism above the true interests of their country.

THEOLOGICAL NOTE

The CIO central body in Milwaukee wants to buy Greendale, a model village that turned out to be one of the more severe headaches of the federal public housing program. This is interesting in itself, but the proposal of Meyer Adelman, secretary of the CIO council, for the handling of churches in the village is even more interesting. Adelman said that any churches built would be supported by tax money or rental income from village property, the clergymen paid by the village, and no collections taken. In short, a state church with the preachers getting their pay from the CIO and taking orders with their pay. We just thought you ought to know how the minds of some of these great "liberals" run.

WISE STEPS IN JAPAN

Lt. Gen. Eichelberger, who is the commander of our occupation forces in Japan, says that there is going to be no nonfraternization order imposed on our troops in that country. Looting or other violations of military discipline will be punished severely and Japanese war criminals will be screened out and held for trial as quickly as possible, but, the general said, American tradition has never countenanced punishment of civilians of a conquered nation after its surrender.

His stand augurs well for the success of our occupation of Japan. The nonfraternization order in Europe has already made itself ridiculous.

Since the extermination of the Japanese population is neither morally nor physically possible, we face the fact that we will have to live in the same world with the Japanese people. The obviously wise course to take is to separate the good elements of the population from the bad, punish the latter most severely for their crimes against the laws of war and against humanity, and undertake the task of stimulating the Japanese to establish their own democratic government.

That obviously is going to be a difficult task and one of long duration, but the steps already taken toward it by Gen. MacArthur and Gen. Eichelberger are more promising of success than are the efforts on the other side of the world to turn all of central Europe into a chaotic playground for communist missionaries.

FASHIONS FOR VICTORS

The candid cameras of Tokyo bay revealed the victors in negligée and the conquered in formal attire, which seems to be according to the old American custom established by Unconditional Surrender Grant at Appomattox Court House. An amateur philosopher, writing to the Japanese newspapers, says that this ought to be a lesson to his fellow countrymen on the superiority of efficiency over ritualism, but we suspect it doesn't prove anything except that our generals prefer working clothes on campaign.

Of course MacArthur wore his celebrated cap, which has a certain flamboyance, but it has seen more hard service than the helmet of Navarre and certainly earned a place at the green table of triumph. The signatories of vanquished Nippon probably admired it as a symbol of the supremacy to which they bowed, and would have been shocked to learn that it has been criticized as too ostentatious by our pettiest naggers.

The Japanese idea of a general's cap, worn with dress uniform, should have deepened the embarrassment of the surrenderers. It is the same as a private soldier's, and is undoubtedly the world's worst looking cap. It may have efficiency, for it fits tightly around the skull and is not likely to be blown off except when the wearer's head goes with it. Moreover, in jungle fighting, it may camouflage a sniper as a toadstool or a venomous lizard. But it is a runty and morbid piece of apparel, unworthy of a people said to be gifted in the art of design.

Such a cap, captured [brand new] in the Philippines by Walter Simmons of THE TRIBUNE staff, is cherished as a souvenir by the gentleman at an adjacent desk. It is boy's size, but adjustable to adult skulls by a lacing at the back. In a rash moment we put it on and invited comment. The assistant cosmetics editor almost fainted. Then, to get the effect, we tried to clap it on the majestic dome of Delos Avery, but he shrank away in horror and yelled, "That thing is booby-trapped!"

LETTERS HE WRITES

The calm of Heidelberg, unscathed and green;
His "Eisenhower jacket," new and neat;
Sealed orders, off to Brussels and between,
Then back thru Paris, and each bedlamed street
When Jap surrender news fell from the sky;
The mail's delay; his questions' wistful touch;
The croix de guerre [he never told us why]—
Certificate of merit, "nothing much"—
So run the meager letters that he writes.
He has but little time for private things
With jobs to do, and tasks he expedites,
And yet one note recurs on harplike strings;
How all these days are drab and wearisome
Until his final sailing orders come.

SCOUT REPORT

There was drama, of course,
At the All-Star game—
There always is—
But I rate it tame
To what I saw
As the people came.

Some crippled veterans
Toiled into view;
Wheel chairs and crutches,
A body askew,
The stump of a limb—
Or even two.

A sound that was faint,
As a prayer or sigh,
Swept thru the crowd—
They clapped, so did I;
You had to do something,
You couldn't cry.

They didn't want that,
One couldn't help knowing;
They hobbled and joked,
And succeeded in showing
It was football they wished,
And, hell! weren't they going?

[The Friend of the Yanks will answer questions of service men, veterans, and their dependents by mail if stamped envelope is sent to 435 N. Michigan av. The Tribune's veterans' bureau, 1 S. Dearborn st., Superior 0200, gives personal interviews.]

Mrs. M. N. writes: "A private now in camp sends his mother $25 a month out of his pay. He intends to complete his university education under the GI bill. When he goes to school can he get an allowance from the government for his mother in addition to the $25 he now sends her? The mother, who is working, up to now has been denied dependent allowance from the government. Can a veteran get government help for a mother and also for a wife while going to school under the GI bill? How much is given to a veteran for himself and wife while he is attending school? How much would be given to a soldier for his mother if he already was getting an allowance for his wife?"

If dependent allowance was denied to you by the office of dependency benefits it was because you and your son in service failed to show the bureau that you were dependent upon him for either a major part of your support or your chief support. The $25 voluntary allotment you receive comes entirely from your son's pay and nothing is added by the government. If your son enters a university after discharge under provisions of the so-called GI bill he may obtain a subsistence allowance of $50 a month if without a dependent and $75 if he has a dependent. If he is single and claims you as a dependent you will have to convince the veterans' administration of the dependency. If he is married when he enters school he can obtain $75 because of the dependency of the wife, but no more on your claim of dependency.

A STRANGE TYPE OF SLEEP —NARCOLEPSY

EVERY now and then letters are received by this department from readers complaining of spells of sleepiness. Some of us have seen people doze off at church or while listening to a dull, uninteresting lecture, but when the phenomenon develops out of a clear sky, regardless of the time of day or the place, we have reason enough to be concerned.

In 1880 a French physician applied the term "narcolepsy" to denote an uncontrolable desire for sleep. Occasionally loss of muscle power will accompany an attack, forcing the victim to collapse to the floor from weakness. Some authorities are of the opinion that the incident is associated with certain disturbances of the nervous system. The brief periods of unconsciousness may suggest involvement of the brain. However, these factors are not always considered for milder forms are often precipitated by seizures of laughter, anger, excitement, and tension. Stout children are prone to exhibit the manifestation during meals. The fat boy in Pickwick is a good illustration.

As a rule the trancelike state is only of short duration but usually reappears at intervals during the course of the day. In most instances the attacks are best controled by stimulating drugs. Adequate doses of benzedrine and ephedrine have brought remarkable results. For those who do not respond to this combination, another compound—desoxyephedrine—has been advocated. Nevertheless, whichever chemical is employed, it must be continued under careful administration as long as symptoms persist.

A report from a leading clinic described the case of a young woman who observed that at times all thru her college years she found difficulty in remaining awake in class. Lack of muscular tone was noted when laughing or upon emotional strain. A physical checkup revealed a normal healthy individual and a diagnosis of narcolepsy was made. She was directed to take benzedrine and ephedrine, whereupon she improved considerably.

Apparently the malady has aroused the interest of medical men more recently because of the frequent discovery of military personnel slumbering on duty. An interesting story is related by a soldier who was posted as a guard one morning from 2 to 4. At 4 o'clock the relief man failed to appear. Consequently he became furious at this carelessness and grew angrier by the minute. Soon he became sleepy and it was so pronounced that it was all he could do to walk his station. Finally, two hours later he was replaced and drowsiness, which had been so overpowering before, vanished suddenly and he was wide awake.

Hence we can understand why soldiers may become lethargic when they have an impulse to escape from an uncomfortable or sometimes dangerous situation. But this aspect deserves more study and perhaps the experiences of the war will throw more light on this peculiar disorder.

Some look upon the complaint as evidence of epilepsy. Altho the onset in both is somewhat similar, it must be understood that there is no relationship whatsoever.

CHINA BLUE

L. M. writes: What makes the white part of some people's eyes a bluish color?

REPLY

This structure, the sclera, may be thinner than normal. Pigmentation from deeper tissues may show thru. The manifestation may be associated with a rare disorder known as "osteogenesis," in which there is fragility of the bones and a certain type of deafness.

WEAR AND TEAR

Mrs. A. B. C. writes: What is a tired heart?

REPLY

Physicians use the expression to denote that the organ has aged along with other body processes. In other words, function is decreasing, but probably adequate for the needs.

CAUTION NEEDED

Mrs. R. J. writes: Is physiotherapy of value for poor circulation due to low blood pressure?

REPLY

POETIC LICENSE

M. C. T. writes: Can an enlarged heart result from constant sighing?

REPLY

Poets usually associate sighing with the affairs of the heart, but there is no scientific relationship.

This Land Is Theirs

The monument makers and sculptors doubtless are rolling their sleeves all the way up to their shoulders now that the long war has ended. They are waiting for the donors of monuments to the newly war dead to give them the go-ahead signal. The donors will make their plans in the finest spirit possible, that of commemorating sacrifice and gratitude, but before they make their final decision and the chisels begin to fall, they would do well to pause and read carefully Joseph Hudnut's article, "The Monument Does Not Remember," in the current Atlantic Monthly.

Mr. Hudnut is dean and professor of architecture at Harvard university. As hundreds of communities thruout America wonder how to commemorate their dead, he looks back at the monuments of the past and analyzes their aim and their accomplishment. He ignores only Ozymandias as he epitomizes: "An infatuation with monuments is the common trait of Pharaoh, Caesar, Napoleon, and Hitler."

The ancient, first monument was a heap of stones to protect the body of the fallen. It was built for shelter. To that was added the need for praise, so the stones were piled higher, in order, and more nobly placed together. To this was added the need for aesthetic pleasure, so behind the stones was built the peristyle. To all of these finally was added the need for remembrance. Thus the effigies and pictures, thus the bronze statue of the frozen general on his frozen steed, thus the inscription and bas-relief.

"When monuments are big enough," Mr. Hudnut writes, "they will astonish the people; when they are old enough, they may capture the people's imagination; associated with the dead, they are pegs for the people's piety; but without pictures the people will not love them. Monuments must enact history, as does Liberty, enlightening the world in New York harbor."

Yet, he asks, what picture can show us war? What realism can compass the horror and madness, the confusion, pain, filth, and waste of war? What symbol can invoke the smallest part of it?

The monuments of other wars show the glamor, the adventure, the heroic posture of war, "but not the cruelty which gives these meaning." In New York Sherman, led by a delicate Victory, rides an elegant horse out of Central park. "What was it that Sherman said of war? Who was the better witness, the general or his statue?" And Lee, wrapped in his beautiful legend. "What is there here of war? A gentleman rides his horse on Monument avenue." One could apply the same stern sliderule to Chicago's Grant, perched high above the syringa of Lincoln park on a stone steed already crumbling, to the bronze, benign Sheridan on an off-balance rearing horse, to the bronze doughboy, helmet always on head, knapsack always on back, rifle always loaded and ready, charging beside the pigeon droppings in every village square in America.

Mr. Hudnut thinks the sculptors will ignore the generals this time. He thinks they will concentrate on the enlisted man. They will slight no homely circumstance to "bring the grim business to your doorstep in a democratic guise," but he doesn't think they will succeed. War will hide behind the common man as easily as behind the conqueror: "The monument will not remember."

Lincoln, he says, is less honored by those who portray his gaunt figure than by those who repeat his generous soul. The Salvation Army youth, beating his kettle on the sidewalk, continues William Booth. The nurse in the Solomons continues Florence Nightingale. Only the spirit lives justly.

Instead of useless monuments, he pleads, why not useful buildings? Parks in slums. Playgrounds where children now play in streets. A music hall, theater, library, a church accessible to all faiths. "The role of these continues thru the years. They are not static. They are not make-believe. They serve; and they are always beautiful." The soldiers, he says, will understand. They fought for opportunity. "This land is their immortality."

THE BACKGROUND OF PEARL HARBOR

Algoma, Wis., Sept. 3—Mrs. Johns and I just finished reading the article by John T. Flynn in THE SUNDAY TRIBUNE of Sept. 2. As an ex-member of congress, who served during our preparation for the war, which included the lend-lease law, I am grateful to you for this splendid article. The powers given the President by congress were responsible for many of the things he did.

I am frank to say to you that you have given to the readers of America, and the world at large, one of the most enlightening statements they have received during the war or since its end. Its far-reaching effect on the people cannot be estimated at this time, but they will have time to reflect and think. I hope it will also awaken congress to some of its duties in the future.

Americans should read the debate on the lend-lease bill of Feb. 5, 1941, and obtain the conclusions of some members of congress at that time. Many members saw the dangers facing us but were helpless to do anything about it, except vote against the bill. This they did and took the abuse that followed.

God grant that your paper may continue to be for America first, last, and all the time, which has been the policy of your paper in the past. With this in mind, more power to you.

JOSHUA L. JOHNS,

THEY LONG FOR HOME

SALZBURG, Austria, Aug. 26 — Having fought and won the war, we soldiers are thinking only of getting home and out of the army. Because some of us were kept on duty in the States training men for two and three years, we find now we must also do occupation duty here. Surely total service should be more of a consideration for discharge than it is now.

There are so many boys and young men who could take this over now for a time and then themselves be replaced by still others who will come of age. These, with the regular army, should be sufficient. After three and four years we do not want schooling, passes, and army life—give us back to our wives and homes.

OCCUPATION

SCARED OF THE AFTERMATH

Jones, Mich., Sept. 2—The Japanese surrender caught our Washington "planners" unprepared. Their failure to discharge war weary men promptly is wholly economic and has nothing whatever to do with military necessity. They will not discharge service men into a falling labor market unless compelled by public sentiment so to do. The "emergency" is still with us and its end is not in sight. Imagine now the feelings of our loyal sons who enlisted for the duration and six months.

FRANK DAVIS

IT WAS ALL OUR FAULT!

Chicago, Sept. 2—After just reading your so-called "exposé" on Pearl Harbor, I have decided you are more disgusting than ever. How you have the nerve to blame it all on President Roosevelt, when just the cartoons in your paper could start a war all by itself, takes the cake. If as you say "President Roosevelt was playing with his stamps that peaceful Sunday morning," then he had the right to. You should be thoroughly ashamed to print such trash.

ROBERTA KAUFMAN

HEADSTRONG MEN

Chicago, Sept. 2—It should be apparent from John T. Flynn's article that the greatest curse that can befall the United States is the succession to the Presidency of a headstrong man—a so-called strong or super-man. Our long episode with Franklin D. Roosevelt is ample proof that the one great danger to the Republic, existing under the Constitution, is the great power and vast prestige which it vests in the Presidency. Many of the founding fathers who participated in the drafting of the Constitution were fearful of this. Experience has now demonstrated the basis for those fears. Before it becomes too late thru the possible elevation of another "strong man" to the Presidency, the Constitution should be amended so as to limit the tenure of a President to one term [whether of four or six years or some other duration] and restrict his present powers, as well as make it clear that the President should not be treated with sanctity as above reproach, and as tho he could do no wrong.

WILLIS A. OVERHOLSER

MAYOR KELLY'S UTOPIA

Oak Park, Ill., Aug. 30—Mayor Kelly thinks we'd as soon eat as be free; that we don't care which feeds us, Hitler or Ford.

Now while our craws are still full of war food, let's look into this thing. Isn't Kelly the sly old fox? He knows we don't want to be on the pay roll of Greed. Red Joe, our dear friend, says Marx is right. Ford is Greed. Who are we to say he isn't?

Joe says: Out with him. We say: Out with him. We want more to eat. We want a nice ice box to keep feed cold. We don't want a Ford ice box; we want a Marx ice box.

Some men have saved their dimes and owned part of Ford plants; they are Greed, too. To h—— with Ford! He makes us work too hard.

So that leaves us Kelly and Hitler. Hitler is no more, and that leaves us Kelly. Kelly thinks he can do Hitler's job. If Hitler can feed and make saps like it, Kelly can feed and make saps like it. He'll let us have cake, too.

Of course, in the new dispensation, there is no high boss or court to cry to when things don't suit us, when cake is stale or soup is sour, but there'll be no strikes, and we'll eat.

Besides, Ford makes us work too hard.

ATTORNEY'S FEES IN PROBATE

Chicago, Aug. 30—In probating a will recently the probate judge fixed the attorney's fee altho there had been an agreement between the parties as to the amount that was to be charged. [1] Has the probate judge the power to arbitrarily fix the fee? [2] Has a judge in any court the constitutional power to fix any attorney's fees?

W. W. W.

1. He has the power to fix the fee, but not arbitrarily.
2. Yes, on the proper facts, in the sense that he might fix the fee. The Constitution does not say anything about it.

DE MILLE GROUP OPENS FIGHT ON UNION COERCION

Seek's Free Labor from Political Restraint

Sacramento, Cal., Sept. 5 [Special]—Articles of incorporation of the De Mille Foundation for Political Freedom, which were filed here today, denounced "political coercion" and defended the right of individuals to work for a living without paying tribute to any political groups.

The opening paragraph of the articles states that the purpose of the organization is " to defend the political rights of the individual and oppose political coercion in any form from any source."

National headquarters of the foundation were opened in Los Angeles, Cal., last April 10 by citizens who protested the principles that cost Cecil B. de Mille, Hollywood producer, his job on a national radio network because he refused to pay his union a $1 political assessment.

Ousted by AFL Union

De Mille was ousted from the AFL radio artists' union after he balked at paying an assessment levied in August, 1944, to fight an anti-closed shop amendment to the California constitution. This amendment would have prohibited unions from interfering with employment regardless of whether or not a worker belonged to a labor organization. The amendment was defeated in the Nov. 7 election.

De Mille took his case to court, but the Superior court in Los Angeles ruled last January that the union had the right to make the $1 levy.

One announced aim of the foundation is the "banding together of millions of Americans, who heretofore have not been organized, into a mighty force and voice to fight and defeat the powerful overlords of political freedom."

Opposes Dues Payment

The articles further provide that every individual shall have the right to "work and earn a living without paying dues or assessments for any political cause sponsored by an employer, association, corporation, or labor union." Violations of the "letter and spirit of the Bill of Rights" are to be publicized thruout the nation.

The articles describe the foundation as "nonpolitical, nonpartisan, nonprofit, and nonsectarian." They provide that no funds of the foundation will be used to initiate legislation or to support or oppose political candidates. They also set forth that "all persons may freely organize, form labor unions, and bargain collectively." Membership is open to all, free from dues or assessments, but voluntary contributions will be accepted. The incorporators declined to disclose how much they have contributed.

Sponsors of Group

Listed as incorporators of the foundation are:

William M. Jeffers, president of the Union Pacific railroad; De Mille; Dr. Lloyd C. Douglas, clergyman and author; Y. Frank Freeman, motion picture executive; Victor H. Rossetti, president of the Farmers and Merchants National bank and the Los Angeles Clearing House association; Samuel M. Haskins, attorney; Willard W. Keith, president of Cosgrove & Co., insurance brokers; Frank P. Doherty, attorney, and Neil S. McCarthy, attorney.

The incorporators are named as the original board of directors and the articles provide for an enlarged directorate as leaders for labor, business, and civic groups thruout the nation are elected to it.

LITIGANTS FILL DIVORCE COURTS AS TERM OPENS

Divorce courtrooms in the County building yesterday were swamped with litigants and their attorneys eager to obtain trial dates for their cases. It was the opening day for the 1945-'46 court season. The courts had heard only emergency cases during the summer vacation.

Judge Edwin A. Robson of the Superior court opened his court a half hour early, at 9:30 a. m., and by 10 a. m. had set 200 cases for hearing.

Chief Justice Michael L. McKinley of the Superior court requested a survey made of the more than 10,000 cases pending in that branch, to determine whether some of them can be dismissed. He recalled that a similar survey several years ago resulted in the dismissal of some 4,000 cases.

INSTALMENT XL.

HUNTED

Yorky lit a lamp in the cabin and the brothers carried the body inside and put it on a cot. Ned covered the face with a handkerchief.

The hut was one used by line riders caught by night too far from the ranch. It was kept stocked with provisions for them. Somebody had eaten a meal there that day.

"Father must have fixed him a dinner," Ned said.

"Not father, somebody else," Rod differed. "The man who ate here saw him coming and killed him before he got off his horse."

Ned, whitefaced and shaken, looked at his brother. "While I was driving the calves up this morning I saw a fellow riding across the pasture. The horse was a bay. It was heading this way."

"Could you tell who the man was?"

"No. Too far away. I kinda thought the horse was one I knew. But I guess not."

Rod had picked up a paper, burned at one end. It was part of an envelope twisted into a spill, no doubt to light a pipe. Part of the address was still on the charred paper, the letters at the right hand side.

ns,
nch,
oads,
ming.

The young man frowned down at the scrap of writing. "Some one on a ranch who gets his mail at Cross Roads," he murmured. "What ranch, do you reckon? Might be ours."

Ned peered around his shoulder. "One of our boys might of left it a week ago."

"Yeah, so he might." Rod spoke slowly, thinking aloud. "Or the killer might have left it today. Whose horse was it you thought was crossing the pasture?" he asked.

"I sort of thought for a minute it was that big bay of Bill Cairns," Ned replied. "But I might easy have been wrong."

"You weren't wrong. The man was Cairns, and the murdering fool has left his calling card to tell us he was here."

From his pocket Rod took a letter, and on the back of the envelope wrote an address.

Mr. William Cairns,
Diamond Tail Ranch,
Cross Roads, Wyoming.

Cairns had probably lit the spill after he had eaten, before the arrival of Jeff. He had stamped it out and dropped it.

But after Cairns had shot the ranchman from his horse it became vitally important nobody should know he had been in the neighborhood. Rod had no doubt that the fellow had been in a panic to get away without being seen. The charred spill escaped his mind entirely.

The gunny sack with the provisions had vanished. The killer must have taken it with him. If he was getting out of the country he would want to travel light, yet have supplies enough.

Rod knew now that Linda had not exaggerated the danger when she met Cairns. He had wanted to kill her because she could testify he had been on the spot where the murder was committed. Only the girl's quick wit had saved her.

After Bud arrived with the wagon they took the body of the ranchman back to the Diamond Tail. Rod sent riders to the adjoining spreads with the news of the crime. He did not wait for the sheriff, but armed and saddled his men as quickly as he could.

Before they started, Mary brought out to Rod a note she had found in the coat pocket of her husband. Evidently it had been left by a messenger. It read:

Jeff, I'll be at the old Renaud cabin tonight. Bring me grub and cartridges for my .45. Do this yourself or send Rod. If you can't make it to Renaud's leave the stuff at the south boundary cabin. Keep mum about my being here. I'm not forgetting the job you want done. Burn this. Quint

This was the explanation of course for old Jeff's trip to the line cabin. Rod had another angle in the tragedy to worry over. Had Quint Milroy been a party to the killing? If so, by setting the killer free, Rod had helped seal his father's doom.

He was inclined to acquit Milroy of complicity. Since his father had wanted to get food to the man, he felt he ought to carry out the old man's wishes. Rod decided to take some to the Renaud cabin himself and have a talk with Milroy.

As Rod rode into the hills with his men a sentence in Quint's note jumped more than once to his mind. I'm not forgetting the job you want done. Rod was quite sure he knew what the job was.

Bruce had not been asleep an hour when he was awakened by the barking of the dogs and the voice of somebody outside calling to him. Thru the window he saw a man on horseback, who turned out to be Dick Spears from the Diamond Tail. He was rousing the settlers on the creek to tell them to be on the alert for Bill Cairns who had murdered Jeff Randall at the south boundary cabin. The cowpuncher brought a special message from Rod to Bruce. It was that the killing must have occurred just before Cairns met Linda on the ledge above the cabin. Bruce drew the same deduction that Randall had. Linda had missed death by a hair's breadth.

"Rod thinks Cairns will make for the Hole-in-the-Wall," Dick explained. "We're combing Squaw Creek and the country north of there. He thought you might cover Bear and its headwaters. Bill took enough grub from the cabin to last him several days."

The assignment suited Bruce. He decided to take Mark and Neal with him, leaving Ramrod at the ranch. While they were loading a pack animal with supplies, he consulted with the oldtimer as to where the fugitive was likely to hole up. The foreman suggested several likely spots for a camper on the dodge, among others Renaud's Roost.

Bruce had heard of the old cabin, but did not know exactly where it was. On a piece of wrapping paper Ramrod drew a map for him.

Tho there was no chance of running across Cairns during the night the Quartercircle D C men traveled for hours, working deeper into the high hills back of the ranch country.

About three o'clock Bruce called a halt. They lit a fire, thawed out, and rolled up in their blankets. The sky was lightening with the promise of coming day.

Bruce thought there was only a slender chance of finding the hunted man at Renaud's Roost, but he felt he ought to check on the place rather than by-pass it. He left the two cowboys, arranging to meet them later near the headwaters of Bear creek. Neal suggested that perhaps he ought to go with Sherrill, but Bruce vetoed the offer.

CITY'S AIRPORT PLANNERS PICK MEIGS AS CHIEF

Mayor's Committee Drafts Program

BY FRANK STURDY

The committee appointed by Mayor Kelley to choose a site for a new Chicago airport sufficiently large to assure space for runways long enough and numerous enough to satisfy air transport needs for many years in the future held its first meeting yesterday in the mayor's office, with the following accomplishments:

1. Elected Merrill C. Meigs, long time air enthusiast and supporter of projects to further the city's air ambitions, chairman; elected Robert Kingery, director of the Chicago Regional Planning association, secretary.

Will Report by Nov. 15

2. Accepted a mandate from the mayor to finish its business and submit a report by Nov. 15, so appropriations of funds proved necessary may be included in the 1946 budget.

3. Agreed to hold its next meeting next Monday, and other meetings each Monday thereafter, to receive advice from air lines' experts, representatives of the civil aeronautics administration, the Air Line Pilots' assocation, and others interested in getting the best location.

Mayor Kelly, meeting with the committee, submitted a letter pointing out that city planners have usually laid out airports of insufficient size, rarely one too large, and added:

"Chicago desires the best airport—the safest, the most convenient, and with the most capacity—on this continent. Otherwise Chicago cannot really aspire to become the center of aviation in even this country, not to mention the world."

Mayor Urges Prompt Action

"I am not suggesting hurried action, but feel that this task should be expedited as quickly as ample study, consideration of the foreseeable future, and sound judgment will permit you to act."

The committee decided to invite representatives of the CAA to appear at next Monday's meeting to supply information on airport operation.

Presidents of all the air lines will be asked to attend the second meeting. William A. Patterson, president of United Air Lines and a committee member, said in reply to a question from Ald. Lindell [9th] that the transport companies were agreed the present airport would be completely outgrown within five years, and that a minimum of 3,000 acres should be considered for the terminal to be selected.

ILLINOIS LABOR FEDERATION TO CONVENE OCT. 29

The Illinois State Federation of Labor will hold its annual convention beginning Oct. 29 in the Leland hotel, Springfield, Victor A. Olander, secretary-treasurer of the federation, announced yesterday. Relaxation by the office of defense transportation of its ban on conventions caused the officers to arrange the meeting.

More than 1,200 delegates representing the more than 3,000 affiliated local American Federation of Labor unions and central city bodies are expected to attend. The federation's affiliated units have in excess of 750 members, Olander disclosed.

Olander said the executive board of the state federation would immediately go into session to complete its report to be submitted to the convention and that local affiliates have been notified to prepare any resolutions they may wish to submit to the convention.

BARUCH URGES U. S. HUMANIZE DEMOBILIZING

Eliminate Grievances of Yanks, He Demands

Washington, D. C., Sept. 5 (AP)—Bernard M. Baruch said today the "human side of demobilization is being neglected tragically."

The veteran adviser to Presidents asserted returning soldiers and sailors must be reintegrated into their communities "socially, economically, and humanly."

"One terrible danger of failure," Baruch said in a report to Gen. Bradley, veterans' administrator, "may be to set the veteran off from the rest of the nation, cherishing the grievance of having been wronged, at odds with fellow Americans, his feelings an explosive fuel ready to be ignited by some future demagogs."

Steps Urged by Baruch

To correct the situation he said he found, Baruch proposed that:

1. Immediate steps be taken to provide jobs for all workers.

2. The medical and nonmedical functions of the veterans' administration be separated and streamlined.

3. The GI bill of rights be liberalized.

4. Veterans going into business be given special incentive tax rates.

Seven Point Program

Baruch summarized his recommendations in seven points:

"1. Name a vigorous, imaginative 'work director' immediately to vitalize the post of retraining and reemployment administrator to accomplish its original purpose of seeing that the human side of demobilization is not forgotten." [Congress created the job last year but it is unfilled.]

"2. Effect a clean cut division within the veterans' agency between medical and nonmedical matters creating a new veterans' medical service, under the head of an outstanding medical man.

"3. Name a small, fast working, independent committee to make an impartial study of every aspect of veterans' medical care, to submit a public report of recommendations or completely transforming the new veterans medical service to one that provides a challenge to all that is progressive in medical practice.

Increase for Doctors

"4. Effect substantial increases in salaries of doctors, nurses, and technicians in the new medical service; promotion on professional ability and skill against waiting in the line of seniority; freeing doctors of needless paper work thru more efficient hospital administration; ample opportunities for doctors to grow professionally thru post-graduate and refresher studies and thru effective ties with centers of medical education and skill; ample research facilities and encouragement of research by veterans' doctors.

"5. Name a small, fast working committee of impartial experts to review all the nonmedical aspects of the veterans administration, simplifying, modernizing, and decentralizing its procedures and cutting down delays in payments of all kinds.

"6. Overhaul the so-called GI bill of rights, particularly in regard to loans, whose provisions should be made effective over 10 years instead of two.

"7. Provide that an incentive tax of 25 per cent less than the normal rate be given veterans opening new businesses, this difference to be applied to the payments of their loans up to $25,000."

ORDERS SNYDER TO CHECK UP ON EUROPE'S CREDIT

Truman Sends Aid on Special Tour

Washington, D. C., Sept. 5 [Special]—President Truman today sent John Snyder, chief of the office of war mobilization and reconversion, with two other highly placed government officials to western Europe as his "eyes and ears" to learn at first hand the needs of that area and their possibilities of repaying the United States for obligations thus incurred.

The President's action was learned from White House intimates, who said that Snyder will head a group of three that will include W. Stuart Symington, head of the surplus property board, and Senate Secretary Leslie Biffle. The group is expected to be in Europe for a fortnight, leaving Saturday.

Expect to Visit Austria

The trip thru Europe is expected to take the group as far into Europe as Salzburg, Austria.

Snyder has not disclosed, even to associates, the exact nature of his assignment, but those in a position to know described the purpose of his mission as follows:

1. To have a first hand look at stock piles of lend-lease materials housed mainly in British warehouses in England and on the continent, to determine their extent. It is known that lend-lease books in Washington are open to question as to how much of what has been sent our British allies.

2. To determine whom, among the allied governments, should get "first crack" at the stock piled materials depending on their need.

Probe Made of Payment

3. Whether continued United States aid should be paid for in dollar exchanges or other considerations.

4. To determine the extent to which this nation should consider itself obligated to send foodstuffs and coal to Britain and to the liberated countries of Europe.

President Truman, while entirely sympathetic with the plight in which the British economy finds itself as a result of the sudden ending of lend-lease operations, is said to be determined to aid Britain as much and no more than required by the necessities.

The President is understood to hold that, sooner or later, all nations must stand on their own feet in the handling of their economies.

First Plane Load of 8,000 Chicks Off to California

An air shipment of 8,000 chicks left the Joliet airport yesterday for delivery to a hatchery owned by Lawrence Braly at Tarzana, Cal., who has contracted for similar shipments to be made twice a week in his specially equipped airplane. Braly said the plane has carried chicks to a height of 9,000 feet without ill effects in experimental flights. The cabin has special heating and ventilating devices.

GREEN URGES QUICK RELEASE OF WAR PLANTS

Jackson, Miss., Sept. 5 [Special]—"If the government will release plants for civilian production as promptly as it took them over for war purposes, our main problems will be solved," Gov. Green of Illinois said here tonight.

Gov. Green spoke at a dinner given in his honor by Gov. Thomas L. Bailey of Mississippi in ceremonies opening the centennial celebration of the city of Peoria, Ill., and the 10th anniversary of the Letourneau plant there. The principal Letourneau plant, which manufactures earth moving equipment, is in Peoria, and a subsidiary is in Vicksburg, Miss.

One hundred Mississippi public officials and business leaders were at the dinner.

The Illinois governor said that the most pressing problem is private jobs and opportunities, not only for the returning veterans but also for former war workers.

Gov. Green, accompanied by Gov. Bailey and other Mississippians, flew to Vicksburg today to visit the Letourneau plant there and to place wreaths on the monuments to Illinois and Mississippi dead of the Civil war. The party will leave tomorrow morning for Peoria to participate in the Illinois end of the celebration.

HEAR DONOVAN READY TO QUIT AS HEAD OF OSS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 5—Maj. Gen. William J. Donovan has offered his resignation as head of the office of strategic services, the administration's supersecret war time intelligence unit, it was authoritatively reported here tonight.

Informed sources said Gen. Donovan also has recommended to President Truman the peace time establishment of a superforeign secret service agency to supervise and coordinate army and navy intelligence operations.

Such a plan was quietly drafted by Donovan earlier this year, but was shelved after it was exposed publicly and met violent criticism in congress. Legislators expressed fears the proposed superunit, which would have directed the federal bureau of investigation as well as military intelligence, would be used to "spy" on American citizens as well as foreign powers.

DECIDE TO ASK STATE PAY THIRD ON CONGRESS ST.

Mayor Kelly yesterday was named chairman of a joint committee of city and county officials which was organized for the purpose of seeking substantial state aid in the financing of the Congress st. widening project.

The committee expects to meet soon with Gov. Green, and to ask that the state pay one-third of the cost of the project to the city limits at Austin av. Congress st. is expected to cost 45 million dollars.

Meanwhile, plans have been completed for the construction of the first portion of the Illinois and Michigan canal super-highway. This calls for a nonstop expressway in the bed of the abandoned canal from Kedzie to Cicero avs. The length is 2.2 miles. The cost is estimated at $1,100,000.

LOOKING UP THE TRACKS

To Demobilization

To you returning Veterans we feel the same urgent responsibility for getting you Home as we did for getting you to the Front. There are inspiration and satisfaction in the happy ending of a job that only yesterday had nothing but the grimmest aspects. Count on us to keep the supply lines open and to serve you faithfully.

To Reconversion

To Industry we say it is our purpose to gear our operations with yours, in order to smooth and shorten the route to Reconversion and Peacetime Commerce. We will provide the type of transportation required by manufacturers for the prompt delivery of needed raw material and for the economic distribution of finished goods.

To Modernization

To Travelers, as soon as demobilization permits, we pledge a full and quick transition of passenger service—tuned to the times and to the traditions of The Milwaukee Road . . . To old friends, who at times relinquished their privilege to travel in their accustomed style, we convey our gratitude for their patience and understanding . . . Good days of comfort and hospitality for all Milwaukee Road patrons are ahead.

The Milwaukee Road looks forward to being unceasingly busy in performing these jobs. A long-term program of development and modernization of plant and facilities is being carried forward. Later plans, now in the making, will be progressively unfolded.

Look up the track! The signals say "All clear!" Let's go!

Girls in Service to Have Center in Lake Forest

BY JUDITH CASS

ONE of the main points in the forthcoming Chicago Community and War Fund drive is the need for money to continue recreation and entertainment for the millions of men and women still in uniform altho the war is over. The entertainment overseas is provided thru the united service organization camp shows. Here at home service women stationed on the north shore soon will have a new recreation center of their own.

Called a service women's U. S. O., it will be opened next week in what was formerly a Methodist church, located at the north end of the electric railroad station in Lake Forest. Because Great Lakes will continue to function for some time as one of the largest separation centers, there is particular need for a homelike gathering place for its feminine personnel. A ship's company of 1,200 WAVES will be stationed at Great Lakes for at least a year, in addition to the 1,000 WAVE corpsmen who are there in shifts.

Mrs. Boyd Hill, chairman of the new center, expects the redecorated and remodeled church, which has been vacant for the last 10 years, to be ready by Saturday of next week or earlier. Mrs. Kellogg Beach, the former Frances Glore, heads the program committee for the new project, and Mrs. Arthur M. Fellows is chairman of the house committee.

The center needs more kitchen utensils, books, magazines, and phonograph records. The building will contain a large lounge with a stage, piano, and ping-pong tables; a reading room, dressing rooms with showers, baths, and pressing facilities, and, apparently what the women want most of all, an attractive kitchen and eating space. All women in uniform will be welcome.

Other Lake Forest Notes

Because of its proximity to Great Lakes and Fort Sheridan, Lake Forest has been deluged with service men and women during the war. Across the street from the church is the Lake Forest service men's cottage, which has been a "home away from home" for service men for the last four years. It celebrated its birthday anniversary informally last Saturday. Just how long this center will continue to be useful will be discussed at a meeting of the cottage's board of directors next Monday. It probably will continue to operate for at least another three months.

William A. P. Pullman is president of the cottage, which has been host to more than 61,000 service men. It also has a kitchen where visitors enjoy cooking for themselves. All food and other expenses of the cottage have been paid for by voluntary subscriptions of Lake Foresters.

Mrs. Lester Armour is house chairman of the cottage. Mrs. Theodore Proxmire, Mrs. Wirt Morton, Mrs. William Roy Carney, Mrs. Thomas A. Connors, Mrs. Edward F. Swift, Mrs. Calvin Trowbridge, Mrs. Philip Seidel, and Mrs. Maurice Bent were among the women who took an active part in redecorating and opening the cottage Sept. 1, 1941. Mrs. Laura L. Gray, assisted by Mrs.

Don't Make a Project of It

"If you work eight hours a day you are spending one-third of your life at work," says Martin Panzer, author of "Get a Kick Out of Living." "If your working hours do not bring you maximum returns in contentment and happiness you are cheating yourself."

Mr. Panzer's contention is that "people who don't make projects out of assignments unless the assignments actually constitute projects get more done, more efficiently, in less time, with less hullabaloo; they get more fun out of working and therefore more fun out of living than those who make mountains out of mole hills."

Should you be one to make a project out of everything you do, look, he advises, to these qualities: Lack of confidence in your ability to do the job, actual incompetence, unorganized thinking, lack of concentration, habitual worrisomeness, laziness, hunger for power, noncooperativeness, unwillingness to adopt modern techniques, detail mania or, its opposite, carelessness, and excitability. One, or all of them, can be the reason.

With you I knew of jealousy,
But now of that I'm strangely free.

Your every criticism tore
A heart which now is rarely sore.

Those days I answered beck and call
I scarcely miss, now, if at all.

When you were gone I worried so
But little now of that I know.

My life's so calm, compared to then—
I wish that you were back again!

2½ Million Dollar Collection Puts Luxury Back in Style

BY RITA FITZPATRICK

The heat was forgotten in the Palmer House yesterday when a corps of glamorous models, wrapped in 2½ million dollars' worth of furs, presented the annual State Street council fur showing for members of the press.

That luxury is once more in style now that the war is over was apparent from the moment that the first of the Estelle Compton models stepped onto the runway. Casual platinum mink coats valued at $9,000, sporty fisher swagger models priced at $2,600, blonde and natural minks, white Russian ermine stoles, and Persian lambs whose elegance were reminiscent of pre-Pearl Harbor days made up the collection from 12 State st. stores.

As a highlight of the show this year, a competition for the fur queen of State st. and her four ladies-in-waiting was judged by fashion experts and editors. Scoring was determined by photogenic characteristics, posture and carriage, and general attractiveness, and smile. So becoming were the new fur styles, the judges had difficulty in choosing the court of mannequins, they said.

Tall, willowy Kay Kennedy, a brunette, received the most votes. Her court included Marion Vena, Miriam Wilson, Grace Cavender, and Lee Hagstrom.

The fur parade revealed that the 1945 winter trend will be simplicity of style combined with elegance of fur. The majority of the coats shown had full bell sleeves, rippling backs, and no collars, and were three-quarter length.

The platinum mink evening coat was one of three such models being shown in the country this season. It was every woman's dream come true with a modest tuxedo front, full swing back, and long sleeves with rollback cuffs. It depended on the soft depth and sheen of the fur for distinction.

Perhaps, however, the hit of the show was a black Russian Persian lamb coat whose full bell-like sleeves, at least 32 inches around, were banded smartly in a natural Persian lamb trim. Full length, it swirled and rippled from a convertible cardigan tuxedo front.

Fisher, which has been used over the years mostly in scarves, found itself in a chic sport coat, three-quarter length. It would warm the cockles of a woman's heart as well as her shoulder blades. A blonde mink coat featured a unique treatment of skins at the cuffs. In contrast to the drop skins thruout the remainder of the coat, the puff cuffs ran horizontally.

Yes, the heat was forgotten yesterday, for when fur style shows start winter cannot be far behind. And what a winter it's going to be!

Parisians Preview Winter Fashions

BY ANNE BRUYERE
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

PARIS, Sept. 5—The perfumed salons of Paquin and Molyneux, who presented their first peace time collection of winter fashions today, were packed with American, British, French, Swiss, Spanish, South American, Norwegian, and Danish style experts.

Paquin aimed at such sleek perfection of the silhouetted detail that even the hair-dos of the mannequins were changed by means of wigs to harmonize with each exciting new creation.

Impeccably tailored sports and campus clothes highlighted with strikingly original motifs and executed in pre-war quality herringbone tweeds, checked woolens, and silk finished gabardines opened the show. The first suit had an unexpected brown leather yoke repeating the tone of the plaid. The same leather formed pouched pockets and triple rows of tiny buttons down the front. The jacket was of finger tip length. The straight skirt reached two inches below the knees and had deeply set plaits in back to insure free movement.

Molyneux gave prominent place to snappy teen age clothes with brand new silhouettes having no trace of a waist line. A short black jacket buttoned with shiny copper coins was shown over a plaid skirt. A two piece herringbone tweed outfit had the interest spotlighted on the back where there were double rows of buttons from the high, round neck line to the stitched-on belt of a long plaited bustle peplum.

100 Women Agree to Act as Readers for Blind Students

At a meeting and tea of the Blind Service association in the Drake hotel yesterday, 100 women registered as readers to assist blind students attending colleges and universities, Mrs. Godfrey D. Bernstein, the association's president, reported. The women will aid blind students in studies which are not written in Braille and will read daily from 10 a. m. to 5 p. m. in the association office at 185 N. Wabash av. The office contains 10 private reading rooms, each equipped with a Braille typewriter.

Thru the Looking Glass

The tired business girl, the slumping housewife, or any woman who learns from every reluctant look in her mirror that she's thickening around the waist will find that one simple trick will do wonders for her. It's stretching, just plain ordinary stretching, such as the house cat, the panther, and all graceful animals indulge in as automatically as they breathe.

The right kind of stretching is an aid to slimness, an aid to suppleness, and one of the best relaxers of taut nerves. There's really nothing to it, either. Once you get the stretching habit, you'll never give it up.

There's a wrong way and a right way to stretch. When you stretch for beauty, do it with your posture correct and your shoulders relaxed. First thing in the morning and last thing at night try this:

Stand with your feet slightly apart, pointed straight. Relax the knees slightly, so that the derrière is well tucked under the hips. Knees, hips, elbows, shoulders, and ears, when you're in this correct position, should be in a straight perpendicular line. Once your posture is assumed, S-T-R-E-T-C-H! Start the stretch at the very lowest ribs, lifting them slowly, then lift the arms and stretch toward the ceiling as hard as you can, so that you get a pull from your toes to your finger tips. Inhale as you lift the arms and exhale as you bring them down after each good stretch. Do this 10 times, contracting and relaxing your muscles rythmically.

There's no better start or close of a day than the cat-like stretch. Try it and see.

Directors of Big Sisters Begin Fall Program Today

The board of directors of the Big Sisters will hold its first meeting of the new season at 10:30 a. m. today in headquarters. The session will be devoted to reports on summer activities of the girl guidance and family welfare organization and presentation of plans for the coming year. Miss Jane A. Magan, president, will conduct the meeting.

Fashion Parade Will Glow with Autumn Colors

BY REA SEEGER

A colorful fall fashion parade is imminent—not in the pastels and muted tints of spring, but in glorious, tawny shades of a frost bitten array of foliage, from burnished gold to deepest crimson. These colors in the first suit and coat showings include anything you ever dreamed about, with a half a dozen extra shades thrown in for good measure. In the gold tones, for example, you'll see everything from palest silver gilt thru chartreuse to the heavy mustard golds. The scarlet and crimson shades are especially effective when contrasted with fur; so are the vivid blues and greens.

Color this fall is used with great imagination. No longer is a combination smart and new just because the skirt is of one shade, the jacket of another. This season, color is introduced with suavity and wit. With insets of intricate outline and unusual shapes, sizes, and motifs, these contrasts are both sharp and subtle depending upon the shades or colors worked together for the finished beauty of the ensemble. Color in a straight slim skirt of a dark dress is used in a band of crimson around the kneeline, with this band then further emphasized with contrast on either side of embroidery. A brand new idea is the tricolored satin blouse worn with dull textured wool suit of skirt and jacket.

So far, the black and brown combinations are tops, with the brown this time a deep victorian chocolate tone. The second most popular brown tone is a chestnut tint, impishly called benedictine. Both contrast black superbly. A soft blue with brown is a third high fashion combination, so are the various shades of gray and beige with a chocolate brown. Purple with brown, chartreuse with raspberry, and yellow with deep green are other stunning contrasts.

Jews to Greet Rosh Hashana with New Hope

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS

When sundown tomorrow brings in the "head of the year," or Rosh Hashana, for the world's Jewry, it will be a new year of greatest promise since Adolf Hitler began threatening not only the Jew but the whole world. Now, with Nazism crushed and Hitler supposedly dead, the New Year greeting "Leshana Toba Tikateb V'tehatem" [may you be inscribed and sealed for a good year], will have more than symbolic meaning.

Milton J. Silberman, president of the Zionist organization of Chicago, in his New Year message, spoke of the "new leaf in the Jewish book of years" which now, in peace, "unfolds with new hope and vision. The victory of the united nations gives to the Jewish people the hope that the Jewish national homeland will receive those political guarantees to make Palestine the third Jewish commonwealth.

"We had the torture chambers and rocket bombs which multiply murder. We Jews have known and suffered incomparable losses during this conflict and those of our brethren who have been left homeless want to go home," Silberman declared.

Frank H. Weil, president of the National Jewish Welfare board, asserted that "for the first time in 15 years world Jewry can feel the surge of genuine hope as we welcome the year 5706. As Jews, strengthened by our historic role, we can contribute vastly to the cause of peace."

The most notable services of the year will be held in temple and synagog tomorrow night and Saturday morning. Many special services are being planned for the 10 day period between Rosh Hashana and the day of atonement, or Yom Kippur. Among these will be the high holidays season noon day services at the Great Northern theater under the auspices of the Chicago Federation of Reform synagogs.

Charles Simon, chairman of the worship participation committee of the federation, announced that the noon services will call into participation all local Reform rabbis and chaplains of that group who are stationed in the Chicago area. He said the public and all service personnel are welcome at the service.

The Chicago Rabbinical association, representing rabbis of many Orthodox, Conservative, and Reform synagogs, has announced a Rosh Hashana broadcast over W-G-N at 9 p. m. Monday. The New Year message will be delivered by Dr. Samuel Blumenfield, president of the association. The services will be conducted by Rabbi Jacob Singer of Temple Mizpah, former president of the association, with the liturgical program led by Cantor Moses Silverman and the choir of Temple Anshe Emet, Pine Grove av., and Grace st., led by Hyman Reznick.

Looking at Hollywood

By Hedda Hopper

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Sept. 5—I've cut Metro to the quick. Seems I wrote they had only $600,000 worth of story material on their shelves. It should have been $6,000,000. They have two complete books, solid with nothing but titles and a four line description of each story. Producer Al Lichtman caught Literary Agent Frank Orsatti thumbing thru the telephone book, and said, "Frank, keep your nose out of that. Next thing I know you'll be selling it to us. It's going to be a sad day for Metro when you learn to read, 'cause if you ever do, you'll bankrupt this firm." Then Frank put on his best sales talk and sold Al another story. . . . Col. Jimmy Stewart will arrive here the first of next week, then go north to get his army release before going to work in a picture. Jimmy's first may be "High Barbaree," which Everett Riskin is working on like mad. It's about a flyer forced down in the Pacific who finds to his amazement that all his dreams are coming true. And to help fulfill them, Metro will give him either Angela Lansbury or Lana Turner. That should do it.

It's Ida vs. the Horse

Ida Lupino [not Lauren Bacall] plays opposite Errol Flynn in "Stallion Road," from the novel by Stephen Longstreet. You remember it's the story of a horse breeder in the west who has to make up his mind which he loves the most—his horse or Ida. But Ida's pretty—and smart, too. . . . Pat Smart's gone with "Ten Little Indians." Don't get me wrong, she's touring in the road show. Plays the lead—for experience. . . . When Nancy Coleman finishes at P. R. C., she returns to Warners with a starring contract. . . . Wonder if Philip Reed will follow Barbara Hutton east? . . . Hal Schuster, in addition to directing "Breakfast in Hollywood," represents the Screen Directors guild in television research. . . . Marta Linden no sooner stepped off the train in New York than she got the second lead in "Smily." Simone Simon plays the star role opposite Ralph Forbes.

Warners' Great Loss

Charlie Einfeld's resignation from Warner Brothers studio saddened me. They've been together 25 years, during which time he rose from office boy to vice president. He was with First National five years before Warners acquired it, and four years with Vitagraph, which they also bought. He's been in his present job 16 years. In the old days, Charlie was a handy man, wrote gags for the comedians—which he can still do. There isn't any phase of our business that Charlie doesn't know from the ground up. No one has ever done a better public relations job. Well, all I can say is Warners' loss will be another company's gain. He's a great guy. In the meantime he's taking a well-earned rest at Del Monte. . . . Capt. Spencer Finney of Detroit wanted a change of pace, so after helping cancel 80 per cent of Northrop's war orders, he relaxed at Frederics, buying his wife some new hats. His teen-age son, however, went on designing a new plane which he hopes will outsmart the Black Widow.

The actual bidding:

East	South	West	North
1 diamond	Double	Pass	2 diamonds
3 diamonds	6 clubs	Pass	Pass
Pass

Opening lead: Three of diamonds.

Today's hand is one of the most dramatic of the deals in the National Men's Pair Championship, recently held in Brooklyn. The winners were Lee Hazen, a veteran of many bridge wars, and S. Gintell, a relative newcomer to the elect circle. Both men hail from New York City.

The East hand was held by Pvt. John R. Crawford of Philadelphia, just returned from France on his way to the Pacific. This was his very first hand of the tournament and he decided to stir up some action by opening the bidding with one diamond. This is not entirely orthodox and many players would prefer to open with a preëmptive bid. South naturally doubled and West, Simon Becker of Philadelphia, could find no way to get into the act. Charles J. Solomon in the North position responded with a highly imaginative bid of two diamonds. Such a call normally denotes control of the adverse suit and demands a game contract. Holding more than two and one-half honor tricks, Mr. Solomon, of course, realized that his side had at least a game and conceivably even a slam. Unfortunately however there was no convenient bid available to him. The textbook bid is a jump in one of his major suits, but this he was reluctant to do with suits of such questionable texture. The best way to paint an accurate picture of his strength was to tell a lie about his diamond control. Crawford, in an effort to place the burden of guessing the suit upon South's shoulders, leaped to five diamonds. South might have doubled, but elected to try for the slam in clubs which he would have been unable to do but for Solomon's false cue bid.

The three of diamonds was opened and South won with the ace. A club to the queen revealed the uneven split in trumps and South cashed the king and queen of hearts. The 10 of clubs was then finessed in dummy followed by the ace of clubs. On the ace of hearts South discarded his losing diamond. On this trick Mr. Becker shrewdly played the jack of hearts to give declarer the idea that he had no more, in the hope that he would try to get out of dummy with a diamond which West could overruff. At this point the location of the two of diamonds was unknown.

Declarer after a prolonged huddle arrived at the conclusion that East would not have leaped to five diamonds against a nonvulnerable team with only two tricks if he held less than 8 diamonds and elected to play West for a false card in hearts. He therefore came out of dummy with a heart and was relieved to find that East had no more of the suit.

Child Spoiled by Attentions of Grownups

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

[Copyright: 1945: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

What I mean by the term "wholesome neglect" was defined very briefly and sketchily in a recent article. Today I want to go into it more thoroly, both as a method of unspoiling a spoiled child and straightening out a discontented one—states which often exist at the same time.

Parents may get the general idea, but be quite at a loss as to how to put into effect this "wholesome neglect." Or, a more serious matter, they may misinterpret the advice, and a neglect which is not at all wholesome may be attempted.

The most clarifying way in which I can go about this affair is first to quote a letter:

"My 3 year old is worrying me so. She's healthy, full of vitality, bright, and affectionate. But she's not all of these things MUCH of the time. She's gotten so unruly; she doesn't obey; she seems to delight in doing the things we tell her not to do; she never plays long at one thing, and meal times are a horror and a turmoil." I might add many details but this is enough of a picture.

Now there is good advice about the right way to gain obedience and other aspects of management to be given in a case like this, but none of it will be of much avail without an understanding, the need for a certain type of ignoring, without an understanding of the need for administering a consistent dosage of "wholesome neglect."

Whenever a child acts like the one described in the quotation, she has usually been surfeited with attention. This usually is an absolutely unconscious thing on the part of her grownups.

What happens as a result is this—all the development of the child, which should go forward almost unconsciously, is highly personalized. She's looked at so much that other people's personalities are obtruded upon her, and all that interferes with her absorption, her concentration.

That this is unwise is obvious!

Inquiring Camera Girl

By Maryon Zylstra

[The Tribune will pay $5 for each interesting question submitted by a reader and used by The Tribune. Today's question was submitted by Mrs. A. J. Kane, Elgin.]

THE QUESTION

How old do you think a girl should be before she has dates?

WHERE ASKED

The Ellen Richards Trade School for Girls, 2535 Green st.

THE ANSWERS

Ruth Dolan, 15, 8244 East End av.—I had my first date when I was 13, and that's too young. I went to a movie with my brother's boy friend and my parents thought it was all right. A girl really should be at least 15 or 16. If she dates boys before that, she grows up too quickly.

Lorraine Sendra, 16, 1050 W. 32d st.—Age doesn't matter. It depends on how a girl acts. Some girls are grown up at 13 and others not until they are 16. Parents should decide when a girl can start dating, but I don't think they should be too strict or the girl will sneak out and have dates without their knowledge.

Helen Arbagey, 15, 4354 Berkeley av. — A girl shouldn't date until she's 17 years old. Before that she's too young. I started at 14 and now I'm sorry. A girl under 17 doesn't have enough experience to go out with boys and she would get disillusioned quickly. She should learn how to handle herself first.

Loretta Wronko, 16, 2637 61st ct., Cicero—I was 14 when I started dating, but I wouldn't advise girls to go out with boys before they are 15 or 16. If a girl starts dating younger that that, she'll be an old woman at 20, a little too experienced, a little too worldly wise. It is better to wait for a couple of years.

Lorraine Parren, 17, 1245 E. 44th pl.—A girl should be 15 years old before she starts dating and a boy at least 17. By 15, a girl is out of grammar school and in high school, where she meets boys daily and really gets acquainted. You can know a lot about a boy by attending school with him and just talking to him.

Presbyterians Discuss Drive for 27 Millions

Representatives of the Presbyterian War Time Service commission from 40 states met yesterday in the Stevens hotel to plan for a 27 million dollar fund to be raised for the reconstruction of dispersed congregations, rebuilding of destroyed churches, hospitals, and schools, and to restore the ministry to peace time needs and to reconstruct Christian youth movements in war devastated lands. John Foster Dulles of New York was elected chairman of the fund. Sessions will continue today.

Film Comedy Is Light and Mildly Funny

"TWICE BLESSED"

Produced by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, directed by Harry Beaumont, featuring Preston Foster, Gail Patrick, Lee Wilde, Lyn Wilde, Jean Porter, Marshall Thompson, Jimmy Lydon, and Gloria Hope. Presented at the Grand.

By Mae Tinée

The bobby sox crowd is having a lot of fun seeing this light hearted and light headed comedy and the ancients attending the Grand also seem to find that it goes down without much of a struggle.

It's all about a couple [Gail Patrick and Preston Foster] who divide the spoils of matrimony—twin girls—upon divorcing. Each brings up a child according to individual and strictly opposite ideas. Results: One uninhibited, happy, if dumb youngster and one repressed, walking encyclopedia.

Papa is a nonchalant newspaper man, and mama is a child psychologist, so you undoubtedly can guess which twin was reared by which parent. However, papa still loves mama, and she likes but disapproves of him. Relations are amiable until each parent threatens to select a new partner, whereupon the twins take a hand in things and industriously gum up the works.

The Wilde twins are likable and energetic in their roles, as are the other young persons in the cast, and Mr. Foster and Miss Patrick give their customary easy performances.

If you're not allergic to jive and jitter-bugging you may find "Twice Blessed" mildly amusing.

Dutch Motifs

BY NANCY CABOT

Dainty Dutch girls scurry thru their daily chores on colorful kitchen towels. By omitting the days of the week, the hot iron transfer pattern of seven figures may be used to decorate pot holders, wall pictures, or what you will. These figures measure 4½ by 4½ inches.

For the hot iron transfer pattern, No. 708, send 15 CENTS in coin [wrap coin securely] to the Needlework Bureau, Chicago Tribune, 220 Fifth av., New York 1, N. Y.

$5 PRIZE RECIPE

Stuffed Peaches

[Serves six]

6 large fresh peaches
½ cup chopped nuts
1 tablespoon sugar
1 cup crumbled vanilla wafers
1 tablespoon grated lemon rind
¼ cup sherry wine

Peel peaches, cut in halves, and remove stones. Combine nuts, sugar, crumbs, and rind. Pack filling in peach halves and fasten halves together with toothpicks. Place in greased shallow pan and sprinkle with wine. Bake in hot oven, 425 degrees, for 15 minutes. Serve cold.

[ADVERTISMENT]

Will Your Child Be As Fortunate As Susy?

Right from the start, Susy's mother has made sure that her daughter gets plenty of sunshine, and a diet adequate in bone-building minerals. Susy's legs will be as strong, straight, and her teeth as sound, as sufficient calcium can make them.

Will your child have these assets? While even sufficient calcium cannot correct bowed legs after a child is three, an adequate supply is important right through life to keep bones sturdy and help the child look his best. That's one of the main reasons why doctors advise that children get plenty of milk...the best food source of calcium.

However, as children get older, they are often reluctant to drink all the milk they should have.

That's where Cocomalt can prove invaluable. For Cocomalt gives milk a delicious chocolaty flavor that children love. And Cocomalt* is so rich in calcium, it makes 3 glasses of milk equal to a whole quart in calcium value. (Also supplies the day's entire minimum requirements for iron, phosphorus, Vitamins B₁ and D.)

Start your children on Cocomalt today. Save this as a reminder to order from your grocer.

*3 heaping tsps. to 8-oz. glass of milk.

On the Calendar

The annual stock raising party of the White Elephant Rummage shop at 3 p. m. today in Miss Gwethalyn Jones' Lake Forest home will give Mrs. Curtis B. Munson's friends their first opportunity to welcome her home after her year of service overseas with the Red Cross. Following a reunion in the east with her husband, Lt. Comdr. Munson of the navy, the former Edith Cummings, will arrive in Lake Forest today for a visit with her mother, Mrs. D. Mark Cummings, one of the honorary chairmen of today's party. Comdr. Munson is expected next week from his base in Providence, R. I., and on the 15th he and his wife will leave for a vacation in Edmonton, Alta.

The surprise promised by Mrs. William H. Mitchell and Mrs. T. Philip Swift, chairmen of the party, is an exhibition of swimming and diving by men stationed at Great Lakes. A fashion show around the azure painted swimming pool at 4 p. m. will be followed by tea. Before the benefit, to which guests will be admitted by a gift of merchandise to be sold in the shop to benefit Children's Memorial hospital, the committee will entertain at luncheon in the Onwentsia club.

The last day of racing at the Washington Park track today brings the good news to Arlington race track fans that next summer's Arlington season probably will be run on its own home track northwest of the city. During the days of gasoline rationing the Arlington meet was held at Washington Park. Mr. and Mrs. Warren Wright will not be in their box at Washington Park today as they have gone to their Calumet Farms in Kentucky.

Back from a vacation in Great Barrington, Mass., which included a visit to the famous Tanglewood Music festival, Mrs. Millard B. Kennedy, president of the Illinois Opera guild, will hear reports on the guild's current subscription campaign at a series of teas within the next few days. The first of these, a large tea for the South Shore committee, will be given today in the South Shore Country club, of which Mrs. Haven Core Kelly, chairman of the south shore group, of which Mrs. Leigh Curtis serves as co-chairman. One of the guests at the party will be Lt. Homer Utley of Cleveland, O., one of the first service men to benefit by the guild's policy of providing opera tickets for men and women in uniform.

Mrs. Clayton Dunham and Mrs. Walter Hughes, chairman and co-chairman of the Glencoe committee, will welcome members of the entire north shore committee at a tea Sept. 13 in Mrs. Dunham's home. A similar party for the north side committee will be given on the 14th in the Lake Shore dr. apartment of the committee's chairman, Mrs. Franklin Miller.

It's Something for the Boys: Theater Party

BY SHEILA DALY

[Copyright: 1945: By The Chicago Tribune]

"We're a couple of 16 year old girls who would like nothing more than to give a really wonderful party. It seems that none of our crowd will even attempt to give one for fear it will be a boring failure. Then too, most parties made up of couples, as we would want ours to be, turn into nothing more than mass necking sessions, before the night is out. This above all we don't want. But we don't know what the solution is."

Why not have a "different" party to insure it against being that boring failure you're afraid of. Instead of the usual boy-meets-girl evening of records, food, and just sitting around, try having a movie party. Take care of getting the tickets in advance, either paying for them all yourself or, if the girls are giving the party together, divvying up the expenses among you. Arrange to meet the other gals and their dates either in the lobby of the theater or at one of the gal's homes before the show. Of course, you'll still want to include food in your evening's plans, and you can have the choice of serving a buffet lunch either before or after you go to the theater. One hot dish such as chili or spaghetti, coupled with hot buttered rolls, potato chips, olives, and pickles and something to drink, will take care of any healthy appetities on hand. It's a party that's easy for the hostesses to give, and the guests won't find it hard to take, either.

"I'm not a very popular fellow but I do have quite a few friends. Among them is one girl whom I don't like particularly, but I have trouble avoiding her. You see, she lives next door and that puts me in rather an awkward position. What to do?"

Don't go out of your way to avoid your little neighborhood friend. It's never worth the risk of hurting her feelings just because she doesn't happen to be your favorite person. So give her the nod and the good word whenever you see her and let it go at that. But whatever you do, keep her on your side. Who knows, in six months she may grow up to be just the kind of smooth young character you'd like to be dating!

Reopen Catholic Grade Schools with 150,000 in Classes

Approximately 150,000 pupils in the Catholic grade schools of the Chicago archdiocese returned to school yesterday. Registration was held for pupils in high schools, which will not begin the fall terms until next week.

Noble J. Puffer, Cook county superintendent of schools, reported that schools in Markham and Oak Forest had postponed their opening date until Monday because of the prevalence of infantile paralysis. The Forest Ridge and Midlothian schools previously reported postponing their opening until Monday.

Registration for evening schools operated by the Chicago board of education will be held tonight and tomorrow night at Lake View, Schurz, Wells, Englewood, Fenger, Phillips, Austin, and Crane High schools.

Teacher's Reception or Women's Club Tea

The opening of school is the signal for service organizations to start back to work also. A reception or tea is often given as an incentive to swell the crowd. The photograph below was made to help you in your plans for such an affair. Daintiness, freshness and true hospitality are secrets of success.

Open Face Sandwiches

Easy Does It

Have enough women on the committee so that each one will need to make only one kind of sandwich. Most of the sandwiches shown may be made the previous day if stored in refrigerator in a shallow box which has been carefully lined, top and bottom, with waxed paper. Use corn syrup to "paste" the linings in so there will be no off-flavor transmitted to the sandwiches.

Variety Adds Interest

Space permits description of only a few of the sandwiches shown (numbers refer to location . . . see inset drawing):

1. Spread circle of bread with egg salad made with hard cooked Clear Brook Eggs, celery, green pepper (all finely chopped) and minced onion mixed with Wilson's Mayonnaise; arrange slices of ripe olives from which pits have been removed (they may be purchased this way) in a floral design around a small circle of pimiento.

3. Spread bread with Wilson's Mayonnaise, arrange thin slices of radishes around edge of bread, top center with a thin slice of cucumber and garnish with gratings of red radishes.

4. Spread bread with softened Certified Braunschweiger and sprinkle freshly grated carrot around edge.

5. Make garnish by spreading large slice of Certified Dried Beef with cream cheese. Roll, chill and slice.

7. Use grated Certified American Cheese mixed with an equal amount of softened Certified Margarine for the filling of this pinwheel sandwich.

8. Spread circle of bread with egg salad, top with slice from small tomato, cover center with Certified Ham Salad (which comes in 8 oz. glasses) and garnish with a tiny radish rose and two tiny sprigs of parsley.

Make lots of these if men are invited. They look dainty but they're filling.

Sincerely,
George Rector

NOTRE DAME TO LOSE SERVICES OF SZYMANSKI

Captain and Center Resigns Position

Frank Szymanski

Szymanski, from Detroit, Mich., made his decision because of the Western conference's recent ruling which declares ineligible any football player who enters into an agreement or signs a contract with any professional league team.

Signs Contract with Bears

Szymanski signed a contract with the Chicago Bears last January after the professional team had been advised by him that his class had been graduated in June of the previous year.

Investigation by the National Football league later disclosed that the player and his coach had erred in reporting that his class had been graduated in 1944 and that actually he was a member of the '45 class. As a result, Elmer Layden, National league commissioner, ruled the contract with the Bears null and void.

The Notre Dame player, as a member of the 1945 graduating class, was eligible for the National league draft and was selected last April by the Detroit Lions. Today he said he planned to remain in school for the present to continue work for his degree. He said he had acted in good faith in signing with the Bears and did not believe he was jeopardizing his college eligibility.

Drills Replacements

His decision to leave the squad, Szymanski added, was to prevent embarrassment to Notre Dame in the face of the Western conference ruling. Notre Dame, tho not a member of the conference, follows its code in matters of eligibility.

Faced with the task of finding a successor to Szymanski as varsity center, Coach Devore today used Bill Walsh, 17, a freshman from Phillipsburg, N. J., and Tom Schrieber, a junior from Detroit on the prospective first team.

Others on the tentative varsity were Bob Skoglund and Mike Bush, ends; Pete Berezney and Ed Mieszkowski, tackles; Fred Roval and John Mastrangelo, guards; Frank Dancewicz, quarter back; Elmer Angsman, right half back; Phil Colella, left half back, and Marty Wendell, full back. Angsman, who was a full back last year, has been shifted to a half back post to help the team's running attack.

PURDUE CAMP GROWS

The additions to the varsity squad included five freshmen: Ed Fox, end from Michigan City; Andy Devolder, guard from Washington High school, South Bend; Jim Hasson, tackle from Sioux Falls, S. D., who was recently discharged from the army; John Gardiner, half back from Minneapolis, Minn., and Doug Gauthier, back from Winnipeg, Canada.

BADGERS SCRIMMAGE

Madison, Wis., Sept. 5 [Special]—The University of Wisconsin football squad went thru it first strenuous scrimmage today.

Coach Harry Stuhlreher's so-called first eleven trounced another squad by three touchdowns while the seconds were able to score but once. The Badger coach used Ray Mals and Bob Hanley at ends; Dave Kingston and Clarence Esser at the tackles; Del Hanke and Hank Fricke at guards, and Harold Faverty of Evanston High at center.

GOPHERS SEEK FOE

Minneapolis, Minn., Sept. 5 [Special]—Minnesota is attempting to arrange a football game with Oregon State for Sept. 29, Lou Keller, the Gophers' athletic director, revealed today. Sept. 29 is the date Minnesota was to have met Iowa Pre-Flight, which has discontinued football.

Nine colleges other than Oregon State are on the Sept. 29 possible opponents' list.

Bob Feller's return to action with Cleveland brings to mind another Lefty Gomez story. . . . It was a murky afternoon, Feller was on the mound against the Yankees and they were swinging helplessly. . . . Near the close of the game, it became really dark and when Gomez stepped up to the plate he lighted a match and waved it around his head. . . . "What's the matter, Lefty," asked the plate umpire, "can't you see Feller?" . . . "I not only can't see him," replied Gomez, "but I want to make sure he can see me."

Hitler's Will

I wonder if Hitler left a will,
And if so, how did it read,
Was "I, being of safe, sound mind"
Included in that screed?
If so, how he must have laughed to himself,
Mad men are canny, you see.
An arresting thought, you'll agree.

Well, whether he left a will or not,
In so many words, I mean,
He certainly left a dire heritage,
Terrible, vile, obscene;
And did his 'heirs' gather to hear it read
On some gloomy, rain-swept hill,
And how did they welcome the 'gifts' he bequeathed,
How to hate, to torture, to kill?

If Hitler did leave a will I think
By destiny it is fated
That it's up to the world and you and me
To see that it's never probated!

SOX WORK HARD AND LONG; BEAT A'S, 15-6 AND 6-5

Second Game Goes 14 Innings

BY IRVING VAUGHAN

Philadelphia, Pa., Sept. 5—The White Sox had a gay old time winning a twilight affair from the tail-end Philadelphia Athletics this evening, but in the electric light half of a bargain bill encountered difficulties that made it necessary for them to toil thru 14 innings before fastening down a second decision. The scores were 15 to 6 and 6 to 5, the latter affair representing a trimming for the famed Bobo Newsom until a tying run in the ninth relieved him of the charge.

Fortunately for Joe Haynes' first attempt to pitch since he suffered a broken right ankle in mid-June, the Sox revealed a rare appetite for hits in the opening game, their season's high of 12 including a homer by Bill Nagel. The thumping forced Don Black to quit in a hurry and his successor, Dick Fowler wasn't handled any too gently. This, however, was only a bit more severe than the treatment dealt Haynes. He was chased in four innings with six runs against his record, Buck Ross finishing.

Baker's Hit Scores Two

When Newsom deemed it appropriate to quit in the second game, the urge being forced on him by such items as Guy Curtright's homer and another by Nagel, he turned the job over to Jess Flores and the rescuer stopped the Chicagoans cold, until Oris Hockett opened the 14th with a double and Curtright walked with one out. Later Floyd Baker, who was subbing for Tony Cuccinello, belted them home with a single. But there was more trouble ahead. In the home half Frank Papish, who had relieved Starter Earl Caldwell in the ninth, got into a jam which John Johnson straightened out after one Athletic had scored.

The Sox let go with five hits against Black to score as many runs at the outset of the twilight affair. Moses and Hockett provided singles and Curtright a triple after which Appling walked. Singles by Cuccinello and Nagel and Tresh's infield out did the rest. The lead, however, dwindled considerably when the Athletics opened against Haynes with singles by Kish and Hall, a pass to Estalella, and a single by Kell, changing the score to 5 to 3.

Mack Changes Pitching Scene

In the second inning Moses walked and Schalk and Appling singled for two runs, this display convincing Black's boss that a change was advisable. The alteration brought in Fowler but there was no immediate improvement. Hits by Tresh, Moses, Hockett, and Schalk nicked the rescuer for three runs in the third and Nagel added another in the fourth by slapping his No. 2 homer into the left field roof.

Four hits, two of them doubles, were the cause of Haynes' removal in the fourth, after which the horrible exhibition rolled on all too slowly towards its conclusion.

Newsom's plans for strutting his stuff in the night game were upset as soon as he had retired the first batter. Hockett walked and scored on singles by Schalk and Curtright. Appling also walked but Newsom suddenly took a turn for the better and fanned both Cuccinello and Nagel.

A's Tie Game in Ninth

Brancato's single coupled with Appling's error on Newsom's grounder let the Athletics score the tying run in the second but a speedy adjustment was made by Curtright with two out in the third. He whacked his No. 4 homer into the left field seats for a 2 to 1 lead and this went to 4 to 1 in the fourth when Nagel belted his second homer of the evening and Tresh doubled and Moses singled. This edge was sufficient to absorb the shock of the homer by Kell after McGhee had doubled in the eighth. It wasn't enough, however, in the ninth when a pass to Wilkins and Estalella's triple with two out scored a run for the 4 to 4 tie.

Army-Navy Football Game Dec. 1 Is Sell-Out

West Point, N. Y., Sept. 5 [Special]—The annual Army-Navy football game, scheduled this year for the Philadelphia Municipal stadium on Dec. 1, is a complete sell-out three months in advance, Col. Lawrence [Biff] Jones, army graduate manager of athletics, said today.

CARDS WIN, 4-2; BRECHEEN HOLDS BRAVES TO 6 HITS

St. Louis, Mo., Sept. 5 (AP)—Harry Brecheen scored his 11th victory tonight for the St. Louis Cardinals when the world champions defeated the Boston Braves, 4 to 2.

Brecheen, who yielded six hits, three of them to Joe Medwick, was in trouble only in the first inning when Dick Culler and Medwick singled and scored on Charlie Workman's double.

The Cards got one run back in the first off Elmer Singleton on a walk to Lou Klein, a single by Johnny Hopp, and a double play on which Klein scored. They scored three in the fourth on singles by Buster Adams and Whitey Kurowski, a triple by Ray Sanders, and a squeeze bunt by Martin Marion which Singleton threw into right field.

The victory kept the Cards in the pennant race, four and one-half games behind the Chicago Cubs. Score:

A. B. C. SELECTS BUFFALO AS SITE OF '46 TOURNEY

New York, Sept. 5. (AP)—American Bowling Congress competition will be resumed in Buffalo in 1946 after a lapse of four years, Elmer Baumgarten, secretary, said today. The last tournament was held in 1942 in Columbus, O.

Baumgarten also said he had received word from Mrs. Jeannette Knepprath, president of the Women's Bowling Congress, that in view of the A. B. C. plans the women will follow thru with their plans to hold their 1946 tournament in Kansas City.

And more action in the same inning. Roy Hughes slides safely into third base, ending his dash from first on Bill Nicholson's single. Bill Jurges is the New York third baseman. The umpire is George Magerkurth. The Cubs won this game, 5 to 2, and the second one, 10 to 2.

TURF MARK SET BY REAL SHORT AT WASHINGTON

BY MAURICE SHEVLIN

Graham Brown's Real Short, a 4 year old son of Brevity, set a new American turf record for two and a sixteenth miles with a three length victory in the $11,600 Marathon handicap yesterday at Washington Park. Real Short, ridden by Georgie South, negotiated the route in 3:30 4-5, clipping 4 3-5 seconds off the old record, set by Turntable at Washington Park in 1942.

The Happy Hour farm's Miss Bobolink, with Tommy Bates up, was second, five lengths in front of Clyde Troutt's Cerberus, the favorite ridden by Art Fischer. Nine horses started and the winner's end of the purse was $7,675.

Double Is Worth $48.60

The daily double was worth $48.60 on victories by Oots and Wells' Cargo Ship [$8.80] and Ben Fogelson's Ste. Frances [$16.40] in the first and second races. Al Bodiou and Steve Brooks were the winning jockeys. The day's mutuel handle was $980,144.

The finest race meeting ever held in the Chicago area, the 64-day coördinated Arlington-Washington Park session at the Homewood track, will be concluded today with the inaugural running of the $15,000 Artful purse, a six and one half furlong affair for fillies and mares which have not won a stake race this summer.

Sigma Kappa Is Contender

The Artful has drawn a field of 11 including the Calumet farm's Twosy and Good Blood. Last year Twosy was ranked second to Good Blood by most experts as she finished behind her stable mate in the Princess Pat. This season, however, Twosy has performed more impressively.

B. J. Bax's Sigma Kappa, which finished second to Durazna in the Clang handicap, and won two races later on, probably will be an important contender.

ST. LEGER WON BY CHAMOSSAIRE BEFORE 150,000

YORK England, Sept. 5 (AP)—Approximately 150,000 fans thronged the Knavesmire race course today to see Chamossaire, owned by Squadron Leader Stanhope Joel, millionaire sportsman, score a surprise triumph in the historic $46,480 St. Leger stakes.

The big bay horse, registering his first major victory over the 1¾ mile course, was ridden by Tommy Lowrey. The time was 2:56 3-5, considerably short of the record.

Aga Khan's filly, Naishapur, top favorite at 5 to 2, finished eighth in the 10 horse race.

Bears Certain War Is Over: LuckmanBack

BY EDWARD PRELL

There was some tall celebrating in the Chicago Bears' loop offices last evening when Sid Luckman, a civilian after two years in the maritime service, arrived and inquired concerning the best automobile route to Collegeville, Ind. That is where the Bears are training and Sid wanted to be sure he'd arrive in time to put on the only kind of uniform he'll wear this fall.

Earlier in the day the news had been received that Gene Ronzani will leave his Notre Dame football coaching post to rejoin the Bears. This made it almost a photo finish for the two fellows who will be the Bears' quarter backs this season.

In Top Salary Bracket

Luckman went thru the formality of signing a contract which makes him one of the highest paid National Football league players, his salary possibly being topped only by Washington's Sammy Baugh.

If they have time next Tuesday night they can compare notes, for that is the night the Redskins and Bears meet in a nonchampionship game in Soldiers' field. Luckman assured Ralph Brizzolara, acting president, that he would be in fine fettle for the game.

Ready for Serious Business

"That wasn't football I played last year," said Sid. "It was make-believe football. It will be great to be with the team all year, instead of only on Sundays. From what I hear, we look swell."

In 1943, when Sid was a full time football player he cracked several league records, including these four: Most yard on passes, 2,194; most touchdown passes, 28; most touchdown passes one game, 7, and most yards gained by passes in one game, 433.

PRIM, PASSEAU GO ROUTE FOR PACE SETTERS

Starting New York Hurlers Routed

BY EDWARD BURNS

The Cubs took a very wicked attitude toward the Giants in the double header before 25,769 in Wrigley field yesterday, socking them, 5 to 2, in the first game and increasing the dose to 10-2 in the second game.

Thus the Giants departed their pairing with the Cards as one of the two teams that led the Cubs in the season series. The Chicagoans now have whipped Mel Ott's pleasant fellows 10 times in 19 games, with the remaining three contests coming up this afternoon, tomorrow and Saturday.

As the afternoon program closed the Cubs and their partisans had to await the Boston-St. Louis Cardinals' night game to know just how much they had gained on the Cardinals, but they knew they had gained, regardless of the outcome of the single game in St. Louis. As twilight fell on the arena they were five games ahead of the Cards, but at midnight the advantage had shrunk to four and a half games because of a Cardinal victory.

Pafko Hits 11th Homer

The winning pitchers were Ray Prim and Claude Passeau, both tough luck losers in the recent St. Louis embarrassment. Prim, in ringing up his 11th victory in the first game, received 10-hit, errorless support. Passeau also was accorded 10 hit support and errorless backing until two were out in the ninth when the Cubs' one error since their liberation from St. Louis showed up, without producing any strain or complications.

Passeau's offensive support included Andy Pafko's 11th homer of the year, two doubles and a single by Roy Hughes, and other timely maneuvers by the entire cast. It was Claude's 15th success of the season and his first over the Giants, thus bringing him at least one victory over every rival team in the league.

A four run fourth inning in which the Cubs' Regino Otero of Havana, Cuba, knocked out the Giants' Adrian Zabala, also of Havana, enabled the Chicagoans to beat the Giants in the first game. Otero, making his first major league start, batted .667 and drove in two runs in the fourth, including the winning one.

Prim Yields Five Hits

Prim had no trouble whatsoever until fortified by those four runs in the fourth. Ray yielded five hits, three of them at the start of the fifth. A single by Danny Gardella and a homer by Ernesto Lombardi in said fifth accounted for the New Yorkers' two runs. Bill Jurges, who singled with two out in the eighth, was the only Giant to be left on base.

The Cubs had to be content with futile singles by Rice and Merullo in the first three innings, a paucity which seemed to sharpen their base hit hunger in the fourth inning.

Hughes, Nicholson, and Pafko knocked successive singles at the start of the fourth to produce the game's first run. Nicholson and Pafko advanced on Lowrey's sacrifice, then Rice was given an intentional pass, loading the bases. It

SENATORS BEAT BROWNS, 2 TO 1; THEN LOSE, 4-3

Both Games Go Into Extra Innings

Washington, D. C., Sept. 5 (AP)—St. Louis came from behind tonight to win the second game of a double header, 4 to 3, in 10 innings, after Washington had won the twilight contest, 2 to 1, in 11 innings.

The Senators almost had both victories clinched with a 3 to 2 lead and two Browns out in the ninth inning of the second game.

DODGERS SCORE 2 IN 10TH; BEAT PIRATES, 5 TO 3

Pittsburgh, Pa., Sept. 5 (AP)—Goody Rosen's 10th inning home run with Pitcher Vic Lombardi on base gave the Brooklyn Dodgers a 5 to 3 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates tonight.

The first pitch of the game into the glove of Pirate Catcher Al Lopez broke Gabby Hartnett's 20 year league record of 1,793 games behind the plate. A crowd of 19,504 observed Honus Wagner night in honor of the veteran Pirate coach of one of the game's greatest shortstops.

STATES TO CUT JOBLESS FUND IF U.S. VOTES HELP

Kilgore Bill Is Confusing, Sen. George Asserts

Washington, D. C., Sept. 5 (AP)—Eight states advised the senate finance committee by telegram today that any federal supplement of their unemployment benefits would necessitate a corresponding reduction in the payments made to the jobless by those states.

Four other states, responding to a questionnaire, said federal supplementary payments would make no difference to the operation of their state laws. Two states gave conditional answers.

Finance Chairman George [D., Ga.] told reporters "these telegrams put a different light on things" concerning the pending bill to increase jobless benefits to $25 a week for 26 weeks. He said they indicated passage of this legislation would bring about confusion and discrimination, and would leave many unemployed worse off."

Where Aid Would Drop

The eight states which advised the committee that federal supplementation would result in a reduction of state jobless payments were West Virginia, Montana, Missouri, Alabama, Mississippi, Vermont, Maryland, and Arkansas.

Wisconsin, Tennessee, Washington, and New Jersey said it wouldn't make any difference in the operation of their unemployment benefit systems.

Arizona reported its statutes prohibit payment of benefits from the state fund for each week a claimant seeks or has received federal funds. North Carolina said that if, in the absence of an agreement between the state and the federal government, the latter paid unemployment benefits directly to an individual, he would be disqualified from receiving state benefits during the period for which he claims the federal payments.

Kilgore and Truman States

It was noted that the eight states where state payments would be reduced included the home of the bill's author, Sen. Kilgore [D., W. Va.]. They also include Missouri, the native state of President Truman who asked for the federal supplementary legislation in a special message last May.

George commented:

"It is more and more certain that those who formulated the bill, and the President in recommending it, had not noted well what the states have been doing during the past year. They have made real progress."

He said states employing four-fifths of the war workers covered by unemployment insurance now have maximum standards of $20 or more a week coupled with a duration of 20 weeks or longer.

The question on which the committee questionnaire was based was raised by Claude A. Williams of the Texas state unemployment compensation commission at an open hearing on the bill. He contended that under their state laws, Texas and 39 other states would have to deduct the amount of the federal supplement from their state payments.

ELEVATED LINES JOINS VETERANS JOBS CAMPAIGN

An elevated lines car painted with signs urging employers to save 25 per cent of their peace time jobs for returning service men will be dedicated at 11 a. m. today on the North Water st. spur track by Col. Chester L. Fordney, in charge of marine corps recruiting in the middle west. The "Save a Job for Joe" campaign is being conducted by Industry for Veterans. James Simpson Jr., president, said 853 firms in 24 states, with 537,564 employes, have signed pledges to save 25 per cent of their jobs for veterans.

FARMER NAMED IN PLOT TO KILL WIFE GETS BAIL

Blairstown, N. J., Sept. 5 (AP)—James C. Gibbs, 56, Johnsonburg feed store owner and farmer, who, state police today charged unsuccessfully plotted a $500 hired killer slaying of his wife, May, 58, was released from the Warren county jail late today after payment of $10,000 bail. He was arrested last night.

Gibbs denied any knowledge of the alleged plot, which State Police Lt. Carl E. Fuchs said called for strangulation of Mrs. Gibbs, gagging and binding Gibbs, and ransacking his farm and adjacent store near here to make the motive appear to be robbery.

Gibbs pleaded innocent when arraigned before Justice of the Peace Thomas N. Hutchinson on a charge of advocating murder, and bail was set by County Judge Clark C. Bowers.

Fuchs said Gibbs had masterminded all details, down to instructing the supposed "hired killers" to wear white gloves and to upsetting contents of a safe as a start on a robbery theme.

Highway Court Fines 3 Having Slot Machines

Three defendants yesterday were fined for possession of slot machines by Judge William Kane in County Highway Police court. Fines of $100 and costs were levied against Mrs. Helen Wisniewski, owner of the tavern at 171st st. and Ashland av., East Hazelcrest, and Henry Ferguson, owner of the tavern at 16911 Dixie highway, Hazelcrest. Louis J. Rohr, 3208 Green st., Steger, was fined $20 on a charge of being keeper of two slot machines seized at a volunteer firemen's picnic in Steger Aug. 4.

TRACE LICENSE, ARREST DRIVER FOR INJURING 2

Raymond Lussa, 33, of 919 E. Marquette rd., was arrested last night by South Chicago police and accused of driving the hit and run automobile that earlier in the day struck and injured two sailors at 84th st. and South Chicago av. The victims, James Orr, 28, and Jerome Jacobs, 35, students of the naval training station at 87th st. and Anthony av., were taken to the station infirmary, Orr with a fractured skull, and Jacobs with a possible hip fracture. Lussa denied that his car struck the sailors. He was arrested after police traced a license number supplied by a witness of the accident.

Ten persons were slightly injured last night in a collision between a street car and a motor coach at Chicago av. and Seneca st. Nine of the injured were aboard the bus; Ben Melson, 29, of 1324 S. Sawyer av., conductor of the street car, also was hurt. Samuel Gatto, 38, of 410 S. Kilbourne av., driver of the bus, suffered a cut on his left leg. All were treated at Wesley Memorial hospital.

Thomas McMahon, 35, of 8248 Blackstone av., a houseman at the Evanston Golf club, was killed by a taxicab in Glenview rd. east of Wagner rd., Glenview. The taxi driver was W. V. Merritt, 66, of 906 Church st., Evanston.

John C. Levenson, 69, of 5242 Hyde Park blvd., a real estate man, was taken to St. Margaret's hospital, Hammond, Ind., with a possible skull fracture and several rib fractures after his automobile was struck by a Baltimore and Ohio frate train at the Torrence av. crossing in Burnham. A passenger in the car, Miss Rose Olech, 52, of 4900 Blackstone av., also suffered fracture of several ribs.

LAKE COUNTY CENTENARIAN, LONG ILL, DIES

Mrs. Mary Ann Moxey, one of Lake county's oldest residents who reached her 100th birthday last June 10, died Tuesday night in the St. Therese hospital, Waukegan, after an illness of nearly a year. Services were held at the chapel at 236 N. Genesse st., Waukegan, yesterday after which the body was sent to Shipman, Macoupin county, for services and burial today.

Born in Catcott, Burtle, Somersetshire, England, in 1845, Mrs. Moxey came to the United States with her husband, Henry, and settled in Shipman where her husband died 50 years ago. She lived with her son, Frank, on Wadsworth rd., near Zion, Ill., when she became ill and was taken to the hospital Oct. 3, 1944. She had been blind for 10 years.

Surviving are two other sons, Hugh, of Bunker Hill, Macoupin county, and Fred, of Elmhurst, 9 grandchildren, 24 great-grandchildren, and 10 great-great-grandchildren.

NAVIGATOR OF B-29 FREED FROM JAPS, MOTHER IS ADVISED

LT. WILLIAM J. C. LESLIE, 25, navigator on a B-29 Super Fortress that was shot down while laying mines in Japanese waters March 27, has been liberated from a Japanese prison camp, his mother, Mrs. E. H. Leslie, of 712 Maclean av., Kenilworth, was notified yesterday. He attended Amherst college and Northwestern university and enlisted in the army air forces in 1942.

MARINE CORP. RALPH H. BIELA, who has been a Japanese prisoner in Manchuria, expects to return home soon, he said in a letter received by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. August Biela, 3006 S. Trumbell av. Biela, who entered the marines Dec. 5, 1943, was captured on Bataan peninsula. He said in his letter that since Japan's surrender he has been getting all the American food and cigarets he wanted.

SEVEN NEW POLIO CASES REPORTED HERE; NO DEATHS

Seven new cases of infantile paralysis and no deaths were reported yesterday to the Chicago board of health. One was in the vicinity of E. 101st st. and Yates av., where seven cases have developed since Jan. 1. Dr. Herman N. Bundesen, president of the board, said the Yates av. case developed before a neighborhood dump was sprayed with DDT two weeks ago.

Yesterday's totals brought the city count for the year to 109 cases and 10 deaths, compared with 75 cases and two deaths for the same 1944 period. In the area outside Chicago, Dr. Edward A. Piszczek, Cook county health director, listed two new cases and no deaths, which brought the county total to 46 cases and two deaths compared with 42 cases and two deaths last year.

Three investigators from the University of Michigan school of public health reported in the current issue of the Journal of the American Medical association that the virus which causes infantile paralysis can be present in the intestinal tract for as long as 19 days before the onset of paralytic symptoms.

200 INSTRUCTED IN COMMUNITY, WAR FUND WORK

Two hundred men and women who have volunteered to be speakers at Community and War Fund rallies met yesterday for final instructions in the La Salle hotel. The drive, expected to yield $13,040,700, officially opens Oct. 1.

The volunteer speakers heard Elmer T. Stevens, former president of the Community and War Fund, describe the successes of the drive in the last two years. Pvt. William Hoffmann, 24, of Swartz Creek, Mich., a medical corps man wounded in Europe, also spoke, describing the needs of European civilians.

The drive this year, Stevens said, will probably be the last one designed to raise funds simultaneously for 187 health and welfare agencies, the United Service Organizations, and allied relief programs.

DEATH NOTICES

In Memoriam

ADAMSON—James J. Adamson Jr. Nine years today.
He was fallible and human,
Therefore loved and understood
Both his fellow man and women.
Whether good or not so good.
Kept his spirit undiminished.
Never failed to help a friend.
Played the game till it was finished;
Lived a sportsman to the end.
ANN AND NELL.

CARLSON—Hulda Carlson. In loving memory of our dear mother, who passed on 30 years ago, Sept. 6, 1925.
ERIC R. AND CARL O.

COLITZ—Rose Colitz. In cherished memory of our dear wife and mother, who passed away one year ago today.
Our lips cannot tell how we miss you,
Our hearts cannot tell what to say;
God alone knows how we miss you
Night and day, Mom, since you went away.
LOVING HUSBAND, BEN, CHILDREN, AND GRANDCHILDREN.

COLITZ—Rose Colitz. In memory of my gentle, sweet, and darling mother. VIOLA.

HAJEK—Anna Hajek, Sept. 6, 1942.
Every day brings back memories.
Every memory brings a tear.
Deep within my heart, I cherish
Thoughts of one I loved so dear.
God only knows how I miss you, mother,
As it ends this third sad year.
LONESOME DAUGHTER, SIDNEY.

MARSHALL—Pvt. Myron [Mickey] Marshall, Sept. 6, 1943, at sea.
To have, to love, and then to part
Is the greatest sorrow of one's heart.
LOVING WIFE, RUTHAE.

NORTH—Fannie North. In loving memory of our dear wife and sister, who passed away one year ago today.
Gone but never will be forgotten.
LOVING HUSBAND AND SISTERS.

SWIATNICKI—1st Lt. Eugene W. Swiatnicki, U. S. A. In loving memory of our dear son and brother killed in plane crash one year ago today.
We think of him in silence,
His name we often recall;
There is nothing left to answer,
But his picture on the wall.
To your grave we often wander,
Flowers we place with tender care
And we feel your presence near us,
As we sadly linger there.
HEARTBROKEN MON, DAD,
BROTHER, SISTERS, AND NORMA.

LT. PORT, FLYER, SINGING STAR, IS ON RADIO TODAY

BY LARRY WOLTERS

A few months ago Lt. Tommy Port was piloting a B-17 with the 8th air force over Europe. At 11:30 a. m. today he becomes the singing star of the Musical Milkwagon over WMAQ. He takes the place of Skip Farrell, who leaves the show for other assignments. A veteran pilot, Port is not altogether a newcomer to radio. Prior to his army service he sang with Ted Flo-Rito, Henry Busse, Johnny Davis, and Jimmy Joy, and was occasionally on the air. He holds the distinguished flying cross and air medal with five oak leaf clusters.

Lt. Tommy Port

Six years ago the Dinning Sisters—Ginger, Lou, and Jean—drove to Chicago from Oklahoma to try to crash radio. By the time they had had a successful audition, they were down to their last 30 cents. They made a quick hit and have been going great for years. And now they're going to Hollywood to make pictures for Columbia. They'll be leaving W-G-N-Mutual's Swing's the Thing, the National Barn Dance, and the Panther room, where they've had a run of 20 weeks. The Fontaine Sisters will replace them on Swing's the Thing, Sept. 13.

Since Maj. Bowes retired last spring, there have been several stop-gap programs in his Thursday night spot on CBS. The permanent replacement, effective at 8 tonight, will be Andre Kostelanetz's orchestra. Lily Pons, his wife, just back from Paris, will be the soloist this evening.

That Sunday evening Symphonic series, which ran from 1934 until 1942, is to be restored by Henry Ford at 7 p. m. Sunday, Sept. 30, over ABC. William J. Reddick will be the director. Guest conductors will include Eugene Ormandy, Dmitri Mitroupoulis, Fritz Reiber, and Reginald Stewart. Guest soloists already lined up: Jascha Heifetz, Dorothy Maynor, Jussi Bjoerling, Eleanor Steber, and Rise Stevens.

TRAININGSCHOOL JURY EXAMINES GUARD'S CLUBS

Eldora, Ia., Sept. 5 [Special]—The Hardin county grand jury investigating conditions at the state training school for boys here, where a series of mass escapes was touched off last week by the death of an inmate after a beating by guards, today examined several clubs said to have been used in punishing inmates.

The clubs were brought to the juryroom by Roy D. Palmer, 50, of Des Moines, a former guard, who has said he quit his job because he could not "stand the brutal treatment handed out to the boys."

He said he took the clubs with him as evidence when he quit. Among his exhibits was a leather harness tug studded with rivets and a wooden stick knotted with rags.

County Atty. D. W. Dickenson said the jury inquiry probably will last two weeks and will go into all phases of conditions at the school, phases of conditions at the school.

Percy Lainson, warden of the state penitentiary at Fort Madison, who has been placed in temporary charge of the insitution by Gov. Robert Blue, said today that all except 10 of the boys who escaped in last week's rioting have been returned to the school. A total of 179 fled Aug. 29, nine last Thursday, and 37 more Saturday night.

5,000 SCOUTS TO LEAD PAPER PICKUP SEPT. 15

Five thousand Boy Scouts will operate 700 trucks in Chicago's final city-wide curb paper salvage drive Sept. 15, John R. Robinson, paper salvage chairman, said yesterday. Commissioner of Streets Lloyd M. Johnson and ward superintendents will direct the pickup.

The city hall, the county building, and the war agencies building at 226 W. Jackson blvd. will begin their fall cleanup today in preparation for the drive, Sheriff Mulcahy said. The sheriff is chairman of the salvage committee for governmental buildings. The war agencies building will bale and place on the sidewalk thousands of circulars which were made obsolete when the war ended.

Paper still is at the top of the list of materials of which there is a critical shortage, said James T. O'Connor, executive secretary of salvage for the war production board. He said a goal of 6 million pounds has been set for the Sept. 15 collection. Money derived from the sale of paper gathered in the pickup will be donated to service men's centers and also will be used for hospitalized war veterans.

START CLUSTER OF BALLOONS TO STRATOSPHERE

Bound for a point 16 miles up in the stratosphere, a cluster of 67 balloons carrying cosmic ray detection apparatus will be released from Stagg field on the University of Chicago campus at 5:30 a. m. today, weather permitting.

The flight will be under the direction of Serge A. Koroff, director of physics research of New York university, in coöperation with the physics department of the University of Chicago. It will be the 27th such flight organized by Koroff.

The cosmic ray apparatus, weighing 150 pounds, will be attached to the balloons with nylon ropes. In the stratosphere, some of the balloons, expanded to 10 times their normal size, will burst. The other balloons will ease the descent of the instruments to earth. The flight will be followed by radar equipment.

300 MILLIONS OF SURPLUS ON SALE IN WEEK

Film to Bulldozers at Fixed Prices

Washington, D. C., Sept. 5 (AP)—The commerce department announced tonight that 300 million dollars of surplus war goods ranging from bulldozers to photo film will be placed on sale within a week under a new fixed sale price basis.

William S. Bradley, Dallas, Tex., director of the department's office of surplus property, disclosed that the sealed bid basis for disposing of durable goods was being largely eliminated. Instead, fixed prices will be established in accordance with office of price administration ceilings for all items placed on sale by the department. It has been charged by the surplus property board with disposing of all surplus durable goods.

Sales will be made to retailers and wholesalers based on OPA ceilings with percentage allowances to take care of their profit. Bradley said he was convinced this method of handling surplus goods would expedite disposal.

Distribution Speed Sought

In another move to get surplus goods to consumers before reconverted industry's output begins to appear in volume, the department will arrange sales in minimum lots to spread surplus to many outlets.

"We also are eliminating another bottleneck," said Bradley. "Heretofore we have had to wait as much as 60 to 90 days canvassing government agencies with priorities under the law."

Under a new system Bradley established, reserves from every lot of surplus will be set aside to meet demands of federal and local governmental agencies and of veterans.

"The new fixed price system will speed the turnover of surplus durable goods," he said. "More dealers will be more apt to buy at a fixed price than if they had to submit bids, and more of the dealers will get shares of the goods."

Limited Bid Basis Retained

Some surplus still will be sold on bids, but the bid basis will be restricted to articles not expected to be in heavy demand. An estimated 80 per cent of dollar sales volume will be at fixed prices.

Terms on all the 300 million of surplus will be announced from Sept. 10 to 15.

Lots will include batteries and flashlights, writing and map-making paper, folding chairs, stools, cots, mattresses, pillows, sheets, hardware, chicken wire, shotguns and shells, sleeping bags, skis, snowshoes, pipes and tobacco pouches, trucks and other vehicles [no jeeps yet], and construction machinery including steam shovels, cranes, scrapers, and hand tools.

"Everything from homing pigeons to 100 ton paving outfits soon will be ready for sale," Bradley said. "We plan to extend credit usual in commercial transactions." Credit would be limited to 30 day billings.

ALL FRATE AIR SERVICE BEGUN; FRUIT FOR EAST

Fresno, Cal., Sept. 5 (AP)—Regular all frate transcontinental air service was started from Fresno at 11 a. m. today by a twin engine, Conestoga cargo plane carrying 6,000 pounds of strawberries and 2,000 pounds of cantaloupes. It is due in Milwaukee just before noon tomorrow.

Owned by the National Skyway Freight corporation, organized by former members of the famous Flying Tigers of China fighting fame, the plane was the first of two Conestogas to take off with perishable frate for the east.

The second was to leave for New York at 9 p. m. with 8,000 pounds of Ribier and Thompson grapes. This flight was delayed from this morning to "hit the market" in New York Friday morning.

NEW ARMSTRONG CORK PREFERRED STOCK APPROVED

Lancaster, Pa., Sept. 5 [Special]—Stockholders of the Armstrong Cork company at a special meeting today reduced the number of authorized shares of 4 per cent convertible preferred stock to 52,994 shares, authorized 250,000 shares of new $.0 par preferred, and increased authorized common shares from 1,624,693 to 2 million, H. W. Prentis Jr., president, announced.

The company filed with the securities and exchange commission on Aug. 25 a registration statement covering the proposed issuance of 161,522 shares of the new preferred, 52,994 in exchange for the convertible preferred and 108,528 to be offered to holders of common stock of record Sept. 13.

Renegotiation Trims 1944 Hershey Chocolate Profit

Hershey Chocolate corporation yesterday reported to the securities and exchange commission that thru renegotiation, net profit of $5,413,059 for the year ended Dec. 31, 1944, had been reduced by $140,872 after adjustments for federal excess profits tax. Of the amount recovered by the government, $48,567 will be paid in cash and $92,296 by reduction of the post-war refund of excess profits taxes.

RFC Offers 8 War Plants for Disposal

Eight more large manufacturing plants, five of them in the midwest, yesterday were offered for sale or lease by the Reconstruction Finance corporation. The plants were built and owned by the Defense Plant corporation, RFC subsidiary.

M. O. Hoel, acting manager of the Chicago RFC office, announced the listing, including the Howard Aircraft corporation plant, occupying a 29 acre site near North av. 4 miles east of St. Charles.

Occupied by Majestic Radio

Temporarily occupied by Majestic Radio and Television corporation, it has 14 buildings containing 131,600 sq. ft. of floor space. Power is supplied by government owned lines connecting with the St. Charles Power company. The plant adjoins the North Western railroad.

The largest plant offered is that of the Studebaker corporation at Fort Wayne, Ind. It occupies a 60 acre tract and its main one story, windowless, air conditioned, steel and brick building contains 481,082 sq. ft. Equipment includes six overhead cranes of one to 10 ton capacity each.

Big Aircraft Plant Listed

The Oilgear company's five story plant at Muskego av. and Pierce st. Milwaukee, containing 118,000 sq. ft., is another Chicagoland factory offered.

In Evansville, Ind., the RFC listed the huge plant of Republic Aviation corporation, occupying a 71 acre site with 26 buildings. The American Broach and Machine company's plant at Ann Arbor, Mich., is another offering.

The remaining three plants are those operated by Revere Copper and Brass company, Baltimore, Md.; Alan Wood Steel company, Ringwood, N. J., and Consolidated Vultee corporation, Miami Springs, Fla.

Celotex Offers Debentures, Senior Stock

New financing programs were undertaken by three Chicago companies yesterday to provide funds for improvements and debt retirement.

Celotex corporation today will market thru an underwriting group headed by Paul H. Davis & Co. 5 million dollars of 15 year 3¼ per cent debentures and 100,000 shares of 5 per cent $20 par cumulative preferred stock. The debentures are priced at 102½ and accrued interest, the preferred at par and dividends from Aug. 1.

Proceeds will finance a comprehensive modernization and improvement program and redeem $2,826,000 of 3¾ per cent debentures due in 1955.

Registers Three Issues

Consolidated Grocers corporation, Chicago, registered with the securities and exchange commission 6 million dollars of 15 year debentures, 40,000 shares of $100 par cumulative preferred stock, and 100,000 shares of no par common stock.

Public offering prices will be set in an amendment and proceeds will be used to redeem $10,266,472 of notes and preferred stock and replenish corporate funds.

American Utilities Service corporation, Chicago, asked the SEC for authority to borrow 2 million from the Harris Trust and Savings bank on a five year 2¼ per cent secured note to finance calling $2,200,000 of 6 per cent collateral trust bonds at 104½ on Dec. 1.

Allied Stores Votes New Stock

Harris, Hall & Co. offered $6,200,000 of Western Light and Telephone company first mortgage bonds at 101.95 to yield 2.90 per cent to the first call date.

Stockholders of Allied Stores corporation voted to authorize 300,000 shares of $100 par 4 per cent cumulative preferred stock. An initial series of 200,000 shares will be issued to replace 195,225 shares of $100 par 5 per cent preferred.

OTIS GROUP GRANTED RIGHT TO INTERVENE IN U. S. PULLMAN SUIT

Philadelphia, Pa., Sept. 5 (AP)—Otis &-Co. of Cleveland and Robert R. Young and Allan P. Kirby, New York investment bankers, have been granted a motion to intervene in the government's anti-trust action against Pullman, Inc., and its subsidiaries.

The motion was made Aug. 27 and granted two days later by United States Circuit Court Judge John Biggs Jr., the court announced today.

At the time of the motion it was announced that the petitioners had offered to purchase Pullman's sleeping car service for 75 million dollars, the price at which the service was offered to the railroads as a group on May 12.

FIRST PONTIACS PLANNED FOR END OF MONTH

Klingler Doubtful as to Materials

BY PHILIP HAMPSON
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 5—The Pontiac division of General Motors corporation hopes to start building 1946 automobiles late this month and to produce a fair quantity in October, H. J. Klingler, Pontiac general manager and G. M. vice president, said today. Klingler, however, was pessimistic about the supply of materials for the immediate future.

"Our production plans depend upon our ability to get materials," he said. "We hope to get a clearer view of the situation by Sept. 15. Steel is a worrisome problem. We need it for car bodies, fenders, hoods, and other parts. The tin situation, too, is serious. We need only five or six pounds per automobile for solder, bearings, and so on, but that small need is essential. The outlook also is not very clear for fabrics.

Materials Hold Up Start

"So far as reconverting our plant and obtaining necessary machine tools go, we are in good position. We could start assembling cars today if we had the materials. Our assembly line is ready to go and we could start building engines now."

Klingler said Pontiac is aiming at an ultimate production rate of 500,000 cars a year. Only three car manufacturers have built that number in any one year.

The new cars will not be available for prompt delivery to all buyers before next summer, it was indicated.

The first to be built will be two door streamlined sedan coupes with both six and eight cylinder engines. They will be followed by station wagons and next in production will be four door sedans.

Seeks to Prevent Rust

The new Pontiacs will contain about as many improvements over the 1942 line as did previous yearly models over their predecessors. The front will be changed some. Bodies will be treated to prevent rust as much as possible. It was found during the war that rust attacked all cars and all manufacturers are seeking to reduce such damage.

Mechanically there will be a number of improvements, such as a better clutch. Details of the changes will be disclosed late this month. Meanwhile, the company is moving to provide better servicing of cars by dealers thru setting up model servicing facilities. The company has set up an ideal service station at its headquarters and reports that many dealers already are planning to follow its outline.

ADDING MACHINE MAKER'S PROFIT SHOWS BIG DROP

Burroughs Adding Machine company and subsidiaries yesterday reported net income of $24,246, subject to renegotiation, for the first half of 1945, compared with $1,810,691 in the corresponding 1944 period.

Last year's report did not include operations of foreign subsidiaries, the company said. The 1945 profit did not include $189,000 estimated net refund of prior years' income taxes allowed under the carry-back provisions of the tax laws nor $1,288,663 in reserves no longer required, less $384,945 for prior years' wages accumulated under its vacation plan.

Alfred J. Doughty, Burroughs president, said the backlog of unfilled customer orders as of June 30 exceeded 25 million dollars.

U. S. Manufacturers Seek to Resume British Trade

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

LONDON, Sept. 5—Wallace B. Phillips, president of the American Chamber of Commerce in London, today said the chamber was receiving 25 inquiries weekly from United States manufacturers seeking to resume trade with Britain. He said American trade associations favored reduction in tariff barriers, relaxation of import and exchange controls, and a return to multilateral from bilateral agreements to boost world trade.

Col. Bruce Parsons, first of the eight men in military service of the Bruce Parsons agency, Chicago, of the Mutual Life Insurance company to be discharged, announced that he would resume active direction of his agency. Parsons received the legion of merit while in service and three foreign decorations.

W. A. Alexander & Co., a Chicago general insurance agency, yesterday observed its 60th anniversary. The late W. A. Alexander started the agency for the Fidelity and Casualty Company of New York in a one room office. Now the agency occupies two full floors and the equivalent of a third floor in the Field building tower. Wade Fetzer, chairman, became managing partner at the age of 24 and now is an advisor. Active management of the agency is under Wade Fetzer Jr., president.

Edwal Laboratories and Metalsalts corporation have combined to form the new company of Metalorganics, Inc., Dr. Edmund Lowe, president of Edwal, said. The new corporation will produce metallo - organic compounds. Sales offices will be in Chicago, New York, and San Francisco, Cal., and plants in Illinois and New Jersey. W. M. Stieh has been elected president, Robert O. Weiss, vice president; Dr. Lowe, secretary, and Dr. Walter S. Guthmann, vice president and treasurer.

Dr. Edmund Lowe

The formation of a new Chicago investment firm, J. J. O'Connor & Co., was announced by James J. O'Connor, former partner of Doyle, O'Connor & Co. Quarters have been taken in the Field building. John C. Culbertson, Joseph F. Hammel, Fred Freeman, and Norah Campbell, all formerly of Doyle, O'Connor, will be associated with O'Connor.

Two members of the Chicago office of McCann-Erickson, advertising agency, have been elected vice presidents. They are Walter Krause, head of the new business department and manager of the International Harvester company radio account, and Sidney Wells, art director.

The pictures of Frederick Keller, general sales manager of the houseware division of Ekco Products company, and Bernard J. Hank, president of Conlon corporation, were improperly identified in the Sept. 1 issue. Keller's picture appeared with Hank's name and Hank's carried Keller's name.

FURNITURE MEN ASK EASING OF CONSUMER CREDIT RESTRICTIONS

Relaxed restrictions on consumer credit purchasing were recommended yesterday by Clarence Haverty, chairman of the National Retail Furniture association's committee on consumer credit, who said the association is discussing the subject with federal reserve board officials.

The association asked a reduction from 33⅓ per cent to 20 per cent in the minimum down payment on all home goods, the permission of add-on purchases without down payment as long as the total credit does not exceed that of the original contract, and exemption from down payment requirements of any article costing $50 or less. The regulation now exempts articles of $10 or less.

"As supplies of merchandise increase, additional relaxation will be necessary if goods are to be distributed on the basis of need, rather than on the basis of purchasing power, and if reconversion is not to be retarded thru a slowing up of the distributive flow of merchandise," Haverty said.

BIG EXPORT GAIN IS PREDICTED BY TRADE LEADER

New York, Sept. 5 (AP)—Eugene P. Thomas, president of the National Foreign Trade council, predicted today America's export trade in the next two or three years may exceed anything known before the war, and in five years may exceed by 3 to 4 billion dollars the 5¼ billion level of 1939.

The initial gain will be caused by the pent up demand for American goods, ample funds stored by Latin American countries, and international credits, largely supplied by the American tax payer, he said, on his return from trade discussions in London.

FERROLINE SUES GEN. ANILINE ON SECRET PROCESS

Suit asking 2 million dollars damages was filed in federal District court yesterday by the Ferroline corporation, Shreveport, La., against the General Aniline and Film corporation, New York, charging General Aniline with manufacturing iron penta carbonyl by secret processes belonging to Ferroline. The defendant has a Chicago office at 208 S. La Salle st.

The substance is used in making finely powdered iron for the manufacture of radar, radio, and television sets, said Atty. George I. Haight, who filed the suit. It charged the secret processes were disclosed to General Aniline by T. E. Birbeck, former president of a Ferroline corporation affiliate.

Ferroline asked an accounting of profits, a royalty of $1.50 a gallon for all production by means of the secret processes, and an injunction restraining disclosure of the processes.

All Controls on Shipping of Liquids End Sept. 20

Washington, D. C., Sept. 5 (AP)—All war time controls over the shipping of liquid products, including petroleum, by railway tank cars, highway tank trucks, and pipe lines will be ended Sept. 20, the office of defense transportation announced today. Its liquid transport department will be discontinued then.

GRAIN FUTURES SWING HIGHER ON SHORT COVERING

Short covering lifted grain futures rapidly in the late trading yesterday on the Chicago Board of Trade with the close near the top. Rye led the upturn and finished 1⅞ to 2⅛ cents a bushel higher. Barley gained 1⅛ to 1⅞, wheat was unchanged to 1⅛ higher, oats gained ⅝ to ¾, and corn ½ to 1¼.

Outside interest was relatively light, especially in wheat, and prices held in a narrow range until near the end of trading when shorts started to cover.

PREDICTS FAST JAP RECOVERY FROM WAR ILLS

Farm Nations Have Edge—Stanton

Japan will recover from the war faster than the United States, Dr. John W. Stanton, associate professor of political science at Northwestern university, asserted yesterday. History has shown consistently that predominantly agricultural nations recover from war faster than highly industrialized nations, he said.

"Two-thirds of the Japanese population before the war were engaged directly or indirectly in agriculture and fishing," said Stanton, former war department consultant on Japan, who helped train army civil affairs officers at Northwestern for the occupation. "Only a third were engaged in industry and commerce, compared with two-thirds in Germany and similar high proportions in the United States and Britain, each of which will find recovery more difficult.

Says Russia Will Lead

"Employment of demobilized Japanese soldiers will not be a serious problem, as it will for American veterans, because the majority are peasants who will return to the land or to fishing to supply Japan with its staple diet of rice and fish."

Russia will lead the world in recovery, despite numerous casualties and destruction of its cities, largely because it is so vast and so heavily agricultural, Stanton predicted.

Tax reductions for the Japanese, no longer obliged to provide billions for armament, also will hasten their recovery. He predicted that type of burden would be shifted to the American tax payer who must support the occupation forces.

Jap Standards to Be Low

Even tho Japan's recovery will be swift, its living standard, which was higher than any other nation's in Asia, will continue far below the United States standard, he said. How high Japan's standard rises will depend largely on how much access it is allowed to raw materials, such as cotton for its textile mills which comprised two-thirds of its peace time factories.

"If occupation forces are maintained for 10 of 20 years to insure against militarists regaining a foothold, such a fast Japanese recovery would be reassuring rather than a cause for worry, because it will allay economic discontent and war hatreds," he said. "Altho the Japanese should not be trusted for some years, Americans need not fear that their antagonism, bred by years of propaganda, will prompt any widespread desire for revenge or future conquest."

Shoes Scarce if Curbs End, Say Dealers

If shoe rationing were ended now buying would exhaust the supply and no new leather shoes would be available in quantity for at least three months, Chicago dealers said yesterday. Stocks are at an all-time low and leather released by the army cannot be converted into civilian shoes before November, they said.

Dealers reported that many women seemingly do not know that shoes made before March 1, 1944, to sell at $3.50 or less currently are ration free. The ration free sale extends from Aug. 17 to Oct. 13.

Believe Rationing Past

"With the government pulling off rationing controls right and left, most customers are under the impression that shoe rationing is as good as over and are parting with shoe ration coupons, thinking they no longer have much value," an official of a large shoe chain asserted. "This willingness to part with ration coupons has resulted in women buying new ration shoes instead of going after the leather shoes in the odd lot release, which naturally has seriously retarded the liquidation of these 'frozen' shoes."

The leather which the army has released for civilian use is heavy and finished rough on the outside and therefore is unsuitable for civilian shoes in its present condition. It must be retanned with a smooth finish and for women's shoes must be split into lighter weights.

Lack Leather Supply

An inventory of medium and low priced shoes by the Popular Price Shoe Retailers' association disclosed that stocks fell approximately 14 per cent in the year ended July 31, 1945, and women's leather shoe inventories could be cut 20 per cent more by the sale of ration free stocks.

I. M. Kay, president of the association, said retailers reported shoe factories do not yet have the leather with which to convert their present nonleather production to civilian leather shoes. It will require 30 to 60 days for shoe manufacturers to obtain necessary leather and an additional 30 to 60 days for shoes to be made and distributed to the retailers, he said.

Soundproof, Warpless Door Is Product of War

New York, Sept. 5 (AP)—A new type of door that is soundproof, will not warp, stick or rattle, and will cost about the same as a standard door has been developed during the war by United States Plywood corporation, Lawrence Ottinger, president, told stockholders at the annual meeting today. He said business was good but raw material scarce.

STOCKS MIXED; OILS, RUBBERS, METALS HIGHER

Rails, Motors, Few Aircrafts Lose

New York, Sept. 5 (AP)—Many oils, rubbers, and metals advanced fractions to about a point in today's stock trading, but the general market was irregular. Rails, motors, and a few aircrafts showed the biggest losses.

The list was mixed thruout the session as a large number of investors withheld orders pending President Truman's recommendations to the first peace time congress since Pearl Harbor.

Brokers and clients awaited congress' views on taxes, employment, demobilization, reconversion procedures, how long war time controls must remain, and other questions which concern business and industry.

Leaders Erase Declines

At one time losses far outnumbered gains but many leaders erased or recovered part of extreme declines. Volume was 980,000 shares against 1,070,000 yesterday.

The Associated Press composite of 60 stocks was unchanged at 67.6.

Gar Wood Industries and Coca-Cola set new peaks. Other risers included Bethlehem, Goodrich, International Harvester, Curtiss-Wright A, American Telephone, American Smelting, Dow Chemical, du Pont, Union Carbide, Eastman Kodak, and Texas company.

Losers were Youngstown Sheet, United States Steel, Chrysler, J. I. Case, Douglas Aircraft, Western Union A, Air Reduction, Santa Fe, Southern Railway, and Westinghouse Electric.

RAIL BONDS WEAKEN

New York, Sept. 5 (AP)—The bond market declined today on light offerings in the rails. Losses ranged to more than a point, but there were scattered recoveries near the close. Sales were $4,010,000, compared with $3,440,000 yesterday. United States government issues were steady.

Among the principal losers were Chicago & Alton 3s, Milwaukee 5s, Francisco Sugar 6s, International Great Northern First 6s, Northern Pacific 4½s, Kansas City, Fort Scott & Memphis 4s, Lehigh Valley 4s, Katy 5s, Missouri Pacific 4s and 5½s, Morris & Essex 3½s and 4½s, New Orleans, Texas & Mexico 5s, and New Haven 4s and 4½s.

3 STREAMLINED TRAINS ORDERED BY BURLINGTON

First Major Rail Outlay of Peace Is 6½ Million

The Burlington railroad has ordered 6½ million dollars of new passenger equipment, including three complete streamlined trains, Ralph Budd, president, announced yesterday.

Two of the streamliners will be Chicago-Twin Cities Zephyr trains equipped with "vista domes," glass-inclosed roof-top compartments from which passengers can obtain an unobstructed view in all directions. The other will be one "Empire Builder," Burlington's share of the five trains required to modernize its northwest service in connection with the Great Northern railway.

Orders 10 Diesel Engines

Ten high speed Diesel passenger locomotives and five stainless steel baggage and mail cars also were ordered to complete the streamlining of the Burlington's day time Zephyr service between Chicago, Omaha, and Lincoln.

The outlay was the first major one of its kind in the Chicago area and is believed to be the forerunner of other large expenditures for railway modernization thruout the country. Railroad purchasing in the next three or four years has been estimated at an average of approximately 1½ billion dollars annually for rolling stock, materials, supplies of all kinds, and fuel. This would be some 300 million dollars more than in 1941 and a peak since 1929. The record year was 1923, when outlay totaled 1 billion 961 million dollars.

Budd, Pullman Get Contracts

Burlington's new Zephyrs will be built by the Edward G. Budd Manufacturing company. They will be of stainless steel and each will consist of a combination baggage and buffet car, four de luxe chair cars, a dining car, and a parlor-lounge car. The parlor-lounge and the chair cars will be equipped with the "vista dome." Budd said an experimental car with this feature has traveled more than 15,000 miles in regular service since July 23 and has met with enthusiastic approval of passengers.

The Pullman-Standard Car Manufacturing company will build the "Empire Builder." It will be identical with four being built for the Great Northern, consisting of a baggage-mail car, four chair cars, a grill car, a dining car, four sleeping cars, and an observation-lounge car. Like the Zephyrs, they will be driven by Diesel locomotives.

INCREASED FEED SALES EXPECTED BY ALLIED MILLS

Prospects of Allied Mills, Inc., for increased feed sales next year are good and shortages of ingredients should ease, Harold J. Buist, president, told stockholders at the annual meeting yesterday.

Altho the "tremendous" demand for live stock feed cannot be filled now because of shortages of high protein ingredients, the situation should improve with large corn and soybean crops, he said. A soybean plant under construction at Taylorville, Ill., will be operating next month, and the company also intends to build a new soybean processing plant in Peoria to replace one now operated on the property of the National Distillers' corporation.

Officers and directors of the company were reëlected.

2 CHICAGO WACs SAILING HOME ON QUEEN MARY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

LONDON, Sept. 5—There is just one thing that a Chicagoland WAC en route home aboard the Queen Mary desires.

As the giant liner pulled out into the English channel Tech. 4th Grade Henri Ramsay, Midlothian, Ill., said, "The only thing I want right now is a ticket to the world series to watch the Chicago Cubs." Alongside her Corp. Wanda Piachcinski, Chicago, added, "We can't believe we're going yet. Go ahead, pinch me."
